The Government is fully prepared for trouble in Ulster. The Irish Times says that the anti-Home Rulers may make good their threats of revolt, but their revolt will not last long, because all preparations have been made for suppressing it with the utmost vigour. The proceedings of the Ulster Rifle Club are being watched with the keenest interest, continues the Times, and conferences are being held between the heads of the military constabulary and the officials at Dublin Castle. Military plans have been completed to cope with any emergency. Belfast has been carefully mapped out with the purpose of dealing with any disturbance there. Cipher messages are constantly passing between Dublin Castle and the Home Office.

The dramatic arrest and execution of several generals, including Chang Chen Wu, alleged to be the head of the recently unearthed plot at Hankow, have recently caused intense excitement in the Chinese capital. According to the correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, the army officers arrived openly at Peking a few days ago. President Yuan Shi Kai received a number of secret messages from General Luen Heng, Vice-President of China, proving the complicity of the generals in the recent abortive revolution, and the President acted with such swiftness that escape was impossible. The generals were seized in the dead of night, and two of the leaders were shot after being tried by a drumhead court-martial. The other officers were returned in chains to Hankow, and there executed.

A thrilling tale of impenetrable fog and deadly ice, is told by Capt. Anderson, of the Norwegian steamer Spiral, which docked to-day with pitch pine from Jacksonville, Florida. The Spiral was eleven days on the voyage; she was two days lying off Green Islands. She had a narrow escape colliding with ice off Newfoundland. The ship was creeping along very slowly when ice was seen ahead. Engines were reversed and the vessel thrown to starboard, passing the berg by less than the ship's length. "I have been 26 years at sea, but never saw such ice and fog in my life," declared the Captain.

After a woman has put the season's pack of crabapple jelly and seen all of it eaten by her husband's relative, she will wait the judgment day with mixed feelings of pleasure and pain.

It is very difficult to eat jelly in a composed and fluent manner, as it is liable to slip off and emblazon red footprints on somebody's shirtfront. It requires the delicacy and judgment of distance of a slack rope walker to transfer a cross section of grape jelly to the mouth while mingling gaily in the conversation.

Jelly is also used to pad the human backbone. It is very useful in great political crises, and has enabled many a man to tell the bandwagon from the hearse. The average political backbone is composed of nine parts jelly and one part sea foam which give it its positive and fearless character.

Trapping Over.

From Capt. Barbour we learn that the trap voyage is over to the northward. At nearly all the settlements traps are taken in for the season. From all accounts the aggregate catch is estimated to be well above the average while the amount taken by each trap is approximately 200 quintals. Around Fogo and Twillingate and further north exceptionally good fishing has been done throughout while from Bonavista south the catch is even ahead of the average.

At the initial stage of the voyage, according to the large catches reported, the outlook appeared to be unusually bright, but subsequently unfavourable weather hampered operations a great deal.

Jelly.

BY H. L. RANN.

Jelly is a non intoxicating mixture which is used to stimulate the appetites of people who are ready to adjourn after the third course.

It is a very wobbly and in firm piece of goods, with a thick, bland turned leg; which are continually giving away a the knees and falling face downward on a new tablecloth.

Jelly is made on the hottest day in the summer and eaten whenever there is company. It comes in several different tints, which will match anything except the hired man's appetite, and on this account vies with the revolving vinegar cruet as a table decoration.

Making jelly in the dog days is one of the warmest occupations known in any civilized tongue.

After a woman has put the season's pack of crabapple jelly and seen all of it eaten by her husband's relative, she will wait the judgment day with mixed feelings of pleasure and pain.

Lower Island Cove Regatta

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Please allow space in your highly esteemed paper for the following:—On Thursday 15th, inst., the Sunday School of Lower Island Cove held its annual picnic. It has always been a day anxiously looked forward to by young and old; but yesterday the interest was increased one hundred fold when it was known that there would be races on the pond. Hundreds were at the appointed place long before the time and when the races started the pond was lined with spectators. Four boats were on the pond, the Beothic, Myrtle, Crimson Arrow and Volunteer. It was, at first, expected that there would be many more races than there were, but expectations were doomed to disappointment, there being only three races for the day. At 3.30 p.m. the first race began, the results being as follows:—

Fishermen.—Four boats entered, the contestants being north side versus south side, two boats from each. Beothic, (South Side), J. J. Wheeler, cox.; E. Reid, stroke; W. G. Morris, E. Wheeler, H. Morris, Myrtle (North Side), E. LeShane, cox.; W. T. Cooper, stroke; H. Bursey, W. Snelgrove, A. Cooper, Crimson Arrow, (South Side), J. Faulkner, cox.; H. Lewis, stroke; C. Morris, S. Garland, T. Morris, Volunteer, (North Side), L. Snelgrove, cox.; W. Broderick, stroke; J. Gillingham, S. Johnson, J. Bursey.

