

The Toronto World

Published every day except Sunday and public holidays.
 Telephone Calls: Main 300—Private 300—Exchange 300.
 Branch Office—31 South John St., Hamilton, Telephone, Regent 1848.
 Daily World—20 per copy; delivered, 50c per month, $1.35 for 3 months, $2.50 for 6 months, $4.50 per year, 40c per month, by mail.
 Canada (except Toronto), United Kingdom, United States and Mexico, 5c per copy; by mail, $2.50 per year, by mail.
 Foreign Countries, postage extra.
 WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 14.

Lining Up for the Next Dominion Election—A General Foch Wanted.

We are back to party politics, in the opinion of The Toronto Star, and the new prime minister may find Hon. N. W. Rowell pitted against him at the next election. The Union government is said to be "dissolved." The Liberal-Unionists are called upon to leave the temple where Arthur Meighen presides and follow Mr. Rowell into the wilderness.

Mr. Meighen, according to The Star, is the leader and statesman of the big interests and influential classes. He has no sympathy-like Mr. Rowell, with the mill-run of humanity. A rather troublesome mill-run it seems to be, according to The Star.

With upheavings, discontents and strivings against fate and circumstance.

Former Liberals still faithful to the Meighen government are told in plain words by The Star that they will get no reward for their fidelity. Mr. Meighen is described as a hard-shell Tory who has no use at all for the Grigs. He may accept their allegiance, but he will do so without distributing judgements and senapathies in return. The new party of which he is leader is said to be Conservative, and to invite only Conservatives to the first table. Liberals weak enough to support it are looked upon as poor relations, and are told:

His party may provide a lean-to or an annex for the housing of strangers, but in the main dining hall the table will be the same old guests long favored, richly provided for, with all and sundry fetching and carrying for them.

As a Liberal, The Star tells us, Mr. Rowell could not join the new ministry; and it doubts if any Liberal can support the Meighen government. Again to quote:

Just how Hon. J. A. Calder can remain in the Meighen ministry or how Liberal-Unionists in parliament can bring themselves to fuse with the new party which is being formed on the dissolution of the Union government we do not know. Those who predict that they will support it are, perhaps, speaking too soon.

Thus it appears that the Liberals who joined the Union party in 1917 are summoned back to the fold. "To your tents, O Israel!" cry The Star and Toronto Globe alike. The Liberal party, reunited and revived, is to battle against a "Tory government" presided over by Hon. Arthur Meighen. But where does Mr. Rowell come in? Will he make his peace with the Liberal opposition in the house of commons led by Hon. Mr. King? Will he lead the next session by the side of that leader or will he find a common ground of agreement with Premier Drury of Ontario and Hon. T. A. Cresser, leader of the Farmers' party in the federal field? Will Leader King long stand in the way of Mr. Rowell's ambition?

We cannot agree with The Star that there will be an election this fall, but an election must come in time, and some powerful combination may be formed against the Meighen government. Mr. Rowell has some ability in bringing men with discordant views together, and driving them for a time at least in double harness. Will he effect some combination between the Liberals and the Farmers' parties? Will he lead a movement which can count at the start on the support of The Globe, The Star, The Farmers' Sun and The Grain Growers' Guide?

But it will be impossible for Mr. Rowell to do any pussyfooting. If The Star precedes him with a base drum, who out of these four, possible generals will be the Foch for the allies?

The New Cabinet.

The new cabinet does not differ greatly from the old one, but there are some changes worth mentioning. Hon. N. W. Rowell retires, perhaps to become later on the leader of the opposition. Hon. James A. Calder, another Liberal-Unionist, succeeds Mr. Rowell as president of the privy council and also retains his portfolio as minister of immigration. Hon. Martin Burrell, who has been a member of the government since 1911 and a member of the house since 1908, retires from public life to become the librarian of parliament.

New members of the government so far are two, F. B. McCurdy, M.P. for Colchester, N.S., and R. W. Wignmore, M.P. for St. John, N.B. Mr. McCurdy has always been a Conservative, while Mr. Wignmore was a Liberal before joining the Unionist party. Both gentlemen will have to go back to their constituents for re-election, and these will be the only by-elections made necessary by the incoming of the new prime minister. Mr. McCurdy is a keen politician, who has probably looked over the ground before accepting a cabinet position. Mr. Wignmore, we are told, is practically assured of an acclamation. Mr. McCurdy becomes minister of public works and Mr. Wignmore succeeds Hon. Mr. Burrell as minister of customs.

Mr. Meighen relinquishes his portfolio as minister of the interior, and is succeeded in that important position by Sir James Loughheed. Sir James since 1917 has been minister of soldiers' civil re-establishment, but the work of that department, now reduced to a minimum, has been taken over by the department of militia and defence. The balance of the cabinet slate is made up of reappointments. Sir Edward Kemp, formerly minister of militia and defence and later on Canadian minister of militia overseas, joins the new cabinet as minister without portfolio.

