

WOMAN STABBED BY HER SISTER.

Runs Against Knife In Her Sister's Hand.

Wound Discovered at the Dinner Table.

Shock Killed Her and Doctors Puzzled.

New York, May 23.—While helping to prepare the family breakfast this morning Mrs. Kate Hartigan, a widow, living with her father's family at 304 Webster avenue, Brooklyn, was fatally stabbed by her sister, Rose Logomarin.

Rose Logomarin, and her mother, who was present at the time Mrs. Hartigan was stabbed, told the police that Mrs. Hartigan received her injury by running against a bread knife, which Rose Logomarin held in her hand.

The two collided in the doorway and after eluding each other for the blunder occurred in the dining-room and took their seats at the table.

He found that the sub-divided artery had been severed and decided that there had been considerable internal bleeding. He learned that Mrs. Hartigan had a weak heart and was of the opinion that the shock of discovering the wound might have, in her weak condition, caused her death.

CARROLL HOME

Built at Same Time as Was Dundurn Castle.

The old Carroll homestead on Carroll's Point, which was destroyed by fire from unknown causes on Thursday night, was built at the same time as Dundurn Castle, and was designed by the same architect.

FORTUNE IN ATTIC.

STRANGE DISCOVERY OF A NEW JERSEY BARBER.

Was Cleaning Up an Old Desk to Sell When He Discovered a Secret Drawer—Railroad Bonds Worth $175,000 in It.

New York, May 22.—A despatch to the Herald from Millville, N. J., says: Albert Kendall, the village barber of Newfield, and his two sisters, who have for years been struggling for a livelihood, this morning discovered what is believed to be a fortune in an old desk which had been stored in the attic for years.

The desk was carried down into the barber shop to receive a coat of varnish preparatory to its being sold to a dealer in antique furniture.

The papers were railroad bonds made in the name of the late John Kendall, father of Albert, who died suddenly fifteen years ago. The bonds are dated 1866. John Kendall was reputed to be at the time of his death one of the wealthiest men in the section, and was known to hold many West Jersey Railroad bonds.

You Are Not to Blame

For looking on the ordinary canned fruits and jams with suspicion. But the Government test proves beyond all doubt that E. D. Smith's catsup, jam, marmalade, etc., is absolutely pure.

BRITANNIA RINK.

The big Britannia Roller Rink will run two skating sessions on Victoria Day. Prof. Lomas' band will be in attendance afternoon and evening.

Shot to Death.

Columbus, O., May 23.—Ike Watson, the negro who killed a policeman while at Meridian on Thursday, was shot to death by a sheriff's posse about eight miles west of Columbus yesterday.

TILT WITH BRYAN.

No Penalty For Banks Lending More Than Ten Per Cent.

Quite an Exciting Scene at Chicago Bankers' Banquet.

Chicago, May 23.—A spirited tilt between Wm. J. Bryan and James B. Forgan, President of the First National Bank of Chicago, was a feature last night, at the dinner of the Bankers' Club, of Chicago, in the Auditorium Annex.

Mr. Bryan, in an address to the bankers said: "It appeared in the Walsh case here in Chicago that the law as to loaning by National Banks is directory only and that no penalty is attached for the loan of more than 10 per cent. of the bank's capital and surplus to one individual."

"No penalty, at least except such as may be imposed in the discretion of the comptroller. And what is the situation? If a bank loans more than the prescribed 10 per cent., it is notified not to do it again. If the bank continues to loan more than 10 per cent. it is again notified not to do it. If it keeps on, it keeps on being notified. Am I not right?"

A coterie of bankers and business men, in the rear of the room, laughed. "This was too much for Mr. Forgan. The President of the First National, indeed, had shown several indications in earlier parts of the speech of not being in accord with the speaker."

Mr. Forgan raised his hand deprecatingly. "But, the law has been changed," said Mr. Forgan, who apparently did not hear Mr. Bryan use the words, "capital and surplus," in leading up to his point.

