WASHINGTON, August 1, 1861 ..

WASHINGTON, August 1, 1861.. It is suspected here that the army of the Poto-magnerally been predicted. Its recognization pro-ceds with great rapidity. The new trops ar-priving here are placed at once in brighdes, and pobably only a few days, at farthest only a few weeks, will be requisite, at the present rate of progress, to make a forward moviement that shall be more successful than the last. There is no reason why the Union srmies should not be able to more during the summer months, as well as the rebel lorces. The exper-price of medical men teaches the deleviations of field of the Southern climate upon Northern con-stitutions need not be dreaded during the first part of a residence in the South, and as far as the State of Virginis is concerned, there is no-hing more to be apprehended from the climate for the weather. His plan of operation will not be the second her is regative action without for the weather. His plan of operation will not be decladed until the precise moment for its esc-ption for bold and energetic action that they be defined on the area. WASINETON, Agnes 1, 1861. The Menter Nergetic Second Second ing direct from Gen. Rosencianz by telegrai, h :---August 1, 1861. Gen. Cox reached Gauley bridge on the 19th ult. Gov. Wise fled without fighting, destroying the bridge to prevent pursuit. We have captured 1,000 muskets and several kegs of cannon powder. Many of the inhabitants of that section who have hitherto been strong secessionists denounce Gov. Wise for the wanton destruction of pro-perty, and were abandoning him and h's cause. His Western troops are rapidly disbanding. The valley of the Kanawha is now free from rebel troops.

THE BLUNDER AT BULL RUN.

From the Evening Jour rat. THE BLUNDER AT BULL RUN. Washingrow, July 26, 1861. Wo is responsible for this great national dis-start? Officials cannot answer-individuals may speak—their answers passing for what they are worth, according to the estimate which the public put upon their judgment and means of information. Iteutenant General Scott, in the discharge of his duty are commander in-chief of the array, con-ceived and perfected a plan or programme, by means of which he confidently, as the results of overthrow of the confidently, as the results of vorturity to end the rebellion. This plan, primarily, contemplated camps of information, where raw levies might, doring the body and the second and and a second for duty, into the forgiments, as they became fit for duty, into the forgiments, as they departed, for green organizations. With this disposable force (after the safety of the capital was assured) General Scott commen-ord operations at forces. Monry, new flar-point being most fixorable, profiting, as mo-pathies of loyal inhabitants. With Washington for his base of operations, the western wings of harmy were to feel and fight their way south-ward unit, at the appointed time, having rech-ed their designated positions, all his columns their designated positions, all his columns as more to more simultaneously, Richmond faller. The finging were scotting departed the second and demunciations of Gen Scott. And finally, with a presumption and insolence un-and of the army, issued and reuterated the or-tor and demunciations of Gen Scott. And finally, with a presumption and insolence un-and of the army, issued and reuterated the or-tor the film wide species. Scott means and of the army issued and reuterated the or-tor on the Richmond. When the indent instruction by assaults upon the indent of the army issued and reuterated the or-to a more of the scott and instruction by assaults upon the indent instruction by assaults upon the indent instruction by assaults up der, "On to Bichmond." While widely spread newspapers were thus weakening the administration by assaults upon its commanding general, his emberrassments were aggravated by the persistent hostility and every day aspersions of the Bostmaster General, whose brother, a prominent member of Congress, assalled him from the stump. Meanwhile Congress assembled, Senators and representatives, with more zeal than knowledge, caught up and retirented the ery, "On to Rich-mond." The impatient Congressment were leading and influential. They waited upon the President to complain of the inactivity of the army, and upon General Scott, urging him, "On to Richmond."

President to complain of the inactivity of the army, and upon General Scott, urging him, "On to Richmond." And now the sensation journals began to dis-parage the strength and courage of the r bel army. "The rabels will not fight!" "The cowards will run?" & c., & c., appeared in finning capitals over finsh paragraphs. The whole pop-ular mind was swayed by these frenzied oppeals. A movement upon Manasses was universally and blindly demanded. Passions and animo-sities, kindred to those which once deluged France in blood, were being excited. The tyranny of the press, the demonstance of a Cabinet minister, and the impetuosity of a dozen members of Congress, exciting the masses, "moved" Gen. Scott " from his propriets." For once in his life his purposes were thwarted-fer once "his mind became the mind of other men." The result has shown that it was a final wakness. And yet who knows what would have been the effect of an adherence to his plan? The fieldity of the commanding generals. Every-day emboldened its sudacity-every rail and wire disseminated its treason-and every hour augmented the poupular discontent. Congress, though its seesion opened auspiciously bour augmented the poupular discontent. Congress, though its seesion opened auspiciously, bran to falter. "Madness ruled the hon," and a battle at Manasses, ruled the hon," and a finitary but a political " necesity." It is not true, however, as has been asserted, that General Scott was constrained to hazard this battle by the President. Between the President, and with one excerption, the Cabinet and Gene-ral Scott, there has been mutual regard and con-dence. I will not stop to consider details or criticize
