C. H. SPURGEON, OF LONDON,

Sending an order for forty copies of this work, says, "It is a capital book, and if possible would like to reprint it and place a copy in the hands of each of our students."

NOTES & SUGGESTIONS,

— FOR —

BIBLE READINGS

COMPILED BY

S. R. BRIGGS and J. H. ELLIOTT.

A most Suggestive help for the pulpit, the prayer room, the gospel meeting, or other religious services.

Contains eighty pages of short chapters on methods of conducting Bible Readings, etc., followed by nearly two hundred pages, with outlines of over six hundred Bible Readings, the contributions of leading Ministers, Evangelists, and others.

"The book is well fitted to accomplish its professed object, to stimulate to a more diligent and systematic study of God's Word. It is not a commentary; it is something better. It does not give exhaustive explanatory notes, but rather such hints as will prove suggestive and awaken further research."—The Presbyterian.
