

WORK PROGRESSES ON DON VIADUCT

Controller McBride Holds Up
Trestle on Glen Road.

BUSY ON ROADWAYS

Railway Board to Decide on Question of Rails.

Works Commissioner Harris is now busy getting the Don viaduct rushed to completion. But he got a temporary setback at yesterday's meeting of the works committee. A conference on the spot on Monday may overcome the objection of Controller McBride. The railway board has yet to consent to the rail for Pape avenue being used on the viaduct.

The new roadway on the south bank of the Rosedale ravine, between the end of Bloor street (at Sherbourne street) and the south end of the Rosedale viaduct, is on the level of Bloor street and is planned to cross Glen road and bridge by a temporary trestle 15 feet above. Later on this road and bridge may have to be reconstructed at the higher level.

Mr. Harris reported before the works committee with a proposal to this effect, supported by a motion of Ald. Ball.

Controller McBride said that a plan for such a raising of the lower road and old bridge had called for approval by a former council.

Nevertheless, Mr. Harris pressed for the trestle at a cost of $4000 as the only way out. He said that no detailed plans of working out this particular part of the viaduct had been submitted to the people.

Controller McBride said he would not agree until he had an opportunity of visiting the work, plan in hand with the committee and the commissioner.

People Are Impatient.

Alderman F. M. Johnston pointed out that the people of Rosedale were impatient, and were desirous of knowing when the viaduct would be completed to its western extremity.

Mr. Harris stated that the contractor was making very good progress. The viaduct had been pushed ahead with all possible speed, and rails would be in the hands of the department in a few weeks.

"A few weeks," replied a member of the board. "Just how long might that mean?"

"A matter of perhaps two or three weeks," replied the commissioner. "I must say that I think it would be a calamity to allow traffic over the viaduct before it has been made water-proof."

Alderman Hiltz suggested that the committee hold a special meeting two or three days hence to discuss the difficulties being overcome and the work allowed to proceed without hindrance.

Ald. Ball saw no reason why any delay should occur in the construction of the subway. He at least was not going to assume responsibility for any change in the plans.

McBride at this juncture expressed his opinion that the residents of the sections affected could afford to wait a week or two, if it could be used. He held out lurid fears of the city council at some later date being called upon to pay out $500,000 for the construction of a permanent bridge at Glen road.

Motion Voted Down.

The motion proposed by Alderman Ball to carry out the recommendation of the commissioner of works at a cost of $8000 was lost by a vote of 6 to 6. Controller McBride, the commissioner and Mr. Harris will go over the route tomorrow to see if a recommendation on Monday afternoon at half past one.

The vote stood: Yeas—Ald. Ball, Beamish, Hiltz, F. M. Johnston, Graham, F. W. Johnston, Blackburn, Birdsell, Ryding.

With the request that the order for the construction of the Pape avenue viaduct be suspended in order that the rails may be used on the temporary viaduct, R. C. Harris, works commissioner, L. S. Farley, assistant city solicitor, and Fred Hubbard, assistant manager of the Toronto Railway Company, waited upon D. M. McIntyre, chairman of the Ontario Railway and Municipal board, yesterday.

No decision was reached, the chairman refusing to state what the opinion of the board would be until the ratemakers who would be served by the Pape avenue line were heard. This hearing has been set for May 15. It is expected that yesterday that the company has sufficient rails for the Bloor street line, but not enough to complete the line on Pape.

Work on the Don viaduct is more hopeful yesterday of an early use of the viaduct when they saw twenty men at work putting down sewer pipes, wire conduits, gas pipes, and grading for the concrete foundation of the pavement, between the east end of the bridge and Broadview. A similar number of men were working at the Rosedale end. They were grading the road and removing the brick house that stood at the north end of the Rosedale bridge. No rails have yet appeared on the route. There are enough rails of the modern pattern in sight for the Danforth end; ordinary railway steel may have to be used between Parliament and Sherbourne streets.

Over the Don ratemakers are to meet next week to urge quick action upon the council and commissioner in opening the viaduct for traffic and street cars.

MEMBER RETURNS.

