BULBS FOR THE WINTER ADVICE TO PEOPLE WHO LOVE FLOWERS.

Many Varieties of Beautiful Plan May Be Forced So as to Produc Attractive Blooms Out of Se me Roots Cannot Be Treated That Way a Second Time.

Everyone loves flowers, but during the winter everyone cannot afford to buy the lovely blossoms which, like everything else, have become so everything ease, have become so expensive. With a little care more people are able to grow the balbous flowers, which do so much to brighten up a room on cold, grey days. The Christian Science Monitor re-cently gave an accellent article on growing bulbs for winter use, from which some extracts are quoted below: below:

By choosing bulbs of the proper kinds and bringing them into the light at short intervals, it is easy to ingnet at, short intervals, it is easy to have a constant succession of flowers all the winter through. When you come to buy your bulbs for winter forcing, you will find that they, too, cost more than in former times, yet the cost is not to be reck-oned, when compared with the plea-sure and satisfaction which the flow-ers will state. If the histor reise sure and astisfaction which the flew-ers will give. If the higher price causes you to be a little more careful in your buying no harm will be done. Do not, however, be induced to buy inferior builts, because they are cheaper than the others. Only the best are suitable for forcing. If you have grown bulbs in past year, no doubt you are familiar with the dainty Roman hyscinths and will order a supply of them.

and will order a supply of them. Probably you will be disappointed, for a ruling of the French inspectors has barred practically all shipments this season. In spite of their name they really come from the south of France The same section also area. France. The same section also pro-duces the paper white narcissus, and, under the circumstances, this is the bulb to plant most freely for indoor use this season. It is not expensive, it grows, rapidly, and it flowers with-in a few weeks. Get a good supply of bulbation, store them in a dark, cool place, and start forcing them at intervals of two or three weeks. You can grow them in pots if you like, but a better plan is to flower the bulbs in bowls filled with peb-bles and water. Dainty little bowls have been designed especially for this purpose, but any shallow bowl or France. The same section also propurpose, but any shallow bowl or deep saucer will serve. Even the yellow kitchenware bowls take on a yenow kitchenware bowls take on a drawing-room aspect, when they sup-port several blooming bulbs. And it is always better to have more than one bulb, unless a small bowl is used. The dish should be two-thirds filled with pebbles and the bulbs made to nestle securely in them. Then keep enough water in the howl so that it will there it the bowl, so that it will touch the bottom of each bulb at all times. Set in a secluded corner of the room

The war the room, the more rapid the grow the room, the more rapid the grow There are several varieties marcissi which force readily a quickly, but which are distinct for the paper whites and should grown only in pots of soil. Amo the most charming is the poet's m cissus, Poetens Graatus. Then the is the double flowering Von Sis and the large trumpet varieties, G den Spur Bicolor Victoria, and Cm pernelle.

Now with the tulips, hyas Now with the things, hyachith and narcissi, the same methods mu be used and it is important that the are not overlooked. The bulk should be potted in good soil and there should be good drainage a the bottom of the pots. The bulk should be just covered and it is be ter to fill in the soil around them without them to recent them for the soil should be just covered and it is better to fill in the soil around them rather than to press them into piace. Do not quite fill the pot or them will be no place for watering. Now take the pots to the cellar and set them on a layer of earth or con ashes several inches deep. Next cover them entirely with sand er ashes, but first give them a thorough watering. Choose, if po-sible, a place away from the heater so that the bulbs will be kept con if no cellar is available, you can did a trench for them out-of-doors. Cover the spot with straw or little to keep our early frosts. The on-secret of getting good flowers will these bulbs is to obtain a strong root growth. Several weeks will be required, but it is impossible to give any reliable rule. Cocasionally did out a pot and, if necessary, remove the ball of earth by rapping the side of the pot against a solid surface. When the bulbs are ready for fore-ing, take them to a room which is not very warm nor very light. They will probably have made a little top growth, which will be white. When this growth has changed to green, the pots may be taken to a window or any other light location to develop the flowers. It is important that they be kept from sudden blasts of either cold or hot air, and they are best at a little distance from the radiator. Water freely, but do near keep the soil water soaked. None of the bulbs mentioned can be forced a second time, but the hyacinthe, tulips, and common narcissi may be set in the open ground when summer comes.

Thomas W. Weyburn on Tuesday paid Fred Vincent, of Barrettville, $82.03 for a load of hay. The price was $26 a ton. A few years ago this would have been the price for a whole load of wheat.

An accident occurred in Brigden on Tuesday of last week, when the west-bound Michigan Central passenger train No. 101, struck the horse and cutter of Harry Bunyan, a farmer living north of Brigden. The horse was instantly killed, being hurled about forty feet, crashing through the crossing fence, and reducing the cutter to spinters. Mr. Bunyan escaped by jumping when he saw what the certain result would be, and admitted to Conductor Huntley that he saw the train approaching and heard it whistle, but, in some manner, misjadged its speed and attempted to make the cross-ing abead of the train, with the above disastrous results.
