ANCIENT ART OF ANTWERP IS WONDERFUL

Priceless Works are Endangered by German Assault Upon the City.

The City of Antwerp, or Anvers as the French and Belgian French name it, the German name being Antwerpen. It is more than 1,300 years since the founding of Antwerp and it rapidly grew to be one of the most important seaports of Europe, with merchant princes rivaling those of Venice and Genoa. For hundreds of years, with occasional checks by reason of wars, it has been the principal seaport of all that region of Europe.

CASTORIA For Infants and Children In Use For Over 30 Years Always bears the Signature of J. C. Ayer & Co.

thousands of vessels arriving and departing every year. It suffered greatly in the old days of Spain's dominance. It was devastated by the Duke of Parma and the desolation was more pronounced when Belgium was invaded by the Duke of Alva, the fiend of the Inquisition, and who boasted that his executions numbered more than the soldiers killed in the whole history of the city is blood curdling up to the time of Napoleon, and it is a curious fact that Napoleon recognizing the splendid possibilities of the wondrous harbour, restored docks and quays and did much to revive the old glory of Antwerp. Again in 1874 the city had differences with the Belgian government which almost amounted to war, and the citadel, 300 years old, was blown up in the presence of King Leopold II.

If, however, the great city of the present, more than 300,000 in population, the capital of the Province of Antwerp with a population of around 1,000,000, is to have the fate of Liege, Louvain and other cities, the commercial paralysis will concern the world less than the sentimental contemplation of the loss of grand religious and other edifices of priceless and unique Mussee Plantin-Moretus, an ancient printing house, the most notable in Europe in its day, producing wonderful works of art from the types.

Examples of these, impossible to reproduce, are preserved by the hundreds in this museum which is in the original house where Plantin amazed the then civilized world with his productions. Not only these, but some of the most precious paintings of the Flemish and Dutch masters, such as Rubens, Rembrandt, Van der Weyden, Steen, Hals, Matsys, Teniers, Van Dyck and Jordaens, are on the walls of the house, which in itself is one of the most interesting memorials of Europe. Rubens, Teniers and Van Dyck lived in Antwerp and have monuments there, and Jordaens, Matsys and other of the famed Flemish artists had their homes in Antwerp.

The Gothic cathedral, begun in 1352 and not finished until 1592, one of the towers unfinished in this day, as has happened to many of the ancient religious edifices, is one of the finest in Europe, its finished tower being more than 400 feet in height and holding a chime of bells incomparable for their sweet musical qualities.

AEROPLANE MURDER

LONDON, Oct. 30.—3.20 a.m.—Two German aeroplanes on Wednesday dropped two bombs at Bethune, France, according to the correspondent of The Daily Mail in Northern France. The first failed to explode but the second, which fell among market women, killed nineteen of them and injured forty others. Two bombs were also dropped at Dunkirk on the same day from a taube machine 9,000 feet up in the air. A woman and child were killed, and all the windows in the neighborhood were smashed. The women of the town are terrified.

CLOSE NORTH SEA

Prevalence of Mines Has Become a Very Alarming Matter.

LONDON, Oct. 30, 9.41 a.m.—The newspapers continue to urge upon the Admiralty the desirability of the entire closing of the North Sea in order to prevent the alleged action of the Germans in sending out mine-layers in the guise of peaceful neutral vessels. In this connection the Times says: "We refer again to the disquieting discovery of mines on the main route between Liverpool and America. There is an increasing conviction that this danger will continue to grow and that the only remedy is the closing of the North Sea to neutral maritime traffic."

"The flags of neutrals have been persistently abused and we can take no risks with the fortunes of the empire and the race at stake."

Would Mean War on Turks By the Allies

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 30.—In anticipation of the possible invasion of Egyptian territory, British Ambassador Mallet, acting under instructions from his government, has plainly informed the grand vizier that if the Turks cross the frontier, it would mean war with the entente powers. It is understood that the embassies of the allied powers, fearing a rupture, have already made the necessary arrangements for the departure of the diplomatic representatives.

WAR BRINGS RUIN TO FAMOUS MUSICIANS

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 30.—The war has ruined many of the world's famous musicians.

Disenberger, the famous teacher, is playing for $15 a month in a Berlin restaurant.

Joseph Weiss, another noted German pianist, is playing at a third class cafe.

Ignatz Friedmann has cancelled a tour guaranteed to net $37,000 and is going to Italy.

Zador, the baritone, who made $75,000 in the United States last year, is almost the only one whose money is safely invested.

RELIEF IS FELT IN PARIS

Retreat of German is Now Fully dictated. Government is to be Moved From Bordeaux

[By Special Wire to the Courier] PARIS, Oct. 31.—Unofficial announcement was made today that the government will remain in Paris from Bordeaux on November 1st, and that parliament will meet on December 1st to emergency laws.

Little by little Paris appears to be returning to more normal conditions. In the Boulevard des Capucines, which had been deserted and the windows whitewashed, have now been opened. Each day another name or bar on the Boulevard elsewhere resumes business.

The newspapers which cease to publish at the time of the retreat have begun to appear again. The question of re-opening the Bourse is also discussed. From the west news in Paris and Belgium, the most pleasant news to Parisians to-day was telling of the retreat of the Germans across the Yser in the face of a still commanding by the allies. The announcement on few days ago that the Germans had succeeded in crossing to left bank of the Yser did not depress the spirits of the people here but a development of war for some time.

Their withdrawal now with the progress of the allies other points, as steadily and the first stages of an impend victory.

Much interest is taken in hot fighting in the vicinity of Ypres, where the allies have gained, because of the great portance of the position of German Ypres, according to man military men, is the centre the German position between the and the sea. The have that they could not continue to advanced much unless the possession of it. If Y is conquered we will have route opened as far as the head of St. Omer, 22 miles southeast of Ypres, is a statement attributed to them. However, the most important positions in the line combat between Nieuport, Ypres and Ypres are in the hands of the allies.

General Pierre Cherfilis, the itary critic, declares that a wounded French officer with whom talked yesterday, unless a statement is made by the German method of combat. The present war, he says, affirms, the immense service-ation can render to the Fre units. The aeroplane has been an instrument of observation, only useful but indispensable, cording to General Cherfilis.
