City's Transportation Problem Again Darkens Municipal

INQUIRY PROMISED

London transportation problems, laid aside for the summer months, were taken from the mothballs at last night's city council session and gathering clouds now darken a sky that has long been tranquil. Aldermen flung multitudinous questions and demands at the mayor and into the thin air.

Two things were accomplished. The mayor promises a meeting of 28, in order to postpone legislative the special committee on South London service conditions will be held don service conditions will backed activated studge sewage disposal plant at Front street was sanctioned plant at Front street was sanctioned at a cost of $10,916. "Anything doing about the street "Anything doing about the street Baker street, Ridout street, the railway this week?" queried Ald. Ridgeway, Price street, Arundell James McCormick at the close of an otherwise peaceful meeting. Then came a flood or offerings.

"Can't we get Mr. Currie to come avenue, curb and gutter on Cam-over and see the tracks in London bridge street, curb and gutter on St West?" pleaded Ald. Linnell.

"The street railway manager, Mr. Aldermen McKay, Douglass, Cars-Tait, admitted that London West well, Clift, Bottrill, Linnell, McCor-Tait, admitted that London well, this and Ashton voted against Ald. had the worst tracks in the city," mick and Ashton voted against Ald. Smith's scheme to call for tenders pointed out Ald. Harry Bottrill. "But they have found money to fix up Dundas and York streets first. Why pany was finally passed on a twowas that?"

Mayor Wenige suggested that the council ought to ask the company for some concrete proposition. "It won't do any harm to ask." he added. "Along what line?" demanded Ald.

Ald. Bottrill was all for getting Dundas street west fixed up. He wanted the tracks there put in the wanted the tracks there put in the center of the road so that the city could pave its portion of the street. "We should ask the company if they will kindly tear up their tracks in London west and carry them in London west and carry them away." suggested Ald. Linnell.

"The service in London South is rotten," declared Ald, Paul Doig, falling in line with London West's protesting aldermen. He did not like the idea of a "waiting" policy. "The trouble is that while we are doing all trouble is that while we are doing all this waiting, the people are walking.

Ald. Frank McKay broke the silence on street railway matters by suggesting that the mayor was pressented as having a supprise in store agented as having a surprise in store for the transportation puzzle fans. But his worship had no secret to divulge, save to suggest that Ald. divulge, save to suggest that Ald. McKay, Ald. Douglass, Ald. Former Premier of Ontario Receives Request To Take Leadership.

REMAINS UNDECIDED

Uncertain Whether To Enter Provincial or Federal Political Arena.

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, Sept. 8 .- Recording their confidence in E. C. Drury, former premier of Ontario, a convention of Progressive members of the Ontario legislature and the defeated candidates of the party at the last provincial election, by resolution this afternoon invited him to again undertake the leadership of the Ontario Progressive party.

Among many other things, esolution declared that the present provincial government had failed to grapple with the social, economic and political problems, was subservient to the liquor interests and had ent to the liquor interests and has not reliable leadership. Mr. Drury, it said, had not governed by order-in-council, but in accordance with the principles of democratic representative government, and he had passed into law a body of social and economic legislation unequalled by any other government in a corres-ponding period in the history of the province. His promises had been kept, and he introduced no act which required to be defended by subterfuge, falsehood or false pretence.

After claiming that the Drury government had recovered more that one and a half million dollars through investigating the crown lands department, the resolution as:
