Letting the Cat Out of the Eag.

[Kingston Ness.]

In a recent atticle we draw attention to the public interest of the University question, and pointed out that it involved the important issue whether Quen's is or is not to have legal recognition of her relation to the High School system of the country, and whether the Government of Outsroo is prepared to perpetuate the disabilities under which, as compared with Toronto University, she labors, or intends to put her on the same footing in this important particular as Toronto University: This is the true significance of the appeal she has made to the Overnment for representation with the other Universities upon a joint board for the regulation, under departmental control, of our High School work.

Here is the true reason at last. First we were told the agitation was to improve the matriculation standard; now it is to give Queen's legal recognition of her relations to the High School system! This is "the true improvement of the system!" ace" at last.

STREETER AND THE MILLERS

STREETER AND THE MILLERS.

He tells me he has been slaving all these years and all he has is a mill and a farm and him to one of my neighbors to supper. It was very touching to hear him speak of his grievances and see him eat plate after plate of meat. My neighbor got very low spirited as the miller threatened the Government and helped himself to the pia. He would never, he said, vote for a candidate-who wouldn't support millers, and he got very excited when the hear was brought in. He said for years the lost was brought in. He said for years along the said seems and the other power. It is undoubtedly the best straw and ensilage cutter in the market, and parties requiring such an article should see this one. the beer was brought in. He said for years should see this one, the millers had wished to be placed on an James sven footing with the States, and he praised my friend's American cheese for half an hour. Then he went on to say that all flourimported should be inspected officially and he began to inspect his empty plate so closely that it had to be replenished. There is only one way of reaching the Government, said he, and that is as easy as I can take some of these oranges. As I had an engagement I left him growing eloquent on the tariff and cutting up Sir John Macdonald and some choice smoking mixtures.

James Copeland is located in Front-street south of Roy's brawery, and manufactures all kinds of harness, making a specialty of fine harness. He is well known as a practical and efficient work-man, and his manufactures are justly celebrated for durability and beauty of finish. Wherever he exhibite he takes first prize, and his work has given Belleville a high reputation in this particular line. In addition to a stock of harness he keeps on hand collars, whips, combs, wraps, oils, hoof ointment and all the supplies usually found in a first-class harness-shop. As I had an engagement I left him growing eloquent on the tariff and cutting up Sir John Macdonald and some choice smoking mixture. I believe that the "miller" who has the most influence to-day is John L. Sullivan.
