R. M. C. DEDICATION

RT. REV. MGR. P. J. HARTIGAN REPRESENTING ARCHBISHOP DELIVERS ADDRESS

With imposing ceremony the magnificent Arch erected in memory of the cadets of the Royal Military College, Kingston, who made the supreme sacrifice in the Great War was unveiled on Sunday, June 29. Among the speakers were the Lord Bishop of Ontario, Gen. Sir Archi-bald Macdonell, Hon. E. M. Mac-donald, Minister of Defence, and the Right Rev. Mgr. P. J. Hartigan, P. A. Mgr. Hartigan, who represented His Grace the Archbishop of Kingston, spoke in part as

'A signal honor has fallen to my lot in the charge of representing my venerated ecclesiastical chief, the Archbishop of Kingston, at this momentous gathering, and, in his name of taking part here in the patriotic and auspicious function which is graced by the presence of any distinguished personages, which now proceeds under their leadership.
"Standing on this hallowed spot, what Canadian is not thrilled by the storied recollections that cluster in this romantic home of Canadian patriotism and chivalry. The authentic record stretches back, two hundred and fifty years and more, to the day when the first outpost of Christian civilization was established here by the brave and sagacious Frontenac, and was governed by the indomitable, the intrepid La Salle, one of the most noble heroes of high adventure whose names live in history, the paladin of discoverers, the knightliest figure that stood upon the walls of our Sion in that distant

"All honor to the practical wisdom, the enlightened patriotism that, in our day, rears and mainthat, in our day, rears and mainthat, in our day, rears and mainthat, in our day, rears and mainthat are consecuted that the consecution of the consecution o tains on the ground thus conse-crated a Royal Military College. Here is the monumental symbol that, linking the present with the glorious past, proclaims that in two centuries and a half Canadian heroism has not perished from the earth that Canadian bravery and prowess in arms have lived on and shall not All honor to the solicitude and vision and generous enthusiasm of the illustrious soldier, now Com-mandant of the institution, that here at Fort Frederick, with reverence and care, he treasures in a permanent Museum the material relics of those wars which Canadian fighting men have helped to win. All honor to the patriot who designates the avenues of these college grounds with names that make the Canadian heart beat high; Lundy's Lane and de Vercheres, Chateauquay and Ypres! What an appeal to memory and imagination as well as to all that is best and noblest in the soul of every young cadet! Trained in this training school for life's warfare, whether it is to be in mart or in forum or in the hosting of armed men-imbued in these halls and courts with goodness and discipline and knowledge — the alumnus of the R. M. C. goes forth into a world of men, a man of honor evermore to embody the lofty principles that have grown into his life and character, entwined with the triple ideal of 'Truth, Duty and Valor.'

"No mere pretentious legend of hollow theory, this resonant watchword that ensigns the escutcheon of these collegians. It was warranted and justified before heaven and earth in the sudden glare of war's red lightning. Gladly and proudly do you and I bear witness how true, how dutiful, how valorous were the men of the Royal Military College in that dark and awful day of the nation's peril. Though but strip-lings many of them, our country's cry of anguish and alarm, there and then, quickened into full and sturdy ripeness the hero's heart that throbbed in every young bosom. Out from this gateway they gal-lantly and blithely leaped forward to the supreme sacrifice. Greater love than this, no man hath. Bravely they fought, bravely they died, bravely they won the victory.

"And in the days to come, the tion, while stands the noble arch that we dedicate in perpetual remembrance of our heroes. God bless forever the heart that conceived it, the head that planned, in the Military Cally of the monastery at Norwood Park. There was a sermon by Rev. James W. Donohue, C. S. C. of Notre Dame. Solemn Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament closed the ceremony. the hands that wrought. Preceptor in the Military College, or pupils as you may be, coming hither or going you may be, coming hither or going hence to exemplify the spirit and tradition of your school, though it be after the manner of the deathless dead, in 'Truth, Duty and Valor,' may God's favor be marked on you, each and every one. For each I pray: 'May the Lord keep thy coming in and thy going out: from henceforth now and forever.'"—Kingston Freeman.

" PADRE OF THE RAINS"

The Knights of Columbus of California have started an intensive campaign among their own members and Knights of Columbus elsewhere Father Cuthbert O'Gara, C. P. who and friends throughout the order. to raise a quota of $100,000 with which to erect a new Memorial Observatory for Father Jerome S. Ricard, S. J., the beloved "Padre of the Rains," at the University of Santa Clara.

Unanimously adopted at the State convention in Pasadena in early May, a resolution favoring the acceptance by the Knights in Cali-fornia of the great work and honor of erecting a new, modern observa-tory for the saintly Jesuit "wizard," whose forecasts on weather condi-tions cover a long range of territory including practically all of the western states, is now being put into effect by the State Deputy, Thomas P. White of Los Angeles, and his district deputies and com-mittee workers throughout the State. Activities have begun under the direction of Chairman Harry I. Mulcrevy, county clerk of the City and County of San Francisco.

For many years Father Ricard's orecasts have been given gratuit-busly to the farmers, business men and general public on the Pacific Jesus Mercy. R. I. P. forecasts have been given gratuit-ously to the farmers, business men and general public on the Pacific Coast. Remarkably accurate, the forecasts of the venerable Jesuit, who has unselfishly given his entire life to this wonderful service of science, to mankind, are eagerly looked forward to, and followed religiously by the people of the Pacific Coast in general. They have been the means of saving many reward. millions of dollars to the farmers and business men of the west.

All of these results are being achieved with crude equipment and limited quarters, and without the assistance of others whom the good Father is anxious to have associate themselves with him, so that they may be able to take up the work when he has completed his labors.

Through the movement now being started by the Knights of Columbus. it is proposed to erect a magnificent new observatory on the campus, equipped with the latest and most accurate scientific and astronomical apparatus. Facilities will be provided for a corps of workers and understudies, to enable them to take up this splendid work which is a distinctive Santa Clara University achievement.

It is probable that through the installation of modern equipment and the erection of an adequate observatory, Father Ricard will be able to extend his periods of fore-casts and extend the territories for which predictions are made. "Indeed," declared Father E. J. Ryan, S. J., of Santa Clara University, who is treasurer of the K. of C. Father Ricard Memorial Observa-tory Foundation. "it is quite tory Foundation, "it is quite possible that Father Ricard will be able to cover the entire North American continent with his remarkable forecasts, if he is furnished with suitable materials to work with, and given the assistance that is so essential to carry on his nationally - famous studies and work."

It is the hope of the Knights in charge that the edifice and equipment will be formally opened for Father Ricard and his assistants to resume their work on a larger scale within a year's time. Contributions are now being sought in California, and State Deputy White has announced that subscriptions from outside States and communities also will be welcomed.

"When the Moon Became a Chinaman." By Milton McGovern, 326 Pages. Cloth, Jacket in Color. Net $2.00 postpaid.

A volume of twelve delightful stories written with charming simplicity and characterized by a style as vigorous as it is refreshing. Seldom has one of our modern Catholic writers had a more happy instinct for deft character portrai-ture than the young author of these tales; it is always accurate and appealing—at times brilliant.
As the table of contents indicates, the author has drawn on many countries, and has chosen his characters from the extreme of society's ranks in order to introduce a more intense coloring into his extraordin-ary pictures of life-experiences. WORKING FOR LEPERS FOR THE LOVE OF GOD

An impressive tribute to the Catholic Sisters laboring for the relief of the lepers in India, made by a high British official, has just been printed in the Ceylon Morn-ing Leader. It is by Sir Hugh Cliford, Colonial Secretary in the Conservative Government in England. Sir Hugh says:

"When my wife first came out with me to Ceylon, in 1911, after living in the sheltered seclusion of London society, she made her first acquaintance with the ills from which the flesh suffers in tropical countries, and among those which chiefly excited her pity and sym-pathy were the inmates of the leper asylum near Colombo. It was due to her energetic agitation that many changes were made in the management of that establishment, the greatest of all being that the man."
