The Island of Jamaica was struck by a hurricane for the third time today in as many years. The gale was not of excessive violence in Kingston

No details are available from the in-British Official: British troops after repulsing a German attack northeast of Langemarck in Flanders early to-day attacked in turn and captured additional defences from the Germans as well as a number of prisoners. An official report from British Headquarters in France to-night adds that on the rest of the Ypres fighting areas the Germans (British?) are consolidating their new positions. So far in recent operations there the British have captured 3,248 prisoners. The text of the statement adds: At dawn to-day an attack delivered by Germany's storming troops northeast of Langemarck was repulsed completely, the enemy leaving 35 prisoners in our hands. English Rifle regiments then attacked in turn and after sharp fighting captured further positions of the German defence system in this neighborhood with a number of prisoners.

On the rest of the battlefield the organization of our newly captured positions is proceeding. Infantry action elsewhere has been confined, etc., etc.FLANDERS BATTLE SLACKENING.LONDON, To-Day.
An official report from British Headquarters in France to-night indicates a great slackening of fighting in Flanders, although mention is made of one hostile attack which was repulsed. So far in the recent operations in the Ypres sector the British have captured 3,248 prisoners. The text reads: Infantry action has been confined to patrol encounters resulting in the capture of a few prisoners.
Our artillery activities continue. Another hostile attack was launched early this morning against the positions we recently captured east of Villerest but was repulsed with enemy losses. Our casualties were light.
Since opening our attack on September 20 we have captured on the Ypres battlefront 3,243 prisoners, including 80 officers. Misty weather on Saturday resulted in a decided decrease in our recent great aerial activity. Our airplanes none the less carried out successful bombing raids and droppedduring the day 134 bombs on hostile bunkers and airdromes. In the course of the night three tons of bombs were dropped on the Roulers-Nolin-Weivoig railways stations. The enemy dropped a few bombs at midday, doing little damage. Four enemy airplanes were brought down in the fight and five were driven down out of control. Two of ours are missing.BRITISH DESTROYER TORPEDOED.LONDON, To-day.

inscribed "very secret." This letter is credited to Judge Cohalan and addressed to Count von Bernstorff. It says: "A revolution in Ireland can only be successful if supported from Germany; otherwise England will be able to suppress it even though it be only after a hard struggle. Therefore help is necessary. This should consist primarily of aerial attacks on England and a diversion of the fleet simultaneously with the Irish revolution. Then, if possible, a landing of troops, arms and ammunition in Ireland and possibly some officers from Zeppelins. This would enable the Irish ports to be closed against England and the establishment of stations for submarines on the Irish coast and the cutting off of the supplies of food for England. The services of the revolution may, therefore, decide war." This letter was signed

Pte. Don Bremner.

The many friends of Pte. "Don" Bremner will regret to hear that he was killed in action while fighting with the Canadians in France, on September 15th. An official message to that effect was received from Ottawa yesterday by his sister, Miss Mary M.
Bremner, 91 Military Road.
Pte. Bremner left here several years ago for Western Canada, where he had enlisted in the early days of the war, leaving for overseas with a draft of engineers. He passed through some stiff engagements, luck being with the gallant young soldier until the fatal day. Left to mourn are two sisters, Misses Mary Mackenzie and Margaret Bremner, of this city, to whom general sympathy will be expressed.

Stranded Steamer Suffers in Storm.

The Belgian relief ship Eburon, which lies a total wreck at Portugal Cove, felt severely a high wind and heavy sea that raged there on Saturday night last. The condition of the stranded steamer, in consequence of the gale, is such as to impede the further work of saving the cargo. A recurrence of such adverse weather, we learn, will see the finish of the Belgian ship.

Centennial Church, the Rev. Dr. Bond, themes. "The shepherds and the wise dealt with and was much appreciated by the large congregation present.

Rotting Grain and Idle Ships.

