TIMELY HINTS.

Florette's Sensible Suggestions on Dress Points.

To day's picture shows a loose-yoked dress for a little girl. The material is red welvet and the trimming is white or cream lace which forms a yoke and moderately high cuffs. The back and front breadths are simply pleated and fastened under the yoke, from which they hang loosely. The dress is lined and has wide leg of mutton sleaves.

Don't be inveigled into buying cheap quality of ribbons for the children er yourself. Remember, a good ribbon will dye soft and good as new. You can bundle all your old and soiled lengths of ribbon together, and away to the dye house with them. They will all dye black and one will be as good as the other. You can then select your next dress with a view to then select your next dress with a view to your wealth of black ribbon, and so save money. Set a row of loops around the armholes, and a row on a belt that shall bind your waist just under the arms. Set a rosette in the back and let long ends hang down. If you have still more, bind lengths around and around your waist. Then you will have a renovated bodice at once. will have a renovated bodice at once.

Silk petticoats need not be of silk, that is, all of them need not. Brilliantine does very well. It is nice and stiff, and comes in as pretty colors as any one could want. Serge petticoats are all right, too, and bright red felt trimmed with black velvet is as chic as need be. The excuse for all this is that silk really isn't very warm these cold days, and there is little comfort for a red nose in the thought that it was contracted by wearing an insufficient silk skirt. If you insist on the elegance you can have your silk lined with fine flannel, but of course the crispness which is the best part of the skirt is all gone once that is done. You may better have your skirt of very fine flannel, and trim it with a lot of pinked out fluffy silk ruffles. The effect will be quite that of a silk skirt and your nose will get a pretty pink, perhaps, your nose will get a pretty pink, perhaps, but it won't get red.

A BALL DRESS.

Slenderness Not Now to be Accentuated.

The ball dress here pictured is one of those elaborate and showy affairs that recommend themselves to women with much time and money at their disposal for purposes of personal adornment. It is rather in advance, probably, of the means of most of my readers, and unlike most of the costly toilets I put before you, is not well adapted to reproduction in inexpensive materials. Besides, though its novelty of design is not to be gainsaid, it is almost too striking. I will, therefore, not describe it fully, but will be content to call attention to one feature, shown in its double puffed There is many a young man that is able to cut into a fortune who cannot carve one.

Simply bring the puffs out at the sides and do not pile them upon the shoulders. We should no longer aim to accentuate our height and slenderness, if we have them, but to add an appearance of width. This dread decree it is that has thrown the feminine world into a tremble, for, unless soon headed off, the pursuit of width will surely bring crinoline and hoops, and, oh, dear me, if all the periods are going to obtain, the streets will look like a masked carnival in full blast. What are we coming to with 1830, Empire and Louis VI modes all hobsobbing upon the sidewalks and over the courtes? However shall we get there? Crisolines and Greek drapery, turbans and coal scattle hats, leg-o mutton and pumphipuffs? Yet each girl is prettier and more distracting than the last. But—fearful thought,—what will the reaction be?

The doctor, then wanted to split it open and scray the bone, but I was too weak to strend the operation. One old lady said it had turned to black erysipelas, and could never be cured. I had never heard of Burdock Blood Bitters then, but I read of a minister, Rev. Mr. Stou', who had been cured of a severe abscer son the neck by B.B.B., after medical s id had failed, and I thought I would try it. I washed the leg with the Bitters and took them according to directions. After using one bottle I could walk on crutches, after taking three, I threv away the crutches, took a seythe and went to work in the field. At the end of the sixth bottle my leg was entirely healed up; pieces of loose bone had worked out of it and the cords came back to their natural places again. That was nine years ago and it has never broken out since. I can walk five miles to-day as fast as anyone, and all this I owe to B. B. B., which certainly saved my leg, if not my life. I cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers. Give B. B. B. a trial, it will cure you as it did me.