"And is there any penalty?" demanded Mr. Bryan, in an aggressive voice, and turning to look at Mr. Forgan, who sat to his right, four seats away, at the speaker's table.

"There is no penalty," said Mr. Forgan, "but the law is still enforced."

Mr. Bryan gathered himself together, leaned forward and extended his arm into Mr. Forgan's position. "Will anyone tell me that the law was enforced in New York during the panic?" he cried.

Mr. Forgan said nothing.

"I will stake my reputation," cried Mr. Bryan, more vehemently than ever, "that the law was not enforced in New York during the panic."

Another pause. The room was entirely quiet. Bankers looked at Mr. Forgan. Mr. Forgan looked at the pink carnation before him. Mr. Bryan regarded the speaker.

"And I will say further," resumed Mr. Bryan, smilingly, "that if the law had been enforced in New York during the panic the panic would have been a great deal worse."

Everybody laughed at that, including Mr. Forgan, and the atmosphere became relaxed.

Mr. Bryan then proceeded to unfold his theory that the criminal law should be applied to bankers who infringe the 10 per cent. provision.

TREAT IT AS A JOKE.

Unfounded Report That Bishop Dowling Will be Retired.

The statement which appears in United Canada, a Catholic paper published in Ottawa, to the effect that the propaganda at Rome have decided upon retiring several Canadian prelates and that, in addition to Archbishop O'Connor, of Toronto, three other Ontario bishops will soon retire, including the chief pastor of Hamilton, Peterboro, Kingston and probably Ottawa, is given little credence in Catholic circles here, and by the church authorities is treated as a joke.

THE KAISER A CHANGED MAN.

Whilst lighting a cigarette recently the Kaiser set his moustache ablaze. As a result of the necessary trimming the fierce upturned moustache so familiar in his portraits has been altered to what it appears in this, his latest picture. It is said that the Kaiser likes the change, and has prevailed on Wilhelm not to return to the former bellicose style. This portrait was taken after his return from the Island of Corfu.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

Joseph Burns Arrested on That Charge To-day.

A barefaced highway robbery is alleged to have been attempted this morning, and probably would have succeeded but for the prompt action of some employees of F. D. Morden, who runs an electric fixture store on John street. William Chalmers, an ex-soldier, about 38 years of age, was not in very good shape to navigate, and Joseph Burns, a boarder at the "Workman's Home," 46 Jason street east, started to take Chalmers home. When they got to the alley running east off John street, below King, Burns is alleged to have dragged Chalmers into it and trying him down proceeded to go through his pockets. The employees in Morden's saw the operation from the front windows and the police were called. Constable Thompson and Sgt. Walsh went up to the spot on the run and caught Burns with a $1 bill in his hand, which he had apparently just extracted from Chalmers' pocket. They arrested the two men and Burns will come up on a charge of highway robbery, while Chalmers is being held on a drunk charge, to insure his presence in the court.

OFF TO THE BEACH.

This Is Moving Day—Is Water Receding?

"Ho for the Beach!" was the cry to-day. The annual moving is on in earnest. Along the Beach road all day were to be seen loaded vans, Beach cottagers taking advantage of the Saturday, following by a Monday holiday, to get settled in their summer homes. Another indication of the opening of the season was the turning on of the lights last night, by the Radial company, for the first time this season. The sand strip was illuminated from end to end. Beach people believe the tide has turned, and that the water has begun to recede. They think they can perceive a slight backward tendency when the water is still. As rain has been falling almost every day for two or three weeks it will be remarkable if the water does not go higher. It usually begins to recede about the middle of June. There is rejoicing over the disappearance of the sand flies. Last Saturday, Sunday and Monday they were there in millions, but disappeared when the heavy fog came on, and the residents are hoping they will not return.

WELLAND CANAL

Will be Opened This Afternoon—Damage Repaired.