More than one hundred neutral ships have been waiting two months at our Atlantic ports for export licences which will not be given to them.
Four-fifths of these ships are from Holland. In New York Harbor alone at least seventy Dutch vessels have been seen. A large number have cargoes of wheat and fodder that were placed on board before July 15, when the embargo became effective. The grain is rotting. Thus far the Dutch Government and owners of the ships have refused to unload it. They have rejected our Government's reasonable proposition that they should send the cargoes to Australia, where 150,000,000 bushels of wheat await transportation. Surely they will not be permitted to carry their cargoes of American grain to Holland or any other European neutral country. This was the decision of our Exports Council before Sweden's foul work for Germany in the case of Argentina's ships was brought to light, and the disclosures do not suggest any relaxation of the strict embargo on exports to Sweden, Norway, Holland, and Denmark. But the cargoes have not been disturbed, and all these ships are idle.We and those associated with us in the war need ships for ocean work.
Our Government is taking vessels for this work from the coastwise service, filling the places of some of them with carriers drawn from the Great Lakes. There is pending in Congress a bill, which has much support, to permit use of foreign ships in our coast trade and while the need and demand are so great, all these large carriers are lying idle in our harbors, and no plans for moving them have been made known.When we think of the suffering Belgians and the food requirements of our allies, to allow these grain cargoes to rot seems almost a crime.
This food should be saved. And the ships would not be idle. They should be doing work to relieve the lack of sufficient ocean tonnage. If those who control them will not accept the fair propositions of the export authorities, our Government should take possession of the vessels, unload them and then use them in war service.
Under international law it has a right to take them, making proper payment. We should save the grain and set the ships at work.—N. Y. Times.TO ENTER MCGILL.—Master Charles Fox, son of Mr. John Fox, left by with piles since. I am now seventy years of age and want to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all sufferers from piles. My wife has used it for itching skin and obtained complete cure."Dr. Donald M. Campbell, Campbell's Mountain, N.S., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment with great success for hemorrhoids or piles of fifteen years standing. After trying all kinds of so-called pile cures, three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment gave me a complete cure. I have also used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and there are no others so good. You may Lens is Little Better Than Death Trap for the Germans There.

Their Position is Abominable and Life in the Tunnels and Cellars Defending the City is Very Dread—There They Live in Terror and Some Prefer to Face Almost Certain Death in the Open to Remaining in their Dungeons.

(By PHILIP GIBBS.)

War Correspondents' Headquarters, Sept. 17.—The Germans still hold Lens. Saturday I saw more closely than I had before how abominable is their position there and how dreadful must be the fate of the men garrisoned in its cellars. Lens is no longer a city; it is a ruin, surrounded with ruins stretching for several miles on each side of it, where there were separate little cities self-contained, with their own power stations and pit-heads, high slag-heaps and long rows of miners' houses, shops, schools and gardens.The Canadian and English troops during the five months' of fighting have captured all the outer belt of these mining cities, and their artillery and the enemy's has left nothing of all the neat little houses and mine buildings but a wild orgy of ruin throughout which I walked yesterday on my way to Hill 70, where the Canadians took by a great assault a few weeks ago.
Lens itself is now no better than its outer suburbs. It is a town of battered houses without roofs and with broken walls leading against rubbish heaps of brickwork and timber.The enemy sent out a wireless message that the English gunners were destroying French property by bombarding the city, and then made a deep belt of destruction by blowing up long blocks of streets. After that the British guns completed the ruin, for there was a German garrison in every house, and in this kind of warfare there must be no tenderness of sentiment about bricks and mortar if the enemy is between the walls. So now in Lens the only cover for the Germans and their only chance of safety is below the ground in tunnels and cellars. These are reinforced by concrete and were built by the forced labor of civilians two years and more ago, when the city was menaced by a French attack. Into these tunnels the German garrison of Lens made their way by night, and in them they live and die. Many die in them, it is certain, for a tunnel is no more than a death trap when it is blocked at the entrance by the fall of houses or when it collapses by the bombardment of heavy shells, which pierce deep and explode with fearful effect. That has happened, as we know, in many parts of the German line, and recently on the French front whole companies of German soldiers were buried alive in deep caves. It is happening in Lens now, if the same effect is produced by the same power of artillery.But death comes to the German soldiers there in another way, without any noise and quite invisible and very horrible in its quietude. Many times lately the Canadians have filled the city of Lens with gas that kills and soaks down heavily into the dugouts and tunnels and stifles the men in their sleep, before they have time to stretch out their hands for gas masks, or make them die with their long. The enemy, who was first to use poison gas should wish to God he had never betrayed his soul by such a thing, for it has come back upon him as a frightful retribution, and in Lens, in those deep, dark cellars below the ruins, the German soldiers must live in terror and be afraid to sleep. Yesterday, when I went to that neighborhood I saw four German soldiers who had come out into the open, preferring to risk death there rather than stay in their dungeons. They appeared for a minute around the corner of some brick stacks in Cite St.
Auguste. I was watching the German lines there and staring at the ruined houses, slag-heaps and broken water towers of Harnes and Annay, beyond the other fields of the mining city.
The church towers in both these villages still stand, though a little damaged, and some of the red roofs are still intact.The German lines were away beyond the strip of No Man's Land, and here not a soul was to be seen—no trace of life in all this land of death—until suddenly I saw those four figures come stealthily up behind the brick stacks. They stood up quite straight and looked toward the British ground, and then after a second crouched low, so that only their heads showed above a little dip in the ground. A few minutes later I saw two more Germans. They ran at a jog trot along a hedge outside Cite St. Auguste and made a bolt through a gap.It was strange to see them, as if they were visitors from another planet, for in this district of Lens no man shows his body above ground unless he is careless of quick death. And he may stare for days at empty houses and broken mine shafts and great slag-heaps without seeing any living being.It does not cost you any more
