

It is a common-sense judgment that the one gives the greatest flame, the other yields the darkest heat; and both meetings makes the best fire.

A MELANCHOLY CASE - A correspondent of an eastern paper writes in the following dolorous strain, from one of the cities of the south: "I am dying of ennui. The city is a desert; no business, no amusements. I have seen but one handsome woman here, and she had her defects. I wish I could get a wife; try for me I will allow you a commission. I haven't a single button on all my shirts; a plague on such a life, say I must either marry on hang - or sitative!" A melancholy dilemma!

An excellent society has been established in Boston according to the Temperance. We think the idea a good one, and would suggest the propriety of establishing such a society in every town of New England. The society is called the Young Men's Temperance Society, and is getting to be a very popular one.

A NAME - The Wood of Lancashire are a distinguished family for character, wealth, and talent; the eldest son, John Wood, has been returned member of parliament for Preston several times, and proved himself a steady supporter of civil and religious liberty. A laughable circumstance once took place upon a trial in Lancashire, where the head of the family, Mr. Wood, senior, was examined as a witness. Upon giving his name, Oswald Wood, the judge addressing the reverent person, said, "Pray, Mr. Wood, how do you spell your name?" The old gentleman replied, "O double T, I double U, E double L, D double U, Double O D." Upon which the astonished lawyer laid down his pen, saying it was the most extraordinary name he ever met with in his life, after two or three attempts, declared he was unable to record it. The court was convulsed with laughter.

VEGETABLE WEATHER PHENOMENON - The attention of scientific men is just now directed to a curious discovery of Prof. Striפל - well known throughout Germany for natural Science - the result of which has been the attainment of a more accurate knowledge of those changes of which the atmosphere is subjected that was possible by the old method. The instruments hitherto in use have been the thermometer and the barometer, but an unerring standard has been considered a desideratum; that is said to have been at last supplied in the shape of Germanium fruit, the axes of which are in and evolved by the dryness of humidity of the atmosphere, in obedience to laws so regular and unvarying that being fixed upon a dial plate properly graduated, the change from one part of the room to another may be noted with the greatest accuracy. A paper on the subject was to be read at the meeting of German naturalists held this year at Freyburg. Prof. Striפל is the greatest weather doctor in southern Germany, and has for many years tabulated the changes of the atmosphere, according to a plan suggested by Goethe; but he does not venture to predict for more than twenty-four hours at a time, and laughs at our weather prophets. - By observation, he says one may get the rule, but not the exception.

THE BUSH TREE - A vine called by the wood cutters the bush rope, on account of its use in hauling out the heaviest timber, has a singular appearance in the forest of Denmark. Sometimes you see it nearly as thick as a man's body, twisted like a cork-sexy round the tallest trees, and rearing its head above their tops. At other times, three or four of them, like strands in a cable, join tree and tree, and branch and branch together. Others descending from on high, take root as soon as their extremity touches the ground, and appear like strands and stays, supporting the mainmast of a line of battleship; while others sending out parallel oblique, horizontal, and perpendicular shoots, in all directions, put you in mind what travellers call a matted forest. Often times a tree above a hundred feet in height, uprooted by the whirlwind, is stopped in its fall by these amazing cables of nature and hence it that you account for the phenomenon of seeing trees, not only vegetating, but sending forth vigorous shoots, though far from their perpendicular, and their trunks inclined to every degree from the meridian to the horizon. Their heads remain firmly supported by the bush rope; many of their roots soon fix themselves in the earth, & frequently a strong shoot will sprout out perpendicular from near the root of the reclining trunk, and in time becomes a fine tree.