(Special despatch to the Times.) St. Catharines, Ont., May 23.—It is expected that the damages to lock IS, new canal, done by the steamer D. D. Calvin yesterday forenoon, will be repaired and navigation resumed this afternoon. Three gates were carried away, and the boat itself considerably damaged about the stern. The engineer, it is said, mistook the signals, and the boat came up against the head gates of the lock with such force that she broke away both gates. The flood of water let loose from the upper level carried her back through the foot gates, carrying one of them away, and turning her completely around in the lower level. The damage is estimated at about $5,000.

Steamers Macassa and Modjeska Service For Victoria Day.

The Hamilton Steamboat Company, with their two fine steamers, will give a service of six round trips on the holiday. The two steamers are well-known to the travelling public for safety and comfort. The return fare is only 50 cents, good returning until Tuesday. Three late trips on Monday, leaving Toronto 5.15, 8.00 and 11 p. m.

THE MAN IN OVERALLS

No Times on Monday.

Fly the flags.

Hear MacKay on Tuesday.

Register to-night. Last time of calling.

Scott, the most unpopular man in all Hamilton, will be home to-night.

Come up to the Liberal rooms this evening, and see what you can do to help elect the candidates.

What has Whitney got against Hamilton, anyway?

No fireworks during the unveiling.

We hope for Queen's weather on the holiday.

No wonder the power contracts are being hidden from the people.

Keep date open for Tuesday evening. MacKay will be here.

Again, I say, register.

I am glad the aldermen refused to be fluffed by the Mayor on the power contract.

Self-preservation is the first law of nature. The Crown Point people will try to protect themselves from the fire fiend.

That machine procession to the most unpopular man in Hamilton is the limit. What a farce!

The three best looking ladies on the grounds at J. Walter Gage's great sale of building lots on Victoria Day at Burlington will get a cash prize each. The judges will be young men, who are half expected to select wives for themselves at the same time. Get busy.

The prisoners had great luck with the grand jury this week.

Better close up the Jolley Cut altogether than have it in its present dangerous condition.

The Dundas Star cannot for the life of it say a good word for Gordon Wilson. Poor Gordon!

Instead of studying technical education in Europe as Dr. Carr would have us believe, Mr. Scott was having a good time over in Paris and other European capitals.

The proposed street railway extensions are well worth fighting for. They are extensions that could not be got except by a give and take policy.

Now, don't crowd too much at the unveiling on Monday. Give the other fellow a chance.

QUEEN VICTORIA.

The unveiling of the Queen's statue on Monday next calls up to my mind the first occasion on which I saw her late Majesty Queen Victoria. I was then a wee bare-footed lad, living in a small town at the foot of the Grampian hills, where Norval's father "feeds his flock." It was at this railway station where she annually left the train and posted across the hills to her beloved Balmoral. The scene is still fresh and green in my memory. There were the little wooden station, the scarlet cloth carpeting the platform, a contingent of Highland soldiers from Aberdeen lined the outside of the platform, the expectant crowd stood motionless as the royal train came to a stop. In a moment or two a car door is thrown open and several officers with clanking swords and in gay uniforms stepped on to the little platform. These were followed by a gentleman or two in plain dress, then several ladies, ladies-in-waiting no doubt, left the car. Then after a few minutes of suspense, while the natives seemed to hold their breath, Her Majesty herself alighted from the train, the Highland pipers struck up a royal welcome and her loyal lieges cheered and cheered. With a smile and a courtesy she stood a moment, and then the Prince Consort, her husband, followed amid much cheering. After them came the princes and princesses, half a dozen or so, most of them in Highland kilts, with their nurses and tutors. Outside the station grounds five or six carriages were in waiting, and as it took some few minutes to get all the party seated, and the carriages were open, your humble servant, small as he was, stood for some time face to face with the Queen, and also closely scanned the lad who is now our King, as well as his brothers and sisters. There were no police there—none were needed. I imagine I can see the Queen now as she seated herself in the open carriage, with the Prince and a lady-in-waiting, for their long drive across the moors. She smiled and bowed to those who stood around, and seemed to be so happy. I remember there were four horses in her carriage, with a driver on the seat, and two postillions or outriders on the leading horses. How I envied those outriders. While they waited two officers on prancing steeds rode up, one on each side of the royal carriage. Then with a crack of the long whip, the horses gave a plunge forward, the Queen again bowed and smiled, and the last stage of the trip to Balmoral was begun. For several years I saw the same scene repeated. The last time I saw Her Majesty was in the city of Edinburgh. But it was not the same Queen. The light of her life had gone out. It was a sad fact, pale little woman I saw. She was then a widow.

