IT WEIGHED 166 OUNCES.

First Gold Brick Turned Out in Toronto.

BULLION FROM THE FOLEY

This Nice Piece of Yellow Metal is Valued at $2994.

Western Ontario Will Furnish Employment for Thousands of Men at High Wages, Says The Rainy Lake Journal—The Mineral Industry of Canada—Notes From Around Sudbury — Wabigoon Coming to the Front.

Yesterday for the first time in the city's history a gold brick was made in Toronto. The rough bullion described in The World yesterday morning as the result of the first mill run at the Foley mines, and as the first gold produced from the Seine River region, was yesterday morning transformed into a neat gold brick suitable for exhibition in street windows. The transformation was accomplished at the works of the American Watch Case Company in the presence of Mr. John F. Caldwell, the millionaire owner of the Sultana mine; Messrs. Edmund Bristol, C. W. H. Cawthra of the Foley mines, and Mr. James Chewett, mining engineer. The finished brick, as it came from the crucible, and mold, weighed 166 ounces 6dwt., valued at $18 an ounce, being therefore worth $2994.

MEN AND MONEY.

Rainy Lake Region to Swarm With Both, According to Optimists.

In the eyes of The Rainy Lake Journal the gold fields of Western Ontario will afford employment for thousands of men at high wages. That journal says:

"The development of the great mining wealth in this region of gold, silver, iron and nickel, when fully established and in active operation, means much to the cause of labor. For instance, we will say that they will only provide employment for 10,000 men, a very low estimate in view of the fact that Foley and Ferguson each employ 100 men now, which number will be soon largely increased, and for the sake of illustration we will say their earnings are only one dollar a day. That alone means a yearly expenditure of $3,120,000. If only 2000 two-horse teams are employed it will add $1,250,000 more to that figure, or $4,330,000 in all. But the fact of the matter is that double or treble that sum will be annually expended for labor in the Rainy Lake gold fields. Under such conditions no wonder that mining districts thrive and money is almost free as water. It is a pointed illustration of the wonderful possibilities of this country, both for labor and for capital. But great as is the certain production of gold and other metals here, we must not lose sight of the value of our lumbering, our forests of wood pulp material, our fishing and our agricultural interests, all going to swell the output of wealth of this remarkable region. It is safe to predict, when all things are considered, that the day is not far distant now when the country tributary to Rainy Lake will be one of the most populous and wealthy sections of the American continent.

CANADA'S MINERALS.

New York Authority Upon the Output of the Dominion in 1896.

The mineral industry of Canada last year showed a substantial increase over 1895, says The N.Y. Engineering and Mining Journal, and the value of its products has reached the highest amount ever reported, notwithstanding the low prices of some products. The greatest gains were in the precious metals and in lead and copper, and these were due to the active working of the new mines in British Columbia, which are now attracting much attention, both in the Dominion and outside. The large shipments from Trail Creek, Ainsworth and the Slocan country have already been noted, and they make up the greater part of the increase in those metals which appears in the statement, and which, from present appearances, may be expected to continue. In the Ontario nickel mines a decrease in production is reported, which was doubtless due to the fact that the markets for the metal have been somewhat over-supplied, and the owners of the Sudbury mines have not pushed their working. The Nova Scotia gold mines reported about an average year. In Quebec and Eastern Ontario there was very little change. The increase in coal production was considerable, coming chiefly from Nova Scotia, as the British Columbia mines reported a decrease.

AROUND SUDBURY.

Prospectors Rapidly Making New Finds and Claims Being Opened Up.

The name of The Sudbury News has been changed to The Sudbury Mining News with a view to "materially assist in making this part of Ontario much better and more favorably known in the future than it has been in the past." In its mining notes this week the paper says:

Prospectors Kelly and Vrooman, who are working at the head of Maskinonge Lake, have done considerable stripping and are commencing to sink a shaft.

A vein owned by Pickard, Chapin and Vrooman has widened from 8 in. on surface to about 4 ft. at a depth of 10 ft. A small amount of work has also been done on other veins and in every case the showings of free gold have been excellent.

Prospector Townsend is in Sudbury and shows fine samples of free gold from the Homestake. Reports give the vein 32 ft. wide, walls nearly vertical and vaulted, which is proof that it is a true fissure. The vein is much broken and rotten from the oxidizing of the sulphides similar to the mines in western mining regions. This is one of the most promising mines of the many good ones in the Wahnapitae region, and we trust Mr. Townsend will be amply repaid for his labor and expense.

S. Greenrod is doing some development work on his claim on Matagamshing Lake, widest vein is 4 feet, and free gold has been panned from stringers.

The Gold Cliff people are tunneling in from level of Lake Koogagaming to strike vein. Work goes on night and day under Foreman A. McDonald.

Prospector Jessop, who has been at work with small force on a gold property, came in last week. He leaves in a few days and will push work with stronger force. Considerable stripping has been done and a shaft sunk 10 feet. Vein is widening and increasing in richness.

