NEW YORK CHEESE MARKET. Saturday evening, July 19th.-The battle about a speedy recovery, if possible. been altogether unnecessary had sellers both here and abroad remained calm. Most shippers, and many receivers, insist that there was no help for the re-action on the withdrawal of speculative support, leaving business the specific property of the ness depending upon natural demand alone and claim that indications are still in buyers really in a somewhat nominal condition at the moment. Coming right down to the basis of business, openly and freely reported by operators who are always roady and willing to furnish proper information, and who are rarely found to have made "mistakes," there is no evidence that anything above our figures would represent the market with same chances in favor of a lower range.
