

sings of peace, may we not reasonably anticipate such an abundant harvest of good works and such oneness of purpose and action as will afford a cheering proof that the Author of all our blessings is better remembered and more duly honoured.

Before proceeding to the financial statement of the Society's affairs, the committee deem it due to those so recently called to assume the duties of the late lamented Secretary, to state that owing to his sudden removal they have experienced some inconvenience in arriving at a knowledge of its affairs, which, had he been living, would no doubt have been easily explained.
