

The first of these is the fact that the government has been unable to raise the necessary funds to meet its obligations.
 This has been due to a combination of factors, including a decline in foreign aid and a reduction in domestic savings. The second factor is the government's failure to implement effective economic reforms. This has led to a stagnating economy and a loss of confidence in the government.
 The third factor is the government's excessive spending on the military.
 This has diverted resources away from social and economic development.
 The fourth factor is the government's corruption and mismanagement of public funds. This has further exacerbated the financial crisis.
 The fifth factor is the government's failure to address the needs of the population. This has led to a growing discontent and a loss of support for the government.
 The sixth factor is the government's failure to maintain a stable political environment. This has led to a lack of continuity in government policy and a loss of confidence in the government.
 The seventh factor is the government's failure to implement a sound monetary policy. This has led to inflation and a devaluation of the national currency.
 The eighth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound fiscal policy. This has led to a growing budget deficit and a loss of
 confidence in the government.
 The ninth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound trade policy. This has led to a loss of export revenue and a loss of
 confidence in the government.
 The tenth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound social policy. This has led to a growing social inequality and a loss of confidence in the government.
 The eleventh factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound environmental policy. This has led to a degradation of the environment and a loss of confidence in the government.
 The twelfth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound cultural policy. This has led to a loss of cultural heritage and a loss of confidence in the government.
 The thirteenth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound scientific policy. This has led to a stagnation of scientific research and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The fourteenth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound technological policy. This has led to a stagnation of technological development
 and a loss of confidence in the government.
 The fifteenth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound legal policy. This has led to a breakdown of the legal system and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The sixteenth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound judicial policy. This has led to a breakdown of the judicial system and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The seventeenth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound executive policy. This has led to a breakdown of the executive system and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The eighteenth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound legislative policy. This has led to a breakdown of the legislative system and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The nineteenth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound administrative policy. This has led to a breakdown of the administrative system
 and a loss of confidence in the government.
 The twentieth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound educational policy. This has led to a stagnation of education and a loss of
 confidence in the government.
 The twenty-first factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound health policy. This has led to a stagnation of health care and a loss of
 confidence in the government.
 The twenty-second factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound housing policy. This has led to a stagnation of housing development and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The twenty-third factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound transportation policy. This has led to a stagnation of transportation and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The twenty-fourth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound communication policy. This has led to a stagnation of communication and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The twenty-fifth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound energy policy. This has led to a stagnation of energy development and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The twenty-sixth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound water policy. This has led to a stagnation of water management and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The twenty-seventh factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound land policy. This has led to a stagnation of land management and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The twenty-eighth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound labor policy. This has led to a stagnation of labor relations and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The twenty-ninth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 social security policy. This has led to a stagnation of social security and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The thirtieth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound pension policy. This has led to a stagnation of pension management and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The thirty-first factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound insurance policy. This has led to a stagnation of insurance and a loss of
 confidence in the government.
 The thirty-second factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound banking policy. This has led to a stagnation of banking and a loss of
 confidence in the government.
 The thirty-third factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound financial policy. This has led to a stagnation of financial management and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The thirty-fourth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound investment policy. This has led to a stagnation of investment and a loss of
 confidence in the government.
 The thirty-fifth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 trade policy. This has led to a stagnation of trade and a loss of
 confidence in the government.
 The thirty-sixth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 foreign policy. This has led to a stagnation of foreign relations and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The thirty-seventh factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound defense policy. This has led to a stagnation of defense and a loss of
 confidence in the government.
 The thirty-eighth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound intelligence policy. This has led to a stagnation of intelligence and a loss of
 confidence in the government.
 The thirty-ninth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound information policy. This has led to a stagnation of information and a loss of
 confidence in the government.
 The fortieth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 communication policy. This has led to
 a stagnation of communication and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The forty-first factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound media policy. This has led to a stagnation of media and a loss of
 confidence in the government.
 The forty-second factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 cultural policy. This has led to a stagnation of cultural development and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The forty-third factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 scientific policy. This has led to a
 stagnation of scientific research and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The forty-fourth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 technological policy. This has led to a
 stagnation of technological development
 and a loss of confidence in the government.
 The forty-fifth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 legal policy. This has led to a stagnation of legal development and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The forty-sixth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 judicial policy. This has led to a stagnation of judicial development and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The forty-seventh factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 executive policy. This has led to a stagnation of executive development and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The forty-eighth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 legislative policy. This has led to a stagnation of legislative development and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The forty-ninth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 administrative policy. This has led to a stagnation of administrative development
 and a loss of confidence in the government.
 The fiftieth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 educational policy. This has led to a stagnation of educational development and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The fifty-first factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 health policy. This has led to a stagnation of health development and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The fifty-second factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 housing policy. This has led to a stagnation of housing development and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The fifty-third factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound transportation policy. This has led to a stagnation of transportation development
 and a loss of confidence in the government.
 The fifty-fourth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound communication policy. This has led to a stagnation of communication development
 and a loss of confidence in the government.
 The fifty-fifth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 energy policy. This has led to a stagnation of energy development and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The fifty-sixth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 water policy. This has led to a stagnation of water development and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The fifty-seventh factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 land policy. This has led to a stagnation of land development and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The fifty-eighth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 labor policy. This has led to a stagnation of labor development and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The fifty-ninth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 social security policy. This has led to a stagnation of social security development
 and a loss of confidence in the government.
 The sixtieth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 pension policy. This has led to a stagnation of pension development and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The sixty-first factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 insurance policy. This has led to a stagnation of insurance development and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The sixty-second factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 banking policy. This has led to a stagnation of banking development and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The sixty-third factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 financial policy. This has led to a stagnation of financial development and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The sixty-fourth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 investment policy. This has led to a stagnation of investment development and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The sixty-fifth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 trade policy. This has led to a stagnation of trade development and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The sixty-sixth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 foreign policy. This has led to a stagnation of foreign development and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The sixty-seventh factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 defense policy. This has led to a stagnation of defense development and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The sixty-eighth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 intelligence policy. This has led to a stagnation of intelligence development and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The sixty-ninth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 information policy. This has led to a stagnation of information development and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The seventieth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 communication policy. This has led to a
 stagnation of communication development
 and a loss of confidence in the government.
 The seventy-first factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 media policy. This has led to a stagnation of media development and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The seventy-second factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 cultural policy. This has led to a stagnation of cultural development and a
 loss of confidence in the government.
 The seventy-third factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 scientific policy. This has led to a stagnation of scientific development and
 a loss of confidence in the government.
 The seventy-fourth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 technological policy. This has led to a
 stagnation of technological development
 and a loss of confidence in the government.
 The seventy-fifth factor is the government's
 failure to implement a sound
 legal policy. This has led to a

Index To

CREA

CONTAI

IN the Appendix to the theory of the second part of a great state of which the sun pages 2 which have purpose the recent Faraday Edinburgh article—Magnetism