

of supping with me to-night, and you Grandtully, and you young Murray, who promise to be a cavalier of much fame, and the other gentlemen of blood and valour here assembled."

And raising his plumed bonnet he passed on, smiling at the dark, fierce faces bent on him.