A resolution that a committee be appointed to formulate plans for a campaign regarding a new building was carried. Discussing the campaign Secretary John Cunliffe said the veterans should start a campaign of their own, as the welfare campaign now on was of no benefit to the returned men as far as building a memorial hall was concerned. far as building a memorial nail was concerned.
Comrade E. A. Pocock alleged that the G. W. V. A. had been left off the list of organizations which were to benefit by the campaign deliberately. He stated that he got this impression from the fact that when the advertising for the campaign was being given out the Byron Breeze, a soldier paper, was flatly refused any. He also alleged that with the exception of 1918 the veterans have never benefitted from any of the campaigns and that the Comrade Devlin attacked the press at this point, stating that he was misquoted regarding the memorial hall question during the last meeting. The misquotations were to the effect that he alleged that the reason there was no memorial hall in the city was owing to officers being at the head of the G. W. V. A. This statement he denied, saying that a local paper had only given part of his speech.

The matter regarding the issuing of motor licenses was left in the hands of Comrade Coles, as the meeting was not satisfied with the reply received from the deputy minister of highways regarding the position being taken over by a returned man.

There is a new inspiration in the summer millinery. The drooping brim and the brim turning away from the face are much favored in the new millinery vogues. Sport hats predominate and hats for afternoon and evening wear are charming in their lines.

All the new models favor the Egyptian and are essentially simple, relying more upon their lines than the trimming for their style. Yet some are laden with exquisite flowers. Jade green, vivid yellow and white, and a few favored high colors lend a very smart tone to the light summer hats, for which a marked preference is shown. We invite your inspection tomorrow.
