RELIGIOUS CO-OPERATION.

Several events of late have shown the growth of co-operation in the religious world. In Scotland the Free Church Presbyterians and the United Presbyterians have joined forces, the new church being known as the United Free Church of Scotland. The united church will have over seventeen hundred parishes, and will doubtless be able to do more than the two churches, working on separate lines and covering to a large extent the same ground, were able to accomplish. On the day when the union was consummated the ministers marched from their respective halls in Edinburgh to a common meeting place and were enthusiastically cheered by great crowds along the route of the proces-

In New York the first meeting of the State Congress of Religion is being held this week. Fifteen Protestant denominations are represented. The aim of the gathering is stated by the New York Outlook' to be the drawing together of the religious forces within the state for co-operative effort, in a religious spirit, towards the moral betterment of social life. The merits of the various religions will not be discussed, each denomination putting aside its theological differences in a common effort to promote the purifying and elevating of humanity. Aside from this movement, arrangements are being made for the delivery in Philadelphia, Minneapolis, and other cities, of a series of interdenominational sermons by leading ministers. All this will tario press reflecting offensively upon tend to moderate denominational differences. In Canada the Presbyterians and Methodists set a splendid example in where population is comparatively sparse. It is not unusual to find in this Province small villages where the people, all told, are not able to well support more than one minister, divided up into four or five denominations. In many of these districts there may be local obstacles to union, but it would seem that steps might at least be taken to prevent a recurrence of such conditions in newly settled districts. In such cases it would seem that the governing powers of the various bodies might arrange between themselves which one could best go in and take charge of the work. If in new sections might be avoided, secmon cause of all churches prom

AN EXTORTIONATE MONOPOLY.

The capital stock of the Standard Oil Company is $100,000,000 which is doubtless far in excess of its actual cash investment. In fact, $10,000,000 was the actual capital, but it has been watered ten times over. Upon this stock it paid in 1896 dividends amounting to $31,000,000, or at the rate of 31 per cent; in 1897 its dividend was 33 per cent; in 1898 30 per cent, and in 1899 33 per cent. During the present year it has declared dividends to the extent of nearly 48 per cent., or nearly one-half of its total nominal capital investment. The total dividends paid during the five years ending next month will amount therefore to $175,000,000. It is announced that besides paying these dividends the company has been able to lay aside each year a considerable surplus. The stock of the company which was quoted a year or two ago at $400 or $500 per share of $100 par value, has gradually increased in price until by the first of this month it had reached mearly $600 per-share. Immediately after the presidential election it rose above $600 per share and on the anmouncement of the 10 per cent, dividend which completed the 48 per cent. dividend for the present year the market quotation rose to over $700 per share. When we bear in mind that the market value of the stock of this one company is now more than double the amount of the gross public debt of the Dominion of Canada and that its annual dividend is equal to the total annual revenue of the Dominion we get some idea of the magnitude of the great monopoly, Yet while this company has been making such enormous profits it has during the past three years increased the price of oil to the consumers by over 30 per cent. This increase in price has not been caused by any scarcity in the supply of oil; it has not been caused by any increase in the cost of securing the supply or in refining it; it has been caused by an arbitrary exercise of the power which the Standard Oil Company, as a monopoly, enjoys. The increase in price has been more marked in Canada owing to the high duty we impose. When parliament meets the relation of the Standard oil Company to the oil industry of this country, and the question of the removal of the present duty may well receive attention. It would seem to be a case in which

There is nothing else to live on or by.

When strength is full and spirits high, we are being refreshed, bone muscle and brain, in body and mind, with continual flow of rich blood. This is health.

When weak, in low spirits, no cheer, no spring, when rest is not rest and sleep is not sleep, we are starved; our blood is poor; there is little nutriment in it.

Back of the blood, is food, to keep the blood rich. When it fails, take Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil. It sets the whole Globe, which publication endorsed the body going again-man woman and child.

One of the expedients adopted by Mr. Israel Tarte and his paper, La Patrie, with a view to promoting what is known as the race cry, was to print and circulate garbled, and sometimes forged, citations from the On-Mail and Empire was the victim to some extent of this dishonest practice. In a pamphlet issued by Mr. the way of church union. But there Tarte a few days before the general is room for much more, progress in election we find The Mail and Empire this direction, especially in districts figuring quite prominently as an "insulter of our race." Language is attributed to this journal that was never used by it. Opinions that it never uttered, but, on the contrary, combatted, are coolly laid at its door. There is no remedy for this sort of mischief. It is idle to protest. All that can be done is to regret that men who are old enough to know better should descend ary the Chatham Planet has just had stroyed in the April fire, but the comto work of this class. was plain; La Patrie professed to be giving only a little bit of the insult which Sir Charles Tupper and Mr. Foster were offering to the race via The Planet. From Tarte's paper the story was transferred to the Soliel, Mr. Pacaud's journal. The Soliel is very serious about it. It says :- " We have hesitated to make known to our readers the insults cast at them daily by English Conservative pa-"pers. FRED'S SNAKE STORY. Fred. Brisco, the bicycle king, has a snake story which must be true, be-cause Fred, says it is. Near the bike man's old home in Napanee there lived an individual who was fond of snakes. This farmer had quite a collection of pet garter snakes. One day he secured a milk snake and while handling it, the reptile bit him at the base of the thumb. The wound heated up then, but a year later a running sore pened where the snake had planted ts teeth. After a time the sore heal ed again, but each season when the ime of the year came round at which the man had been bitten, he would act just like a snake hissing, sticking out his tongue, swallowing frogs whole times of the year the man was per-

ANCIENT LINE.

Mr. Chamberlaig is Hunting up All About his Ancestors.

And it is Said He is Soon to be Created Earl of Birmingham of Due Form.

London, Nov. 22. - Manchester and Leeds have a duke apiece who takes his title from their cities, and while Liverpool gave her name to a famous earl, who was prime minister of Britain in the early part of the century, such centres of industry as Macclesand Halifax are all represented in the House of Lords by hereditary legislators bearing their names by way of nobiliary titles. Birmingham almost alone of all the important cities of the United King-dom has been absent from the roster of the upper house of parliament, and of the upper house of parliament, and now this neglect, according to persistent rumors in well-informed quarters, is about to be repaired by the elevation of Colonial Secretary Jos. Chumberlain to the peerage, with the title of Errl of Brimingham, his American wife distributes of Chamberlain.

"insult" theory, with a view to strengthening Mr. Tarte's hand. It is preposterous that a political party should be accused of pursuing and reviling an important section of our population on the strength of a little extract from "plate" matter that was published in Liberal as well as Conservative papers, and that had no political or intentionally offensive mainings in either case. It is a pits title of Earl of Brmingham, his Amelican wife, daughter of Cleveland's secretary of war, Endicott, becoming first countess of Brmingham, his Amelican wife, daughter of Cleveland's secretary of war, Endicott, becoming first countess of Brmingham, his Amelican wife, daughter of Cleveland's secretary of war, Endicott, becoming first countess of Brmingham, his Amelican wife, daughter of Cleveland's secretary of war, Endicott, becoming first countess of Brmingham.
