GROW OLD GRACEFULLY

A Few Simple Rules, Including Little Self Denial.

To grow old pleasantly and gracefully is necessary to recognize the fact that one is getting old and that therefore one should spare one's life accordingly. To begin with, to be beautiful one must have a contented mind, and as this has very much to do with the bodily health this should be taken care of.

One need not be a faddist or a fidget, but even the youngest girl ought to begin to prepare for a beautiful and healthy old age by using discretion in diet. Indulgence in quantities of unwholesome, though perhaps pleasant, sweet-meats and other indigestible foods will slowly but surely ruin the best of complexions, which as time goes on will become thick and coarse or, even worse, To retain a good complexion and digestion, for the two generally go together, the food taken should be simple, but nourishing, and at regular hours. Promiscuous meals are to be avoided, and as a general rule stimulants should not be Warm milk will be found an excellent nick me up when needed.

The elderly woman must remember that she cannot undergo as much fatigue as she could a few years ago and that she should while taking regular walking exercise be careful not to overdo it. She should also be careful to have sufficient sleep, and if she should chance to have to keep late hours she should take a rest and a sleep during the daytime. Cold, too, must be guarded against, and therefore the elderly woman should wear underclothing of wool or silk.

Wrinkles of course will come, but no woman as she gets on in life need wish to be without them, for they really give character to the face. If after forty years there were no lines there, it would surely denote a want of intellect if not a want of heart.

For the complexion there is no cos metic to equal rainwater, and the daily tepid bath should not be forgotten. As to the hair, that should be the color nature intended it, for thus it harmonizes with the complexion, and dyeing it is invariably an artistic mistake. Sleep eight hours every night if you can. Few people realize the value of sleep. Take a warm sponge over every night before going to bed. Use a small, hard pillow only or if you can do without one altogether. Attend to your general health and take regular exercise every day.-Home Chat.

Didn't Find Her Honey. A young married woman from the south who was visiting New York with her husband left him in their hotel room one morning while she went on an errand. She was not accustomed to big ho tels nor to big New York, but she got back without mishap in half an hour and knocked at the door. There was no re-

"Let me in, honey," said the young woman, knocking more vigorously. Still no response.

"Honey, let me in," called the young woman, redoubling her exertions. "Honey, honey, let me in."

She rattled the knob and shook the door and pounded with both fists, but there was the silence of the grave on the other side. The young woman's voice rose to half a cry. "Honey, aren't you there? I want to get in. Honey, open the door." Then arese from the other side of the door a deep bass voice with a resentful note in it.

"Madam," it said, "this is not a bee-hive. This is a bathroom."—New York
