

Dorothy Cameron to lecture on Sculpture

Dorothy Cameron, prominent Canadian art critic and former gallery owner, will present a lecture accompanied by slides entitled "Realism Now: Nature, Objects, Figures in Sculpture" on Friday October 9th at 8:30 p.m.

Miss Cameron was born in Toronto and educated at Bishop Strachan School in that city, and later in Florence. She has attended the University of Toronto, Columbia University and Harvard University.

In 1959, she opened the HERE & NOW Gallery in Toronto, which was the first Canadian gallery to concentrate on national sculpture.

Since 1966, Miss Cameron has worked as a freelance art consultant, writer and lecturer on Canadian art, particularly sculpture, and as an organiser of public sculpture exhibitions including "Sculpture '67" for

The National Gallery of Canada, held at Toronto City Hall's Plaza and 1968's "New Sculpture at Stratford" and 1969's "People in the Park" for Roth-man's Art Gallery in Stratford.

Miss Cameron's articles have been published in "Toronto Life", "Arts/Canada", "Art & Artists" and "Studio International"

Miss Cameron's lecture will be held in the Exhibition Gallery of the Beaverbrook Art Gallery and the public are invited to attend.

Wouldn't you like to graduate?

Saving is a lesson everyone should learn. And the Toronto Dominion Bank is prepared to show you all you'll ever need to know about it (incidentally, it's a very rewarding subject).

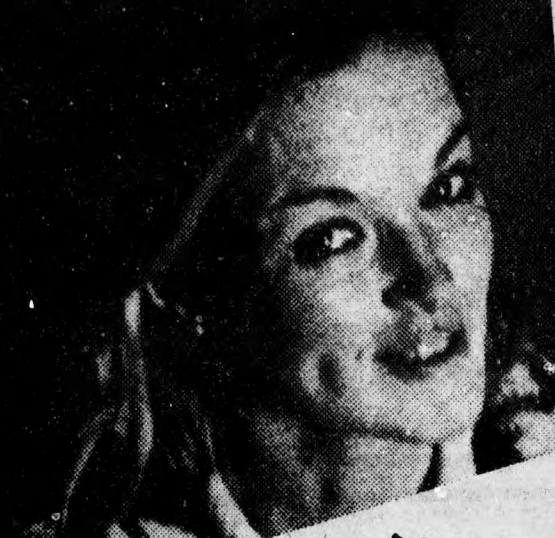

Once you understand what Saving is all about, we'll show you a couple of things about Chequing and Borrowing (we've got our Masters in making Student Loans). There's no enrollment fee. Simply visit a near-by branch and open an account.

Do it soon. It's the kind of thing you can take an interest in for the rest of your life.
