A large track of waste land in southern Algeria has been leased to a Frenchman who has determined to make it pay, despite that it is valueless for agricultural purposes. His intention is to convert it into a lion and panther preserve. These beasts are to be lured into the preserve by old horses, mules and asses which have done their life's work. A luxurious hotel, supplied with a Parisian chef, is to be erected upon the estate, and from this headquarters will sally forth the budding sportsmen who flock thither to eujoy the excitement of lion hunting. Those who are particularly bold will be able to shoot their game in the open; but ambuscades will be provided from which the less valorous can make it hot for the lions while remaining in safety themselves.

The movement in favor of reform in the agricultural law of England is quite as active as that in Ireland. It is silent and undemonstrative, but none the less determined for all that, and gradually, but somewhat stealthily, it may be said, are the great as well as the small landlords disposing of their properties. From every quarter of England comes the announcement of the sale of some hereditary estate which has lain in the family for ages, and in every case the announcement is accompanied by the most bitlessen his responsibility still further.

THE CARNAGE AT GRAWKILL. From strocky to strootty the authorities glunge madly on The last infamy reported in the daily press is the worst and bloodiest. The sickening story of this horror can be briefly told. A process server goes out to distribute writs for rates in the distribute of the Grawkill, a little sequestered hamlet in Mayo, seven miles from the remote fown of Bell Belmulet. He has an escort of three score and ten riflemen in the constabulary uniform. The armed procession nears the hamlet. The inhabitants—most of whom a poor and unlettered set of people are drawn out from the miserable dens which serve them for dwellings, by a military display far surpassing anything within their experience. They do not stone the police; they offer no opposition to their advance; they do not even groan or shout at them; they merely look on in wonderment. The unarmed person to the advance of the writserver's escort, some of whom pounce on the witless creature and make him captive. His brother, a mere lad, springs forward to save from further indignity one of those efficied human beings to whom the very red Indian of America is tender, and even reverent, because of their mental infirmity. Forthwith the constanulary are ordered to fix bayonets; and ere the small aware of what is about to happen, the words of command being given in a language they do not understand, the police are charging on them, and stabbing furiously front, right and left. The people fly and scatter before this totally unexpected attack; but when the panic ceases, as it soon does, indignation at what seems to them a treacherous and cowardly assault overmasters every other feeling, and they egain gather together and impotently fling some stones at those who have already shed the blood of their kindred and neighbors. Nο one is hurt by these useless missiles; but once more the word of command is given in English to the military who masquerade in Ireland as police, and one, two, three, four rounds of ammunition—buckshot most likely -are poured in deadly hail amongst the insignificant crowd. Scores of human beings receive lead belonging to the British Government into their bodies; two are killed outright, and two are mortally injured; while seventeen victims of the bayonets and buckshot employed on the occasion as "resources of civilization" are carted off to Castlebar. forty miles away, with their bleeding

Such, in brief, is the terrible story told in the daily press of the butchery at Grawkill. We cannot vouch for the accuracy of the tale, since no public investigation has yet been held. Of one detail only can we feel certain -namely, that in the bayonet-charge some demon in the shape of man, and clothed in the constabulary uniform, stabbed to death a  $62\frac{1}{3}$ ; 75 do 62; 275 do  $61\frac{3}{4}$ ; 125 do  $61\frac{1}{2}$ ; 25 fine young woman of twenty-two. Over this infamous deed a coroner's inquest is to be held next week; therefore we must forbeau all comment now. We shall only say that if the narratives of the correspondents of the daily press be even substantially true—if the bloody business be not totally misrepresented from beginning to end— then a stern reckening for the infamy must be exacted from the quarter which is most responsible for it. We ask the American press, in especial, to watch with care the inquiry which ought of necessity to follow this dreadful piece of butchery. If there be yet left in England any sense of the difference between right and wrong where Ireland is concerned, a similar watchfulness may be expected from those Englishmen who feel touched when the honor of their country its winter touched the feel touched when the honor of their country its winter touched touched seed \$2.00; copperas, 100 lbs., 90c to \$1; flour is called in question through base deeds perpetrated in her name, but we cannot stoop to ask them to see that justice shall be done. The dishonor is theirs, not ours, if justice be outraged in regard to this Grawkill carnage. -Dublin Nation.