SENTENCE OF DEATH ON GIUSEPPE GRECO.

40,000 Deaths.

Mobasa, British East Africa, May 23.—Over 40,000 deaths have resulted from the severe famine prevailing in the Usoga Province of Uganda. The Government is feeding 50,000 of the natives. Crops are a complete failure, and there is a prospect of much suffering during the next few months.

THE CAR STRIKE.

No Further Trouble With Cleveland Street Railway.

Men to Vote Upon Arbitration Proposition.

Cleveland, O., May 23.—Marked by a night of absolute quiet in contrast with the violence of the preceding twenty-four hours negotiations for peace in the street car traffic were continued this morning. The declaration of Glenn K. Shurtleff to act as third arbitrator, brought with it the necessity of further discussion of a name to complete the proposed arbitration board.

Only the matter of the disposition of the men pending the arbitration proceedings prevented a vote on the arbitration articles being taken last night. President Dupont refused to accept Avery's suggestion that the strikers, pending arbitration, take their old positions. An alternative suggestion that the arbitration board at once decide the position of the men during arbitration was also rejected by President Dupont of the Municipal Street Railway Co. The company formulated articles of submission to arbitration to go to the men today together with a counter proposition that, pending arbitration, enough men to complete the service will be taken back, those hired losing their seniority.

It is the opinion of Vice-President Behner and President Farrar, of the local union that the men will emphatically vote down the arbitration proposal of the company. The vote will be taken today. "The men will vote 'yes' or 'no' upon a proposition to submit to full arbitration their seniority rights, and the binding force of the Cleveland electric railway company's labor agreement upon the new company."

AFTER LAMPHERE.

More Ghastly Finds at the Graveyard of Mrs. Guinness.

Laporte, Ind., May 23.—The grand jury this afternoon returned seven indictments against Ray Lamphere, one each for the murder of Mrs. Belle Guinness, Philip Guinness, Lucy Sorenson and Myrtle Sorenson by destroying the Guinness house; one for arson, one for the murder of Andrew Helgelein on January 14th, and one for being accessory to Mrs. Guinness in the murder of Helgelein.

After ten days' delay, digging on the Guinness farm in search for more bodies was resumed early to-day by order of Sheriff Smutzer and Coroner Mack. The entire garden where the "graveyard" of Mrs. Guinness' victims was located will now be dug up. The basement floor on the site of the Guinness home and the ground near the rows of evergreen trees will be excavated.

Jewelry belonging to May O'Reilly, who lived in Troup street, Rochester, N.Y., was found by Sheriff Smutzer, who communicated the fact to the Rochester police. They reported by telegram to-day that the woman disappeared from her home several months ago.

Sheriff Smutzer this afternoon found a skull in a vault on the Guinness farm. It is believed to be the skull of the body found in the graveyard last week.

Coroner Mack to-day received the following telegram from C. W. McLaughlin of Dayton, Ohio: "Have you any Guinness effects marked 'L. T. P.'?"

GOING SOME.

From New York to England in Thirty Hours in Airship.

New York, May 23.—Announcement was made last night by John P. Holland, inventor of submarine boats, that he is at work on an airship, in which he expects within five years to be able to travel from this city to England in thirty hours.

"I fully expect my airship will be capable of a speed of one hundred miles an hour," said Mr. Holland. "I expect also that this speed will be attained within five years. I have already built six airships, three of which have been successful. If there comes that high development in airships that I confidently expect, steamships will be things of the past. We shall travel in the air."

Execution to Take Place August 21.

Appeal For Executive Clemency.

Grand Jury Wants Bruno Deported.

