The Gay Widows At the Star Theatre this week, "The Gay Widows" make their bow, present-ing three well-known and popular come-ulans. James E. Dalley, Bill Armstrong and Joe Taylor, in an entirely new and original production in two acts, with a selected cast, including Miss Anna Meek, May Abbott and Eddle Lowett, and a competent chorus of pretty girls. The cowedy and musical portion of the per-formance is one of the main factors. The New Garden. I think it was Lord Bacon who wrote somewhere that "The making of a garden is more satisfying than the building of cities, palaces and temples. For while the latter brings into play all the noblest that is in man, the former brings him of necessity in close touch with the divine." Certain it is that he who has before him the delightful prospect of making a garden is to be envied. But how much more to be envied is the one who hav-ing a new home and new grounds thowever small these finar, be) may enjoy the planning out of a new gar-den.

A garden is not to be undertaken lightly. Think not that once planted a garden will take care of itself. Its needs are many and exacting, but not comparable with the infinite pleasures and heurly refreshments to be obtain-ed from its mysteries, ever unfolding. For it must be remembered that "who plants a garden, plants an alter." and the quiet hour or two spent in early morning work is conducive to mental and moral as well as physicial well-being.

There are several important p ciples to be considered in the lay out of new ground, among which of "permanengy" should take place. The principle of perman should be thoroly considered be such garden operations as tree pl should be thoroly considered before such garden operations as tree plant-ing, shrub and vine planting, hed arrangements, the placing of pergolar and summer houses, rockeries an water gardens, and indeed, should even be the first thought in connection with the plotting out of all herbaccoup borders.
