

It therefore falls logically, and perhaps historically, to Canada to play a leadership role in the doubtless long and arduous efforts to achieve a reinvigorated UN, remaining at the centre of a North/South reform core group, and nudging it forward whenever it threatens to stall.