The two girls, namely, Misses Dorothy Scott and Bessie Clarke, are graduates from Mrs. Somers' school of dancing at Toronto, and are stopping at the Inverreie in company with Miss Scott's mother. Upon special request from the officers in charge of the picnic the young ladies kindly voluntered to put on the exhibition for the benefit of the soldiers. Three dances in all were staged between the regular dances at the building. The first, in which Miss Scott alone took part, was a toe dance, entitled "Onto Victory," and was very him perfect unison. The next dance, in which Miss Scott alone took part, was a toe dance, entitled "Pitzicati," from Mrs. Pavlowa, which only went further to impress the onlookers of the young lady's rare ability. THE WAR SITUATION

New York, Aug. 23.-The Associated Press this morning issued the British and German armles are locked in a mighty battle today over a twenty-mile front from Lihons, six miles south of the Somme River to the Cojeul River, south of Arras. This combat, which began with the British attack against the enemy positions east of the Ancry River on Wednesday, has now spread into one of the greatest battles of the allied offensive in Picardy. It is officially reported from London that the British are making progress at some points and that German attacks east of Beucourt, at about the middle of the battlefront were repulsed. The British are apparently still on the aggressive along the whole line. French troops have occupied the

Coucy-le-Chateau. tions north of Chemin-des-Dames,

Probably the most vital sectors to the Germans at present are those from Roye to Noyon and that northwest of Soissons. If the first should waver and fall back, the German position north to the Somme would have to be readjusted. The salient northwest of Soissons possibly is most Important because if it should fall the French would have the heights of the Chemin-des-Dames outflanked and be in a position to menace Laon. Continued French pressure on this salient would appear to have the effect of forcing the Germans to retreat from the Vesle within a few days at most. In the Lys salient in Flanders, the British have made further progress. East of Merville they are approaching Neuf Berquin. North of Ballieul, where the line turns northeastward, the British have pushed forward on a ffont of one and one-half miles. Berlin officially says that British attacks north of the Somme Thursday failed. Concerning the situation n the south, it says the French have attacked "our new positions" between the Avre and the Aisne. The retirement south of Noyon Wednesday light is declared to have been oticed" by the French.

Shaken by the allied assaults on the northern and southern ends of the Picardy battlefront, the German line is wavering. Along the Oise the enemy apparently is retreating precipitately. Allied pressure continues strong be imperilled. the German line around Roye and menace to the Vesle-Alsne through the crossing of the Ailette and the Olse-Alsne Canal northwest of Solssons.

North of the Somme, across the Ancre to Mercatel, the British keep doggedly at it after having captured Albert and 5,000 prisoners. South of the bend in the Ancre they have crossed that a n to the east on a six-mile front for a gain of two miles.

Noyon, a pivot of the German lines in Picardy, still holds out, but the town and the surrounding heights are under the fare of the French cannon. West of Noyon the French are on the Divette for a distance of almost five miles. The Oise has been reached on a front of 10 miles south and east of Noyon and has been crossed at several points.

So hurrled was the German withdrawal from south of the Oise that they were unable to destroy all the bridges across the stream. They also left behind much material and more than 200 guns. French cavalry and airplanes are harassing the retiring enemy and over the German positions of two days even one day ago French guns and infantry are rushing forward. Except west of the Olse and along the sharp sallent north of Soissons the Germans show Intle signs of holding and probably will retire to beyond the Oise Canal which parallels the river.

Germans Resisting. Most stubborn have been the combats on the front north of Somme, and Field Marshal Haig has had to face bitter resistance all along the front. The pressure continues, however, and his success around Albert probably will have leverage to press the Germans farther north and south of that sector. North of the Ancre the British and Germans are struggling violently for possession of towns along the Arras-Albert railway and the Arras-Bapaume road, but the British have held to their gains. ANOTHER INCREASE FOR BELL CO. EMPLOYEES

Lieut. Galbraith was granted sick leave in June, after two years of service with the Worcestershire regiment in Macedonia, but was obliged to remain in Italy for several weeks owing to illness.