WEEKLY REVIEW -- WHOLESALE MARKETS.

Merchants have been hurrying up their ontreal wholesale merchants fondly hope that the Company will not advance its rates at all this winter, as such a policy would greatly benefit important interests here. The grain trade is now about over for the season. and the retrospect is not pleasing reading to Montrealers. Shipments show a decrease of 7,137,410 bushels as compared with last year, the loss being due to the keen competition with the St. Lawrence and all other water routes on the part of American lines of rail, and, secondly, to the speculative crazes at Chicago, which repeatedly sent the price of wheat up several cents beyond the shipping point, as gaged by European prices. The total exports of grain from Montreal this season were 13,306,635 bushels, while last year 20,144,045 bushels were exported. The exports of flour were 556,694 barrels, a decrease of 110,000 as compared with shipments in 1880.

GROCERIES. -The shipment of goods to the interior have been large. The dearer classes of teas are in good demand. IRON AND HARDWARE.—The movement in general hardware is very fair, though the bulk of the fall business appears to be about over. Merchants are not hurrying their orders for shipment by water to such an extent us in former years, as the Grand Trunk has not as yet given notice of the enforcement of its winter freight tariff. The action of the Grand Trunk is heartily commended by merchants.

There is no change in pig iron and prices of

PERILS OF THE DEEP.

Special to the Chicago (III.) Inter-Ocean The world-renowned swimmer, Captain Paul Boyton, in an interview with a newspaper correspondent at the seashore, related the following incidents in his experience:

Reporter:—"Captain Boyton, you must have seen a large part of the world?"

Captain Boyton :- "Yes sir, by the sid of my Rubber Life-Saving Dress, I have traveled over 10,000 miles on the rivers of America and Europe; have also been presented to the crowned heads of England, France, Germany, Austria, Belgium, Italy, Holland, Spain and Portugal, and have in my possession forty-two medals and decorations. I have three times received the order of knighthood, and been elected honorary member of committees, clubs, orders and societies."

Reporter :- "Were any of your trips accom panied by much danger?" Captain Boyton: - That depends upon what you may call dangerous. During my trip down the river Tagus, in Spain, I had to "shoot" one hundred and two waterfalls, the highest being about eighty-five feet, and innumerable rapids. Crossing the Straits of Messina, I had three ribs broken in a fight with sharks; and coming down the Somane, a river in France, I received a charge of shot from an excited and startled huntsman. Although ail this was not very pleasant, and might be termed dangerous, I tear nothing more on my trip than intense cold; for as long as my limbs are tree and easy, and not cramped and benumbed, I am all right. Of late I carry a stock of Jacob's Oil in my little boat,-(the Captain calls it " Baby Mine," and has stored therein signal rockets, thermometer, compass, provisions, etc.)—and I have had little trouble. Before starting out I jub myself thoroughly with the article, and its action on the muscles is wonderful. From constant exposure I am somewhat subject to rhenmatic pains, and nothing would ever benefit me, until I got hold of the Great German Remedy. Why, on my travels I have met people who had been suffering with rheumatism for years; by my advice they tried the Oil, and it cured them. I would sooner do without food for days than be without this remedy for one hour. In fact I would not attempt a trip without it.".

THE WOODSTOCK CONFLAGRATION. ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 11.-The following are the aggregates of insurance :- North British, $18,050; London and Liverpool and Globe, $8,340; Commercial Union, $20,000, J U Winslow, agent; London and Lancashire, $64,000; Queen, $3,000; Lancashire, $10,500, G W Vanwort, agent. Ætna, Hartford, Imperial and Fire Assurance, of London, sum up $12,600, J Y Allard, agent. The vault of the registrar's office has just been opened and the records and valuables found all right.

When you see a promising colt with a splint, curb or spavin forming, thus spoiling its sale, go at once and procure a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure. One dollar invested in this great remedy will save you hundreds of dollars. It has no equal as a liniment for man