Enough Liberals remain to give the government "that rosy red color," which Sir Wilfrid Laurier described as "pleasing to the eye." They include Messrs. Sifton, Calder, Guthrie, Bellantyne and Wignmore, not counting Hon. Mr. Tolmie, who was never active in politics, but was credited with Liberal leanings in the past.

Altho Mr. Calder will preside at the meetings of the cabinet, many Liberals will suspect that where Mr. Meighen sits, there will be the head of the table. The prime minister, it is true, has always been a Conservative, but he has given his Liberal-Unionist supporters in the house a large measure of representation in the cabinet.

The Third Party.

That third party convention at Chicago was full of ginger and the old party politicians may well stop, look, and listen. The "Party-Eighters," the Farmers, the Single Taxers and the World War Veterans were all made welcome and taken to their hearts by the delegates to the national convention of the Labor party. A "trix-cross pie," you may call it, but it may, all the same, be filled with good fruit.

The spirit of the convention was free and joyous, with no bosses in the wings to dictate and no steamroller in sight. If the same spirit spreads through the country we may look for a campaign of flaming enthusiasm.

"This will either be a farce or a tornado," said Martin Van Buren when he saw the "log cabin and hard cider" campaign of 1840 getting under way, and it turned out to be a tornado. In Canada a Farmers' third party movement and the Labor party have been causing cyclones in the politics of Ontario and Manitoba and in the Dominion by-elections. No one can say what like forces may accomplish in the United States.

And on these lines the public over there and here will wait on tip-toe to hear the name of the standard-bearer they select. Much will depend on the man.

FUNERAL OF J. H. FEELEY WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

Because of the high regard in which he was held by all who knew him and because of the particularly sad circumstances surrounding the sudden death of J. H. Feeley, the congregation which attended his funeral service in St. Francis Xavier's Church yesterday morning was deeply affected.

The requiem mass was sung by the pastor of St. Francis, Rev. W. A. McCann, Rev. Fathers Murray and Fraser, assisted by deacon and sub-deacon, respectively, Rev. Francis Feeley of New York, a son of the deceased, arrived from that city in time for the funeral services. Father's Clancy, Bench and Murray of St. Augustine's Seminary were also in the sanctuary. Interment was made in Mount Hope Cemetery.

Besides his wife, the deceased left six sons: the Rev. Francis Feeley of New York, John of Montreal, William of Providence, R. L. of Peter, Samuel and Joseph of Toronto, and four daughters, Sister Mary Angela, Mrs. Bolger and the Misses Anna and May of this city.

CONSPIRACY TO CONTROL I. O. D. E. IS DENIED

In refutation of the charges made by T. E. Ferguson, K.C., at the recent Orange demonstration at Exhibition Park, to the effect that a Roman Catholic conspiracy was on foot to control the I.O.D.E., it was pointed out by a member that the question of creed has never been an issue in the order since we are a non-sectarian organization. The impetus of the war work naturally brought in more Roman Catholics.

There are forty Catholics on the executive of four for the Dominion, and it is not known that religion has ever entered into these appointments. Mrs. A. W. McDougall is quoted as saying: "I am glad to correct the statement of Mr. Ferguson that I ever at any time made any attack upon Mrs. Gooderham. This is absolutely without foundation." And Mrs. Philip Kiely, in her explanation regarding her report, published in Echoes, stated, according to same report: "It will easily be seen that Mr. Ferguson has grossly misinterpreted the meaning of it into an 'attack'."

ATTENDS SIGNAL CONVENTION

J. R. W. Ambrose, chief engineer of the Toronto Railway terminals, left for Alexander Bay yesterday to attend an international conference on railway signalling.

SIR LOMER SUCCEEDS RACINE.

Quebec, July 13.—Sir Lomer Gouin, late premier of Quebec, was nominated this morning as legislative councillor for the division of Salsbury, replacing the late Hon. Mr. Racine.

WIN FOR MONTREAL BARBERS.

Montreal, July 13.—The barber strike in Montreal ended in a victory for the men, who demanded $35 a week and fifty per cent. of all money earned over $35 a week.

THE TORONTO WORLD

PANHANDLING

NEW SHIP SERVICE TO THE WEST INDIES

Government Intends Establishing Steamer Line Between Halifax, to Bermuda.

Ottawa, July 13.—First fruits of the West Indies conference, held recently in Ottawa, will come in the form of the establishment early in 1921 of a new steamship service between Canada and the West Indies. The government, it is learned, has undertaken the commencement, probably in January next, of a service considered by the conference under the name of the Western Steamship Service. This scheme provides for sailings from Halifax and St. John to Bermuda, thence to the Bahamas and British Honduras and return. The arrangements being made provide for the installation on two of the 5000-ton vessels now being constructed for freight service on the route, accommodation for about twenty-five first-class passengers.

LEFT ESTATE TO HEAD OF NAPOLEON FAMILY

London, July 13.—The late Empress Eugenie bequeathed her mansion and her estate at Farnborough, England, to Prince Victor Napoleon and his wife, formerly Princess Clemetilde of Belgium, according to a Madrid dispatch to The Daily Mail. She also left a considerable sum to Queen Victoria of Spain, who was her daughter, the newspaper says.

