

In conclusion we may add that while much has undoubtedly been done in the past, much still remains for the future to accomplish, and it becomes all not to "weary in well-doing." It must be remembered that except for bare running expenses, the Hospital is in no sense self-supporting, and the interest and annual payments due under the mortgages must be a cause of more or less anxiety to the Trustees for some time to come. For the removal of this anxiety and the establishment of Grace Hospital on a permanent and substantial basis, we must look for assistance to our friends and the public generally, not as though asking charity at their hands, but rather in the sense of putting within their reach the great privilege of practically aiding a noble work.

FRANCES E. SHANLY,

Hon. Secretary.