AT WABIGOON.

This District Also Forging Ahead as a Promising Mining Region.

The Wabigoon country is coming to the front all right. The first carload of ore has just been shipped from Wabigoon to the reduction works at Rat Portage. It came from Kirby, Howard & Caldwell's location, H.P. 301. The whole district seems to be full of mining activity.

We have three surveyors at work about here, says The Wabigoon Miner, where one only was needed but a short time ago, and even they are unable to keep pace with the ever-increasing demands upon their services. It is asserted that one surveyor has laid out over one hundred locations since the early part of December. This speaks volumes for the reputation so lonk upheld of the Wabigoon country as a gold bearing area. Almost every day fresh samples are brought in, ranging from the free gold bearing rock, its white, glassy facets studded with the precious yellow metal, often assaying fabulous sums per ton, to the dull, metallic mass donating low grade, though possibly more reliable ore, than the temptingly brilliant gold studded quartz. A vein of low grade ore located about five miles south of this place measures one hundred and twenty-five feet in width, and is visible for nearly a mile.

A continuous stream of capitalists, eager to invest, pass through this place on their way to the gold fields, mostly displaying singular reticence as to their identity and object. From hearsay, however, we gather an approximate idea of their investigation and speculation. Many of England's most prominent mining magnates are quoted as being largely invoived in properties close by, and on the Manitou—despite the usual stereotyped denials that appear with unfailing regularity. It is said on the best of authority that now, when South African investments, overshadowed by the gradually darkening cloud of warfare, almost certain to burst in the near future, are, to say the least, extremely shaky. English capital is looking towards the Canadian mineral regions as a lucrative and a reliable field for investment, and Wabigoon is getting her share. Nothing is more certain, and the diversion of the stream of English wealth will be to our mutual advantage, bringing to Canada additional prosperity and to Britain bar upon bar of that bullion hoarded in her coffers.

BUSY SCENE AT SAWBILL.

Machinery of All Kinds Necessary to Mining is Going and Men to Work it.

Port Arthur, Ont., March 8.—(Special.)—Bonfires and smoke, on the Canadian Pacific Railway, the point from which all supplies are transhipped to the mines in the Saw Bill district, presents a very busy scene just now. The yard is crowded with cars, loaded with machinery and supplies for the different properties and stamp mills, boilers, engines, air compressors, steam drills, steel rails, and everything in the way of mining machinery is piled up all along the platforms and sidings at the station. Forty teams are leaving the track daily, loaded with stuff, and this has been going on for six weeks. Already many hundreds of tons have been shipped in and additional teams are being brought in by carlots, so as to ensure getting everything into the mines before the breaking up of the ice roads in spring. Owing to the fact that supplies sufficient to last ten months must now be laid in, and that there only remains about 30 days in which to do this, it is easily understood why this rush is on. The roads are in fine condition. Each team takes two tons per load. All available miners in this district have been sent in to work on the different properties, and it has been found necessary to send to Michigan to get a further supply.

The following mines are now in vigorous operation: The famous Hammond-Foiger, on which are employed some 50 men; the Saw Bill, with a pay roll of about 60 men; the Hawk Bay, with 30 men; the Golden Fissure, with 20 men; the Kabaskong, with the same; the Gibbs syndicate of Winnipeg capitalists, employing 25 men, and the Conmee-Cox syndicate, with quite a large force. Besides these, at least ten other mines are being rapidly developed.

The principal capital is being put in by Canadians, although British people are now becoming interested in several properties in this section. Numerous sales have lately been made in London of properties all along the Seine River.

A report from the Saw Bill mine this morning states that a rich strike has been made in the bottom of the shaft and the drifts are getting richer with every foot of development. Fraser & Chalmers' millwright, with a large force of carpenters, is now on the way to this property. Foundations for the mill and excavations for the mortar and engine beds are now going on.

At Hawk Bay a second shaft has been started about 400 feet from No. 1. It is the intention to sink these to a depth of 200 feet and connect them by drifts. A compressor plant is now on the way to the mines and will be shortly in operation. The Hammond-Folger reef is being worked vigorously and a carload of ore has been sent to eastern smelters. A ten-stamp mill is being erected by the Hamilton Company of Peterboro, and will be in operation early in the spring. Work at the Kabaskong is being pushed and the vein shows well under development. The Gibbs syndicate are purchasing horses and supplies and everything will be placed on the property as quickly as possible.

The accommodation at Bonheur is very poor and the several companies are complaining about this. What is needed and at once is a good-sized station house.

Silver Tip is All Right.

From Vancouver, B. C., March 8, 1897.—To E. S. Cox, Esq., Toronto: Visited Silver Tip new discovery. Two parallel lodes running right through claim, both showing large quantities of copper; approximate width from three to eight feet. These being independent of main lode, which carries up to $280 and is traceable for 2000 feet, and is assuredly grey copper ore. This establishes the future of the mine. (Signed) Thos. H. Fraser, consulting engineer.

