I have much pleasure in announcing to my customers and the general public that I will make them my annual call with a full line of goods from the above mills which will consist of

YARNS, SHIRTINGS, FLANNELS, BLANKETING, RUGGING, HOME-SPUNS, TWEEDS, OVERCOAT-INGS, AND DRESS GOODS.

These goods need no introduction to you as for the past ten years I have called upon you. You have seen that great improvements have been made each year in the style, coloring and finish and this year is no exception. I am confident that I can offer you goods not excelled by any mills in the maritime provinces, and as this will be the last season I will call on you in this century I trust you will continue to give me the patronage you have so generously bestowed in the past and assist me to make my sales the largest of any year I have had the pleasure of dealing with you. I am,

Yours very truly, CAMBRIDGE, April 7th, 1899. Michael T. Coholan,

THE LANDLORD AND THE BOY.

landlord to a boy; 'Tis the cosiest, jolliest that ever you did spy, The way into my bar-room is past a hand-And I have many things to show which you have never seen." 'Oh, no, no!" said the bright eyed boy, "to ask me is in vain, For who goes in your jolly room can ne'er come out unstained.

"I'm sure you must be dreary, and I can give you joy; Will you have a jolly time to-night? said the landlord to the boy, There are pretty pictures hung around, at the games you've a chance to win, And if you'd like to rest awhile I'll gladly show you in." 'Oh, no, no!" said the bright eyed boy, "for I've often heard the tune, They never like to work again who in your saloon."

Said the cunning landlord to the boy, a large green N, which had "strayed" "Dear boy, what can I do To prove the warm affection I've always felt for you? have within my bar room good store all, I think,

I'm sure you're very welcome, will you please to take a drink?" Oh, no, no!" said the bright eyed boy,

"Kind sir, that cannot be; 've heard what's in your bar room and do not wish to see."

'Noble boy!" said the landlord, "you're witty and your wise.

How handsome is your gay how brilliant are your eyes, have a little glass of wine upon my room shelf.

If you'll step in one moment you have it all yourself." "I thank you, gentle sir," he said, "for what you've said to me. And bidding you good evening now, I'll It's exceedingly bad form.

come some night and see."

The landlord turned him round about and went into his den, For well he knew the silly soon be back again,

So he "set up a little job" with in his saloon.

And had all his musicians to play a lively

A slave to drink he continued to be, until in death he fell; 'No drunkard shall God's kingdom see, what a sad fate to tell!

And now, my dear young friends, who have this story heard, To flattering words and tempting wines, remember "No" is the word; Keep away from saloons and gambling dens; they give no lasting joy;

And learn a lesson from this tale of landlord and the boy. WHISKEY DID IT.

The following true tale of the work of the whiskey demon is recorded

Such a wail as came from the boy! And he was only a boy, for what else is a lad of hineteen? And now he stood there on the side Liver Oil in the market walk wringing his hands and crying out in agony, and the officer's hand was on his shoulder, and the crowd around him was crying out, too. "He's killed him" said one, "let's hang nim to a lamppost." "Oh, mother, mother!" wailed the boy,

'wake up! Oh! I've killed her too; let me "Come with me," said the officer, somebody else will take care of your nother, and we'll take care of you." "I didn't do it; God knows I didn't do it; the whiskey did it!" cried the boy as the officer led him away. No, he had not done it, and the whiskey had; but the law does not try whis-

Whiskey had not followed the man ou of the saloon and beat his brains out with piece of board. The boy had not really one it either; for he had not known what he did, and when he was himsel nothing could induce him to do such deed. And yet he was the motor, of rather whiskey was the motor and he the machine it moved. He was the one who went to prison. His mother was the one who lay dead from grief. It was his hand that bore the stain of a mother's blood. And whiskey did it. And men in that town allowed it to be done. It made business lively. "There can be no town without liquor; that is no town of any life," they said.

Yes, business was made lively, the saloon keeper had something to do, then the officer of the law had the pleasure of taking the boy to jail, the corner had the excitement of an inquest, and the undertaker sold two coffins. Grim sort of ousiness, isn't it! But that is the kind whiskey furnishes:-Religious Telescope

Experiment Stations.

One trouble with thousands of farmers throughout the country is that they are not practical enough to catch on to the many good things that the agricultural experiment stations are constantly finding out for their benefit. While in som cases those in charge of experiment stations, have proved incompetent for the position, the majority have done and are

Farming in the Maritime Provinces

Differs materially from farming in Ontario and the West. Condit-ions are different and our markets net the same. A product profitable in those sections would not pay the tillage here, and a suggestion valuable to a westner, would prove disastrous if followed by our farmers. In subscribing for a agricultural publication it is well to bear this in mind. There's only one paper that treats of farming from a Maritine Province standpoint. It is the
