MAY BE MOTOR RACE IN RAPIDS

Larsen, the Dauntless Dane, Challenges Hero of Atlantic Trip.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Feb. 21.—(Special.)—After arriving here down and out several days ago, Captain Klaus P. Larsen, who twice navigated the Whirlpool Rapids in a motor boat, has challenged the determination never to again dare death in a rapid trip. He said today that he had challenged Thomas Fleming Day, a noted yachtman, who crossed the Atlantic Ocean in a motor boat last year, to a motor boat race thru the rapids.

When Captain Larsen arrived here he was penniless. He said he was thru with daring feats of seamanship. Then he obtained a job in a local manufacturing plant. Since he went to work and knows he has a pay envelope coming every week he registered his challenge to the conqueror of the ocean.

I haven't enough money to build a boat to make the trip and don't expect to earn sufficient between now and next summer, but I have been offered sufficient to build a boat and carry out my project,” said the nervy little Dane.

“REBECCA OF SUNNYBROOK FARM” HEADS THEATRICAL OFFERINGS

“The Shepherd of the Hills” Comes to the Grand, and Florence Tempest to Shea's—Final Week For Grand Opera—Musical Events Scheduled For Next Week.

“Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm” will return to the Princess Theatre next week, with matinee Wednesday and Saturday. In these days, when every play has a purpose or a preachment, and the uplift impulse is strong, the drama without a profound theme like the refreshing showers in a summer drought. And “Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm” is such a play. Mrs. Wiggins and Charlotte Thompson have most happily presented such well-remembered incidents as Rebecca's arrival at the brick house, where the stiff routine forces her to run away; the soap padding excursion, that introduces Mr. Aladdin, and incidentally the love motif; the pathetic Simpson family; finally, graduation day, when Rebecca, standing on the threshold of womanhood, faces the future in a promise of future happiness to be shared with Mr. Aladdin. These somewhat unrelated scenes are fused together by the many little happenings of New England village life, and four artistic settings add an atmospheric background. Edith Haines is the ideal Rebecca, the part of Rebecca that impersonation is forgotten in her naive and ingenious handling of the role, and she seems really only a child in years. The long dresses of the final scene come as a complete surprise. Archie Boyd will again act as the jovial, wheeled stage driver, comforting Rebecca in her troubles, and playing the rustic diplomat for all Riverboro. Others of the original cast are Marie Day, Eliza Glassford, Ada Deaves, Viola Fortescue, Hayward Ginn and Sam Colt.

The matinee on Wednesday will be at popular prices. Echoes From “The Red Widow.” The much heralded musical play, “The Red Widow,” which Cohan and Harris will present the popular comedian, Raynor, and the popular comedienne, Raynor, will be presented at the Princess Theatre for one week, starting Monday night, March 3, has enjoyed phenomenal popularity since it was first produced in Boston. From Boston the Widow was taken to New York, where for seven months she held court at the Astor Theatre, and it is said that the elite of New York succumbed to the charms of this Russian piece. It is a work by Channing Pollock, Remond Wolf and Charles J. Gebert. The story is hung upon the adventures of a Russian, who became involved with a desperate band of nihilists, of which The Red Widow (Zakale) is the ring leader. It is said that the plot requires the services of upwards of one hundred people, and it was during the successful engagement in New York City.

Miss Billie Burke in “The Mind the Paint Girl.” Miss Billie Burke, who is said to be the foremost beauty in her repertoire this season in Pinero's comedy, “The Mind the Paint Girl,” is coming to the Princess Theatre next week. She played the piece until after the holidays at the Lyceum Theatre, New York. After that she went to Philadelphia and Baltimore, and now she is presenting it at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston, and is reported to have made a big hit in it. The play tells a story of the private life—that is the life of the stage—that a London comedy star, who is called upon to choose between two men a young lord whom she loves and an ex-actor whom she thinks she has ruined. The choice she makes isn't exactly the one she'd naturally be supposed to make either, and that makes the play all the more interesting. Miss Burke, of course, plays the girl, and the role is said to fit her like a glove. It gives her a chance not only to display her wonderful charm, but also to prove she is an accomplished actress of real power.

Next Week's Operas. The engagement of the Montreal Opera Company, which has so far been a series of almost unalloyed triumphs, and has created thousands of friends in this city for this truly great artistic enterprise. John McCormack. The coming to Toronto of John McCormack for the first time is being eagerly looked forward to by those who know the reputation of this peerless Irish tenor. The successes of John McCormack last season in London have been more decided than ever before. His bigger experience having made him a greater artist in every way. With the king of England he is a pronounced favorite, and England's social leaders delight in the opportunity to do him honor. There is that one strain in McCormack that makes him ever lovable to his fellow-countrymen—his affection for the ballads of his native green land, which he sings with so much pathos and understanding of their beauties. This is largely due to the fact that he enjoys singing them as much as his audience love to listen to them.