MINERS UP IN ARMS.

Presidents McKinley Will be Asked to Undo What Cleveland Did.

Seattle, Wash., March 8.—President Cleveland's forestry reserve proclamation, which is effective through the failure of the Sundry Civil Bill, has raised a storm of protests in this State. It includes the best mineral districts in Washington, and threatens the inchoate rights of thousands of mining men, directly or indirectly, and meetings have been called by Chambers of Commerce to urge the new Administration to take steps to save the State from being deprived of its second best industry. Miners from all over the State are holding mass meetings, denouncing the proclamation and petitioning for relief.

Cunard SS. Aurania.

The SS. Aurania will sail from New York on Saturday of this week in place of the SS. Campania, which is undergoing her annual overhauling. Sailing at noon, passengers may leave Toronto at 5.20 p.m. on Friday. The rates on the Aurania will be from $60 up for first cabin, $40 and up for second cabin, and $25.50 for steerage, these rates being in each case lower than the regular tariff. The Aurania is a fine twin screw vessel of 7500 tons, just 500 less than the Etruria and Umbria, and having been completely overhauled and considerably altered in the last year she is now the equal in comfort of any vessel on the New York service. A. F. Webster, Toronto Agent Cunard Line, northeast corner King and Yonge-streets, will give full information.

HE MAKES A STRAIGHT DENIAL.

John A. McGillivray Says He Has Been Slandered by Chicago Newspapers—He Was Only Friendly.

Editor World: I hardly think that even your desire to obtain some sensational reading for your patrons could justify your publication of the article in to-day's issue, entitled, "Is McGillivray a Traitor?" for, knowing me, as you have, for at least 20 years, you should have known me incapable of uttering one single sentiment attributed to me in the said article. It is not a new thing for me to address American audiences. I have done so nearly every month during the last eight or ten years, in the interests of Forestry. It is nothing new for me to be courteous to my American audiences, and friendly in my bearing towards the American people. Occupying the position I do in a great international organization, it would be exceedingly unbecoming if I did otherwise; so that, a week ago last Saturday night, when addressing a large audience of upwards of 2000 people in the City of Chicago, in the interests of Forestry, it was but natural, when the chairman, in introducing me, spoke glowingly of his loyalty to his flag, the Stars and Stripes, that I should take advantage of the moment to speak kindly of his people, and to say, among other things, that, as the American flag was like to my own in color, the red, white and blue, so, too, both were emblems of liberty the world over. I said no more on that occasion than I did in effect when speaking in the House of Commons last year upon the possibility of war between the two countries, and I do not think that any sensible person then could have taken exception to my remarks made upon that occasion; at least, you certainly did not consider it your duty to the public to then draw its attention to any disloyalty in my remarks, and I am pleased to know that my then remarks are still to be found upon the pages of Hansard. But, I went even further than this, and I pointed out to the audience that, when their forefathers decided to sever their connection with Great Britain because of what they considered an act of tyranny on the part of the King, we were not so ruled now under the benign reign of Queen Victoria. No man present could possibly have understood my language other than I have above indicated. Not one word was uttered by me to the effect that, "although Canada was under British domination, such was a farce, and it needed only one word from the Capitol at Washington to end the farce forever," nor did I utter one word to the effect that "I looked forward to the day, and that at no remote period, when the Stars and Stripes of the glorious republic would be the only flag of recognized authority on the continent," nor did I close my remarks with one word to the effect that "the day had already arrived when the United States was the arbiter of the doctrines of this continent, and it needed only one word from Uncle Sam to end tests in this State. It includes the best mineral districts in Washington, and threatens the inchoate rights of thousands of mining men, directly or indirectly, and meetings have been called by Chambers of Commerce to urge the new Administration to take steps to save the State from being deprived of its second best industry. Brigands Raided a Plantation and Citizens Went After Them in Mexico.

Leon, Mexico, March 8.—The notorious band of brigands led by Juan Vacas made an attack on the Borejo Haciends, 25 miles west of here, and forced the employes of the place to surrender. Shortly after the brigands left the hacienda a force of rural guards arrived and were in pursuit. They came up with them, and a lively fight took place, resulting in Vacas and three of his men being killed. One of the rural guards was killed and another seriously wounded.

Since then Her Majesty has honored me with her commission, and conferred the silk upon me as one of her counsel. When sworn in as a member of the militia force of Canada (and I have been connected therewith for a quarter of a century), before being commissioned I again pledged myself to be true to the Crown and constitution, and when sworn in as a member of the House of Commons of Canada, only a few months ago, I again pledged my word to Her Majesty that I would be true. Is it, then, likely, I would ask, in view of the foregoing, I went a few hours' journey from Toronto, and in the presence of assembled thousands, heralded my disloyalty to the world?