At the start the Beothic took the lead followed closely by the Myrtle which soon worked its way ahead and kept that position up the pond, being the first to turn the buoy, followed closely by the Beothic with the Crimson Arrow and Volunteer hard by. The Myrtle kept the lead on the homeward stretch until half way, when the Aborigines seemed to be renewed with fresh vigour. Slowly but surely they found their way ahead. When within 50 yards of the winning post, with that determination and vim which fishermen know how to show, they put on an extra pound and came in two lengths ahead of the Myrtle with the Crimson Arrow third and the Volunteer last. Time, 6.35.

Students.—Beothic, (South Side), B. Morris, cox.; K. Morris, stroke, H. Garland, E. Turner, A. Hudson, Myrtle, (North Side), J. Gillingham, cox.; U. Bursey, stroke, H. Wiltshire, C. Garland, S. G. Garland. At the start the Myrtle took the lead and held it for half way, when the Beothic caught up, and both boats were equal until on the homeward stretch when the Beothic began to work ahead. About three fourths down the South Side boys began to show what they could do and found the winning post four lengths ahead of the Myrtle.

Juveniles.—Beothic, (South Side), K. Driscoll, cox.; K. Lewis, stroke, H. Cooper, A. Morris, J. Driscoll, Myrtle, (North Side), A. LeShane, cox.; H. Turner, stroke, R. LeShane, G. Gillingham, A. Vail. In this race the Myrtle took the lead at the start and although the Beothic's crew gave them all they could do; yet they were determined to win, and came in two lengths ahead of the Beothic.

The next item was not the least on the programme. Winners and losers alike as well as the spectators, all forgot their differences in trying to build up the inner man from a tea furnished by the ladies. After tea the Superintendent of the Sunday School, M. A. G. Hudson, J. P., presented the prizes to the winners. The young people then retired to the Orange Hall where games were indulged in until the wee sma' hours. This was the first time that races were held here, but no one will say it is the last. Our people here will look forward to (as one worthy person expressed it) at least one whole holiday every year. Thanking you for space.

Yours truly,

K. MORRIS.

Secretary Regatta Committee.

Gets $40,000 for a Meal.

Petersburg, Ind., August 10.—Several years ago a tramp appeared at the kitchen in which Maggie Drain was working and asked for something to eat. The family in which she was employed as a servant protested, and on hour later he returned with a paper which he handed to her, charging her to keep it. It proved to be a document giving to the girl the property of Marshall McMurrin at his death.

McMurrin owned a farm in an adjoining county, and when he died, a year ago, the document was presented and claim to his property made. The relatives of McMurrin sought to break the will, but to-day it was sustained by the court, and Miss Drain will get about $40,000.

BRIGADE SUNDAY.—Hundreds of people from the city visited the C. L. B. and C. C. C. members in camp yesterday. At 2.30 the excursion train left town. Twelve cars which were filled with passengers were attached to the engine.

A Cowardly Act.

On Saturday evening as an inmate of the Poor Asylum who is commonly known as "Doctor Neil," and who is harmless, was passing Duckworth Street, he was accosted by an unknown drunken scamp, who gave him a blow of his fist, without any provocation. The "doctor" feeling the effects of the blow almost collapsed. The cowardly inebriate started to grin, evidently enjoying what he had done and walked off. It was a pity there was not a police officer to give the would be "pugilist" what he deserved.

Squid Bait Badly Wanted.

The constant cry for squid everywhere is getting to be an alarming matter and may seriously affect both the bank and shore codfishery on the whole. Since they took in their traps fishermen to the northward have done practically nothing with the jigger owing to the absence of squid, which have not yet made their appearance anywhere. The oldest inhabitant does not remember the squid "school" being as late striking in as this present season.
