The Dawson provision In the end Mr. Lawrence moved, and the meeting carried unanimously, a resolution in favor of free trade and in support of the government. The platform was deserted suddenly by the Heinze, the copper magnate, who was all eft in possession.

In the end Mr. Lawrence moved, and in spite of the most vigor ous search by police and residents, not the slightest trace has been found of the child. Every possible clue was followed, but without result.
