Canada. He repeatedly referred to the relationships between Canada and the United States as an example to the world. His own life will remain an example to men of all countries of the type of citizenship which values intellectual leadership, the maintenance of high standards in personal and public life, and a wide tolerance in all human relationships. His name will have an honoured place in the roll of citizens of the world who, as intellectual leaders and fearless defenders of Truth, Right and Justice, have faithfully served their day and generation in the most significant epoch of history." - 19 Constant and the second second