Gideon's Chosen Few Holds Monthly Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of Gideon's Chosen Few was held in western district hall Thursday evening with W. Bro. G. H. Bush, W.M., presiding, and a splendid attendance of the members, visitors and brethren prominent in the order. Two candidates were initiated. The initiation fee in this lodge has been raised to $10, which includes initiation to the royal arch purple degree. The members were pleased to hear that Bro. Elliott had returned home from the front after absence of almost four years. Bro. Elliott was the first member of Gideon's Chosen Few to enlist at the beginning of the war. No. 342 has an honor roll containing 40 names, which is a great credit to a lodge of its size.

ROYAL GRENADIERS AT ANNUAL DINNER

Sergeants of Tenth Regiment
Commemorate Northwest
Campaign of 1885.

The sergeants of the 10th Royal Grenadiers commemorated the part taken by the regiment in the Northwest Campaign of 1885 at the annual Banquet dinner, held last night in their clubrooms, 77 West Queen street. The guests included Col. H. C. Bickford, Toronto district commander; Lt.-Col. Wellington Wallace, who organized the 25th Battalion; Major H. Dixon, and Andrew Murdoch, a prominent Buffalo businessman who served in the Northwest with the Grenadiers in '85. Lt.-Col. J. Cooper Mason, D.S.O., commander of the regiment, was also present. Battalion Sergeant-Major W. K. Bennett was toastmaster.

Col. Bickford complimented the 10th Royal Grenadiers on the regiment's fine war record, and said the fact of Toronto military district furnishing over 100,000 men for the Canadian expeditionary force was in large part due to the aid the militia regiments had been in the recruiting work.

The Royal Grenadiers had furnished many strong drafts of men for the overseas forces, but had raised the 123rd Battalion, which was now serving in France under the command of Col. Bickford, of the regiment, Lt.-Col. H. B. Kingmill.

The authorities had realized the value of keeping the militia regiments in Canada, because there were possibilities at one time of there being disturbances in the United States, and also to be ready if trouble should arise in Canada. When the trouble came up in Quebec the C.E.F. men were able to handle the situation, but if necessary the militia would have been called upon as well. It was his belief that the militia regiments were given encouragement last summer to continue training.

He said that the great name which had been made by the Canadians in the present war had been gained to a large extent by the first contingent, which was almost wholly composed of militiamen and entirely officered by militia officers.

Even under conscription the militia regiments should flourish. He regretted that conscription had not been put into operation from the start of the war in Canada, because the voluntary method had proved unsatisfactory. Men having joined the army who, if retained in the country's industrial life, would have helped in an important way in maintaining the success of the army at the front.

Colonel Bickford said he wanted to help the Royal Grenadiers' Regiment all he could and wanted its members to "carry on."

He had had it on excellent authority, that no militia regiments had done so much towards the war as the 10th. Public opinion had been unfortunately against the militia regiments, but he was certain the part the regiments had played in the war would in time be come to be understood and fully appreciated.

Lt.-Col. Wellington Wallace drew attention to the fact that in their regiment the permanent staff attacked all the battle line except that held by the Canadians, thus showing the respect Hindenburg had for the prowess of the Canadian soldiers. Colonel Wallace gave reminiscences of his experiences in the campaign of 1885.

Major E. C. Burton drew the attention of the members of the regiment to the new association which is under formation for veterans of the war who passed thru the 10th Royal Grenadiers into the C. E. F.

Pumping Station Burned;
North Bay Has Gone Dry

North Bay, May 10.—During a terrific electrical storm on Thursday night the North Bay pumping station at Trout Lake was struck, and the roof and side of the building burned. The electric pump was put out of commission, and the town was left without water today. The old steam pump is being rigged up to do duty until the other is repaired.

FINANCES OF C.N.R. UP IN PARLIAMENT

Hon. A. K. Maclean Says Company's Funded Debt Totals Four Hundred Million Dollars.

BIG FLOATING LIABILITIES

Railway Owes Over Seventeen Millions on Divers Accounts—
Figures Are Incontestable.

Ottawa, May 10.—Amendments to the criminal code, the Civil Service Act, and the statement by Hon. A. K. Maclean, dealing with the C.N.R. financial situation were the features of the session of the house of commons today.

Mr. Maclean's statement, which was made early in the afternoon, showed that, including the equipment, account and temporary loans, the funded debt of the C.N.R. is approximately $400,000,000. He placed the floating liabilities at $17,735,543.

There was some disposition on the part of members of the house, more particularly Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, to question the accuracy of the figures submitted. He stated that many of them had been questioned at the Toronto enquiry to fix the value of the common stock.

Mr. Maclean assured the house that most of the evidence which he had given could not be contested.

