Canines May Now Run at Large Without a Muzzle Adornment.

Ald. Cooper appeared as the champion of the canines of the city at last night's council meeting, and he moved that the muzzle bylaw be rescinded, and the "curse thereby be taken from the suffering animals." The mayor said he thought the bylaw might as well be rescinded now as later, but it would be necessary to give notice of motion to repeal the bylaw, which would mean that it could not be rescinded until next meeting.

Ald. Cooper then asked that the police be instructed to issue no further summons for people whose dogs are found running unmuzzled.

Ald. Forristal said all the dogs in the city should be shot, as they are a "You talk of suffering dogs," said. "What about suffering people?" It was finally decided to have the mayor ask the chief of police to intruct his men to take no further notice of unmuzzled dogs until such time as the bylaw can be repealed. The next meeting of the council will be held on Aug. 21, unless a special meeting should be called.