With the courtroom as solemn as death itself, Chief Justice Mulock passed the sentence of death upon Giuseppe Greco at 9.30 this morning. He is to be executed on the 21st day of August. His Lordship made a somewhat lengthy address before passing the sentence, and toward the last of it was unable to control himself. His voice broke, and it was with difficulty that his Lordship was able to finish the last words, "and may God have mercy on you."

Greco took his sentence with the same calmness as has marked his conduct throughout the trial, and beyond a slight paling of the face, one would have been unable to tell what was passing through his mind. Leopoldi Scarrone was the interpreter, who spoke the sentence to Greco, and it was a trying ordeal for him to pass through, to speak the sentence of death on one of his own countrymen.

"Ask the prisoner, Mr. Interpreter, if there is any reason why sentence should not be passed," said his Lordship.

"He says, your Lordship, 'I have nothing to say,'" replied Mr. Scarrone.

"Giuseppe Greco, to permit to fall from my lips," said his Lordship, "a single unnecessary word in addressing you would be a great burden, and would indeed be an unpardonable cruelty. It is my aim to pronounce with all possible tenderness the dread sentence of the law, in your case. As a rule when a man commits a crime such as you have, one can point to some compelling motive, but in your case the evidence fails to disclose a motive for your action. There has been no evidence put in to show that the relations between the deceased and you were strained. There is nothing to show that you are a criminal, and with this single exception, your record in Canada has been one of a law-abiding citizen. Your fate should serve as a warning for others that they are not to carry weapons for purposes of murder."

"It is not for me to hold out any hope that the extreme penalty as provided by the law, will be interfered with by the Executive, which is the only authority that can be appealed to in your case, and I would be very glad to see you are on earth, that you seek forgiveness for your sins, and be penitent."

"The jury having passed sentence on you it is only for me to name the date on which you shall be executed. It is further to your credit that you have been a good son to your mother and father at home in Italy, by sending them substantial sums of money for their maintenance. It seems incredible that you should have yielded to the impulse of the moment, in committing this awful deed. The law of the land permits no one to take the law in his own hands."

"Your counsel has said that your parents wish to come to this country for the purpose of saying farewell to you, and owing to their poor condition in life, (Continued on page 7.)

WAS SWEET FOR GEORGE SUGAR.

TWO CHARGES AGAINST HIM DISMISSED AND COMPLAINT HELD.

Case of George Fisher, of Crown Point, Stands—Prisoner Pleads Guilty of Stealing Bicycles.

George Sugar, 133 Sherman avenue north, was arrested last night on a charge of assaulting Miika Pitkovic, a woman who worked for him. He also sued Sugar for $72 wages. This morning she did not want to prosecute, and the Magistrate ordered her to pay $10 costs or to go to jail. She was taken to the coop, but George came to the rescue with $3, and she was allowed to go at half rate.

William Miller, pleader, charged with stealing two bicycles on Thursday night last. The complainants were Wm. Walton and A. J. Medler. Constable Tuck traced Miller, and arrested him last night. He elected to be sentenced by the Magistrate, and was remanded till Tuesday.

Harry and Robert Ainsborough, 357 John street north, were found guilty of being drunk and disorderly last night, and were fined $5 each. They were fighting when Constable Duffy ran them in.

George Fisher, Crown Point, charged with threatening Fred Ravert, a street car conductor, who would not let him smoke a cigar in the car, and with acting disorderly on the car, was up this morning, but as the complainant was not ready his case was laid over till Tuesday. In the meantime he goes free on his own recognizance.

Gebhardt Hummel was sued by Mary Midwinter for $17 wages. Geb tried to prove that he did not owe a thing, but the Magistrate gave judgment for $11.

Edward Doyle, 29 Steacie street, was charged with breaking W. Tomes' sign in front of the store. He pleaded not guilty and was allowed to go. The case was not dismissed, however, and further enquiries will be made.

Dennis Mullaly is a cigarmaker and claims to be a union man, but in hard luck. He was pinched for vagrancy, and unless he can prove that he is a union man he will go down to the pen. He was given till next Wednesday to get proof.
