MABEL'S CHITCHAT

The Gilded Youth of Today Is a Fastidious Person.

EPONGE FOR MOTOR BONNETS.

Any Woman May Make Traveling by Sleeping Car Almost Comfortable by Observing a Little Forethought in Planning Her Equipment.

My Dear Elsa—Don't you think men are more fastidious about small things than women? I have reached the conclusion that they are, and I was made to reflect upon this subject the other day when Dick, speaking about a girl whom he had met lately, agreed that she was mighty good looking, etc. "But," he added, "I don't like looking at her. Her hair is never tidy, pieces of it stream down the back, and there is something about the back of her waist that is disorderly."

I am giving you his own masculine expressions. I really think neatness appeals immensely to men. Soiled gloves, crushed handkerchiefs, untidy footgear have probably done more to disillusion the masculine creature than the culprits who permit themselves these disorders ever imagine.

I think men are more fastidious than women about food and table appointments. They don't insist upon the latest styles in centerpieces or small silver, but they demand a certain general average of good form, one might call it, in the appearance of the table and in the attractive serving of viands. Perhaps this is because women are habituated to the seamy side of cooking and to the sight of uncooked articles. Men see only the results of all these processes, some of them disagreeable enough, whereas even the most fastidious mistress sometimes, however reluctantly, comes upon the kitchen operator in the midst of a far from aesthetic task. Yes, the gilded youth of today is a most fastidious person. His chief cult is himself, and anything that jars upon his sensitive nerves and his "culture" seems a heinous offense.

Now let's talk about motor bonnets. You're interested in them, and so am I, although I only ride in the cars of friends. Still one has to have suitable togs even for these occasional spins.

One of the most satisfactory materials I have found for the summer motor bonnet is sponge. It sheds the dust quickly, and if saturated with dirt and the stains of travel it can be easily laundered. One can make these bonnets at home for very little money. Care should be taken in shaping them to have a protection for the hair in the back. Many of the motor bonnets of sponge have a cuff or front portion of the new futurist or cubist silk, with rosettes of the sponge at either side. But don't, as you value your artistic reputation, indulge in cubist silks for any sartorial purpose whatsoever. The designs are an abomination and like nothing that has ever been seen on land or sea, except from a cubist standpoint.

The tailored types of motor bonnets are popular this year for golf and tennis, and for a windy day on the links or tennis court they are ideal. Raffia bonnets are so very light in weight and so very cool and comfortable on a hot day that they are in as much demand this season as they were last, despite the fact that they are no longer a novelty. Another advantage is that if one is clever with raffia a charming little piece of motor headgear may be made for a song. A becoming effect is gained by lining the bonnet with a bright colored silk and repeating the same color in the bow of ribbon used as trimming or in the tiny cluster of satin flowers.

You want to know how to comfortably travel on a sleeping car? As this will be your first experience on a long railroad trip I shall go into perhaps tiresome details as to "what to do."

In the first place toilet articles should be so condensed that a heavy sult case will not have to be opened to reach them. It is usually safe to leave a case under the berth. If the upper berth is not occupied and you have a lower berth you can sometimes use the upper one for the stowing away of your clothing, but failing this, with a hatpin you can fasten your skirt and petticoat to the heavy curtain and if a folding coat hanger is not in your kit the coat, too, may be attached to the curtain.

If the passengers aboard include many women they will probably take their own deliberate time in the dressing room and if the destination is to be reached early in the morning it is possible to nearly complete your toilet in the berth. I never take down my hair at night, but remove the shell pins and tie my locks up securely in a veil. A bottle of alcohol I always carry in my hand-bag for cleansing my face. Here's a good tip. If the stateroom is not occupied give the porter an extra fee and it's yours for a dressing room.

I always feel safer sleeping in a light robe, for if an accident should happen a dark mass could not be easily discerned under the debris. Another idea which originated with an optimistic friend of mine is to have a shoe near the window. In case of a wreck the heel can be used to break the window glass and make escape more possible.

My last suggestion is this: Wrap your watch and purse in your stocking, and you won't forget it, for stockings are things one does not often appear without. With best wishes for a jolly trip, Faithfully yours, MABEL.

Sunbonnet For 1913 Baby.
After all, there is nothing like a sunbonnet for shade and comfort when baby plays on the beach or in the garden. The fetching bonnet pictured is of white machine embroidered linen, and the crown may be removed by unbuttoning it on washdays.

With a good pattern any mother who is the least familiar with the needle can make a similar piece of headgear with little trouble. Pique buttonholed in white wash cotton makes a practical sunbonnet for the baby.

Summer Writing Materials.
Those who enjoy writing summer notes out of doors will delight in the small pads of pale tinted note paper designed for this purpose. They are to be had in two sizes. The paper is smooth and of good quality, the hard back and cover of the pad exactly matching the tint of the paper. A pencil is attached to the side of each pad, which also matches it and has a top of glass in the same color. Such pads make pretty bon voyage gifts, although they are priced at only 34 and 39 cents each.

The Round Table.
For small luncheon parties the round table is again becoming popular. This table is kept very highly polished, and a very elaborate round tablecloth in fine lace and linen, buttonholed all around in deep scallops, shows the edge of the table and the polished woodwork through the lace. Very little of the linen is seen, and in some cases the cloth is entirely of rich thread lace.

A PURELY VEGETABLE PILL—The chief ingredients of Parlee's Vegetable Pills are mandrake and dandelion, sedative and purgative, but perfectly harmless in their action. They cleanse and purify and have most healthful effect upon the secretions of the digestive organs. The dyspeptic and all who suffer from liver and kidney ailments will find in these pills the most effective medicine in concentrated form that has yet been offered to the suffering.

Regularity

of the bowels is an absolute necessity for good health. Unless the waste matter from the food which collects there is got rid of at least once a day, it decays and poisons the whole body, causing biliousness, indigestion and sick headaches. Salts and other harsh mineral purgatives irritate the delicate lining of the bowels. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills—entirely vegetable—regulate the bowels effectively without weakening, sickening or griping. Use