During consideration of the civil service bill there was a general discussion of the question of patronage. Many of the members were inclined to the view that Ottawa has too large a share of the appointments, and that the outside districts should be given a better show.

W. F. Nickle of Kingston expressed the fear that a small group in Ottawa would control the outside districts. If the government was going to have civil service reform, he said, they should play the game fair. He wanted to see civil service reform honestly carried out.

Hon. A. K. Maclean, acting minister of finance, gave to the house a statement with regard to the condition of the Canadian Northern Railway system. His object, in doing so, was to furnish the members with information which would enable them to consider the bill providing for financial assistance to this railway, which will be given a second reading in the near future.

C. N. R. Maturities.

After giving the names of the directors of the road, Mr. Maclean read a list of maturities maturing this year, which are payable to the Bank of Commerce, London and Toronto, and the National Trust Company. The maturities of the road he gave as $67,340,000.

Mr. Maclean then went on to give an estimate of the requirements of the C.N.R. for the present year. The estimate, he said, contained a total amounting to $25,000,000, of which $5,389,000 was required for interest on security loans outstanding, $2,995,000 for payment of equipment bonds, $6,000,000 for payment on redemption of collateral securities, $2,490,000 for improvements and betterments, and $4,126,000 for construction and completing of western lines.

The acting finance minister quoted figures from the financial statement of the road for the year ending June 30, 1917, the latest figures available. This showed that the earnings of the road in that year totaled $44,495,000, the expenses $31,000,000, and the net earnings $13,495,000. The net earnings of the road in 1918 had been somewhat less.

New Construction.

The details of the amount required for construction, namely, $17,735,543, would be expended in the completion of the road to the coast, the C.N.R. The Oliver-Northerly (Alberta) line, now completed to the 100-mile limit, would absorb a portion of this amount. The expense of the road to the coast, which would also require some expenditure, was $17,735,543. It was proposed also to complete the Elrose extension to Alton Place, and the Thunder Bay branch, also in Saskatchewan, would also be completed out of this vote. Fourteen miles of Luck Lake branch and 14 miles of Lakeview branch, Saskatchewan, would also be completed. The other lines upon which expenditures would be made are the Goose Lake, Port Arthur-Winnipeg, Vancouver terminals, Montreal terminals, Leaside terminals and the Duncan connection near Toronto.

In order to complete the unfinished lines in the west, Mr. Maclean estimated that it would take a large sum of money. The 695 miles of prairie lines to be completed would cost $10,176,561. The British Columbia lines (491 miles) would cost $17,040,000. An expenditure of $20,955,000 was required for completion of western terminals.

The securities of the road which have been guaranteed by the Dominion and provincial governments were given by Mr. Maclean. The Dominion Government, he said, had guaranteed securities to the amount of $101,612,000. Of this sum $71,650,000 was held by the public. The provincial guarantees were as follows: Ontario, $7,859,000; Manitoba, $25,462,000; Saskatchewan, $11,544,000; Alberta, $18,950,000; British Columbia, $40,187,000. Unguaranteed securities totaled $147,903,000, and the total issue of the road was $253,575,000.

Mr. Maclean stated that a great many of the securities were pledged. He wished to know with whom they were pledged and why. Mr. Maclean replied that they were pledged to the banks.

ed with persons by whom loans were made to the company, chiefly banks and brokers' houses. The grand total of the liabilities and notes of the C.N.R. system was $253,575,000. The total held by the public, less the amount pledged, was $243,922,087. Taking the equipment and temporary loans, Mr. Maclean stated that the funded debt of the company was $400,000,000.

Floating Liabilities.

The floating liabilities aggregated, according to Mr. Maclean, $17,735,543. Maclean quoted extensively from the balance sheet of the company to show that it has a surplus of assets over liabilities of $24,542,673. The minister read a letter written by Mr. Hanna, vice-president of the C.N.R., to Major Bell, financial controller of the railway department, dated January 21, 1918, and the previous year, showing that the gross earnings for the year ending March 31, 1918, and the previous year, were $20,565,000 and for the previous year $20,055,000. Last year the operating expenses were $25,209,000 and the previous year $24,821,000.

He told the house that the gross earnings for April showed an increase of $642,000, reflecting to some extent the benefits which may be expected, from the recent freight increase.

