Ample proof that the residents of the rural districts in Middlesex are awakening to the great importance of education was borne out in Thursday's session of the county council. pleads For Grant.

Dr. McKenzie Smith made a plea for a grant of $12,000, so that four nurses could be employed to carry on the work in Middlesex. These nurses, she claimed, would inspect the pupils of each of schools three or four times in a year. Each nurse would care for approximately 50 schools of 60 class rooms. They would also visit the homes of the pupils where necessary in order that she might get the cooperation of the parents in remedying any defect found in a child.

The nurses, she said, would examine the children for defects of the scalp, tonsils, lungs and skin. They would also be on teh lookout for children subjected to anaemia, mal-nutrition and weaknesses of the heart. There were, she said, an unbellevable number of children in the schools who were suffering from defects which should be treated. The parents of these children, she said was almost always maware a she said was almost always maware. ted. The parents of these children, said, were almost always unaware anything seriously was wrong, was especially true when the eye-

This was especially true when the eyesight was concerned.

A plea for the grant was also made by Mrs. McNaughton of Lucan. She told of the wonderful results which had been obtained by the clinic which is in operation in that place. She said that it was not charity for children to be treated or operated upon in the clinics, because every child had an equal right to care. She spoke of the large number who were found to need glasses.

Nurses Needed.

Inspector P. J. Thompson told the council that he was fully convinced that nurses were needed in the schools. He believed that if the health of the children received attention greater progress would be made in the schools. This, he said, would amply repay the county for any expenditure. He felt that if even 30 pupils were treated that the grant would have been worth while. Reeve J. E. Harrison, chairman of the educational committee of teh council, told the board that it had been planned last summer to put the work under a board of directors composed of the two ast summer to put the work under a coard of directors composed of the two

Mr. Thompson, speaking on the East Middlesex Educational Association said that it had been formed along with a like organization in Western Ontario to seek a better educational system. He believed that out of the discussion which would take place in the meetings of the association, a new and better system would evolve.

Oakes did not agree with him. The reeve also believed that it was the life of the pupil, while attending the schools the farm from him.

Mrs. Rebinson and Mrs. McNaughton both spoke in support of the grant.

The report of the Strathroy House of Refuge was read. It stated that at the close of the past year, on November close of the past year, on November in the strath of 78 inmates in houses. n the city, which drove all desires for the farm from him. Refuge was read. It stated that at the close of the past year, on November 15, there were a total of 78 inmates in the institution. This was an increase of 19 over the corresponding date of 1919. During the year ten immates died, and two absconded. The total cost of operating the institution was $17,776.08. The cost of keeping the inmates' averages to $78.98 for each one. The representative of the House of Refuge made a plea for more stock, so that the large supply of roots and grain on hand could be disposed of advantageously.

Secure Speakers.

Mr. Wade, president of the association, took up the question on the part of the association. As he believed that the work of the association would be in the interest of all, he was convinced that the public should provide the money to pay the expenses involved in securing speakers and in other branches of the work.

He did not believe that the people of Ontario had enough to say in the matter of the curriculums in the schools and the university. He said that the people should dictate to the Government what studies they wished their children to pursue. They would only be able to do this after they had become familiar with educational problems, and in this regard the association, would prove invaluable.

Mr. Wade' claimed that the present educational system in the high schools was medieval. He said that this was especially true in the schools in the director approve of, any loan under the provisions of the Legislature states that "No commission shall make, nor shall the director approve of, any loan under the provisions of the 1919 act after the provisions of the 1919 act after the provisions of the servent payments after that date on account of loans made by a commission was medieval. He said that this was especially true in the schools in the director in this way.

Mr. Wade brought the wrath of Reeve S. Oakes of Strathroy upon his head, when he claimed that the educational system in the United States, where he lived for some time, was much better than the one in vogue in Canada. Mr. Oakes did not agree with him. The lived for some time, was much better than the one in vogue in Canada. Mr. Oakes did not agree with him. ### IN NORTHERN ONTARIO Teachers To Train Men As

Geologists Needed, Says Professor Russell. "One of the greatest needs in Ontario today is efficient teachers to train men to become practical geologists," said Professor J. W. Russell of the department of geology, at the Western University to a large and enthusiastic audience in the arts building, Thursday evening in speaking on the subject of "Mining Development in Northern Ontario." The time has come to get efficient men to open up and explore the country north of what is now known. In that country there is considerable wealth in almost every line of mining, The people of Ontario are ignorant of the wealth of that country, and some means will have to be provided whereby the country can be opened up."

Professor Russell has made a careful study of Northern Ontario in relation to its mineral wealth, and gave outstanding figures of what it has produced for Canada during this year. He said that up to the present time the mineral output of Canada is estimated at $300,000,000, and Ontario has produced about one-half that amount. In his lecture he told the audience of the opening of Northern Ontario, first as a timber country, then as an acriculture belt and later to what is the general occupation there now. Tippeople who went to that country to cultivate the lands were responsible for discovering its mineral wealth. building, Thursday evening in speak-

Never probably before in the history of London, of Middlesex and indeed Western Ontario has education taken such a large place at a banquet as yes-erday in the Indian Room at the Te-cumseh House, where the board of governors of the Western University entertained the members of the county council and representatives of the council and representatives of the farmers' clubs of the district at a banfarmers' clubs of the district at a banquet, following an afternoon spent in viewing the 200-acre site for the new university buildings, and the buildings in course of construction for the medical school on Ottaway avenue.

A. T. Little, chairman of the board of governors presided, and after the banquet a most interesting discussion and expression of views followed the outlining by Lieut.-Col W. J. Brown of the plans of the governors for the extension of the work and influence of the university, especially with regard to the proposed addition to the of the university, especially with regard to the proposed addition to the curriculum of a course in agriculture. The majority of the members of the county council and representatives of the various farmers' clubs took part in the discussion, and expressed great pleasure at realizing that the Western University was not, as had been often claimed, solely a London affair, but in a very real sense a Western Ontario university. A high plane was taken by each of the speakers, it being stoutly declared that the real aim of education should be to aid to the enjoyment of work, and not merely an end to money-making or a stepping stone to social position.

Course Welcomed.

The suggestion of an agricultural course at the University was warmly welcomed, and a committee of representatives of the farmers' clubs was named to work in conjunction with the board of governors in the development of the idea. Members of the county council were not named on this committee, as it was felt that through the frequent meetings of the council and the fact that the governors had decided to make the warden of the county an ex-officio member of the board they would be in constant touch with the work and could at any time offer or criticize the plans of the board. In opening the speech-making, Mr.

Allen's Theatre yesterday, is in no degree behind previous productions from his pen.

The story centers round the adventures of a young soldier, impersonated by Roy Stewart, who returns to his home from the great war to find the country terrorized by a band of desperadoes engaged in preventing the delivery of the great wheat crop to the markets of the world. Incidentally he finds that Clair Adams, in the role of the daughter of a neighboring farmer with whom he is in love, being courted by a young attorney who has of a neighboring courted by a young attorney who has stayed at home.

So great have the depredations become that the farmers of the district have organized a band of vigilantes, and he is invited, because of his military record, to become the leader. With the introduction into the story of a French girl, who claims to be the wife of the young hero, things begin to move fast, and the kidnapping of the young sister of his financee quickly brings matters to a climax in a spectacular fight between the bandits and the vigilantes. The setting of the whole picture is exceptionally fine Other features of the bill were a Charlie Chaplin comedy, "The Adventurer," a Mutt and Jeff cartoon and the Allen World News film. The musical item was a delightful violin solo, for which the audience demanded an encore. The same bill will be presented today and tomorrow.