Replying to a question by Mr. Cogswell, Mr. Maclean said the government is satisfied that it has a knowledge of all the floating liabilities. Mr. Maclean repeated his former statement that the government now holds $27,500,000 of the $100,000,000 of the common share issue of the company. The balance, he said, is held largely in England. He was hoping for some more definite information as to the holders of those shares.

J. Read: "You did not acquire it all from Mackenzie and Mann, who is the other nigger in the woodpile?"

Mr. Maclean replied that the government were in possession of some $40,000,000 of the total issue two or three years ago. The difference between the $40,000,000 and the $27,500,000 was transferred to the government by Mackenzie, Mann and Company, Ltd.

Not Contentable.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux remarked that much of the information which had been given by Mr. Hanna is so long and complicated that it is impossible to take it all in. He suggested that it would be well to have the evidence taken before that commission.

Mr. Maclean replied that none of the evidence which he had given to the house can be contested before the commission. "The general balance sheet," he said, "might be open to dispute, but I cannot possibly think of anything else that can be open to question."

The house then went into committee on the civil service bill.

LONDON MAY PURCHASE
ERIE TRACTION LINE

London, Ont., May 10.—Sir Adam Beck today presented to the board of control the report of the engineers of the Hydro Electric Power Commission on the value of the London and Lake Erie Railway traction line, the owners of which, headed by President George B. Wood, of Toronto, are very anxious to sell out to London.

The London report states that the value of the land, buildings, materials, equipment and rolling stock of the company on April 30 is given by his engineers as $322,164. The company in its offer to sell to the city asked for $450,000, which was fifty cents on the dollar of bonded indebtedness. Sir Adam had previously estimated the value of the traction line at $300,000, where the traction line could, if purchased by the city, be sold at a profit in conjunction with the London and Port Stanley railway, which London now owns.

Mayor Somerville stated that there is no reason to believe that London wants to buy the traction line, even if it could be made to pay its way. The company indignantly refused to listen to Sir Adam's 55 cents on-the-dollar valuation.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder
Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salt which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys clean.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take it in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the fruit of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer irritates, thus preventing this ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Donald Sutherland said that speaking from personal knowledge his advice has always been to keep clear of the civil service.

The present was not an opportune time, Sutherland said, for the introduction of such a bill. He thought there was greater danger of abuses under the bill than under the old system.

Nickle's Exposure.

W. F. Nickle, Kingston, was in favor of the bill and preferred to give it a fair trial. He remarked that while members were no longer authorized to make recommendations to positions they were still in a position of responsibility for any appointments made. Mr. Nickle read a series of letters in regard to the transfer of a Mrs. Narraway from the public works department to a position in the postoffice at Kingston at a salary of $1100 per year.

The correspondence showed, Mr. Nickle went on, that the dangers to which reference had been made in the course of the discussion were not imaginary. When a small group in Ottawa would control the outside districts, declared Mr. Nickle, "let us have civil service reform, not a centralized bureaucracy."

Mr. Nickle declared that because of his low medical category, from a position in the public works department she was transferred to the Kingston Postoffice as Assistant Deputy Postmaster-General. The reason given for the transfer, Mr. Nickle said, was that Mrs. Narraway was advised by her husband.

Made Without Order.

Mr. Nickle's declaration that he brought the matter to the attention of the acting postmaster-general, action was taken and Mrs. Narraway was advised by her husband.

Position in Britain.

In the inside service, said Colonel Currie, one-third of the employees were doing the work, while the remainder were trying to keep out of the way so that people wouldn't see that they were not working. A glance thru some of the office doors showed them reading novels or amusing themselves in other ways. Over in the United States, he said, they had an efficiency board which discharged incompetent clerks when necessary.

Currie defended the patronage system in connection with the civil service. Col. Currie said, should be enlarged to include two representatives of the returned soldiers.

There was no hurry, said Col. Currie, about bringing the outside service under the commission. It was a tremendous work and might well be left until the conclusion of the war.

Hocken Approves.

H. C. Hocken, West Toronto, congratulated the government on bringing in such a bill. He heartily approved the principle which aimed at taking care of the returned soldiers. With reference to the appointing of clerks under the new bill, Mr. Hocken said he thought that appointments should be made locally if possible. He said he did not recommend this because he wanted to make recommendations for appointments in Toronto. He was only glad to be freed from the responsibility.

Mr. Hocken felt that the bill proposed an awful lot of power in the various deputy ministers.