Two Rumanians Are Hanged In Jail at Quebec City

Quebec, July 13.—Nick Daboka and George Morhart, two Rumanians, who murdered a compatriot, Tater Kostian, on July 27, 1919, at Kenogam, were hanged in the jail here this morning. The hanged man was a Montreale colored man, who volunteered to act as executioner, when Ellis, the official hangman, could not act. It is understood that the hangman, who gives the name of Allen, was released from Bordeaux jail, where he was serving a term of imprisonment, in order to conduct the executions.

BANQUET TO SIR HAMAR.

London, July 13.—(By Canadian Press).—The Canada Club held a dinner tonight in honor of Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, Col. Sir Campbell Stuart, deputy chairman, described Sir Hamar as the most important Canadian in the public service in the United Kingdom. The guests included Sir George Perley, the Archbishop of Nova Scotia, the Bishop of Montreal and Col. Amery, under secretary of state for the colonies.

URGE A THRU MAIL SERVICE

Cochrane, Ont., July 13.—Business men here, through whose whose trade, have petitioned the postoffice for the establishment of a thru mail service between Winnipeg and Cochrane, now that the Canadian National Railway is giving a daily service. At present the mail is carried around by North Bay and C.P.R.

WORLD'S DAILY BRAIN TEST

BY SAM LOYD
 2 Minutes to Answer This.
 No. 245.

My son is five times as old as my daughter, and my wife is five times as old as the son, and I am twice as old as my wife, while grandmother, who is as old as all of us put together, is celebrating her 81st birthday. How old is the son?

Answer to No. 244.

The diagram shows how the three squares can be dissected into six pieces which may be re-formed into one square. Just slide up that upper two-piece triangle, which will produce a triangular space at the upper right-hand corner of the square to be formed; and into that space will fit the two-piece triangle at the lower left-hand corner. It is an application of Euclid.

(Copyright, 1919, by Sam Loyd.)

START SHOOTING FOR KING'S PRIZE

Scores Made by Canadians at the Two Hundred Yards Range.

Bisley Camp, July 13.—The winners of Canadians in the Alexandra competition were: Major F. Richardson, Victoria, sixteen; Major J. Young, Toronto, twenty; Capt. F. R. Martin, 19th; Lieut. John Chandler, Woodstock, N.B., 17; Sgt. James H. Monaghan, 19th; Major J. A. Hawkins, Toronto, 18; Sgt. W. A. Hawkins, Toronto, 18; Sgt. J. G. Coles, Regina, 20th; Capt. W. S. Tinsman, Quebec, 21st; Capt. C. R. Crowe, Guelph, was counted out. A stiff breeze, with a changing light, tended to bring down the general level of scoring from yesterday's achievement. No possible was scored in the first couple of hours, the four competitors made 49. The Canadians were mostly squadded late. Scores of those few who shot early were: Company Sgt.-Major F. Goodhouse, Ottawa, and Pte. W. J. Irvine, Ottawa, 47; Sgt. W. A. Hawkins, Toronto, 48; Capt. W. J. Sangster, Falmouth, N.S., 44.

The King's prize is open only to past and present members of his majesty's forces. The winner gets 1500, donated by the King, a gold medal and gold badge. The next twenty-nine marksmen get badges and money prizes. Shooting in King's Prize. Additional Canadian scores in the King's prize competition at two hundred yards range were: Lieut.-Col. P. E. Bowen, Edmonton, 49; Major J. Young, Toronto, 48; Capt. C. R. Crowe, Guelph, and Sgt.-Major W. J. Sangster, Falmouth, N.S., 44; Major J. A. Hawkins, Toronto, 48; Major Northover, Winnipeg, and Sgt. J. H. Monaghan, 19th; Sgt. J. G. Coles, Regina, 20th; Capt. F. R. Martin, 19th; Lieut. John Chandler, Woodstock, N.B., was fifth, and Lieut.-Col. P. E. Bowen of Edmonton was tenth.

In the second stage squadded competition of His Majesty the King's prize, 40 scores of 85 will shoot for 26 places.

Grand Trunk Railway Clerks Accept Advance in Wages

Ottawa, July 13.—Clerks in the employ of the Grand Trunk Railway have accepted the eight per cent. increase in wages recommended recently by a board of arbitration. The clerks balanced on the award, the result being to accept it. It is effective from July 1.

SENATOR DENNIS' FUNERAL

Halifax, N.S., July 13.—The body of Senator William Dennis, whose death occurred on Sunday last, at Boston, arrived here today, and the funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock from his late residence to Camp Hill Cemetery. It is expected that the federal parliament will be represented.

NO ONTARIO CROP REPORT

New Liskeard, Ont., July 13.—Crops in this district have been retarded by the warm weather and the capricious showers of late, and having commenced.

CANADA'S MARINE FLEET COMPLETE IN NINE MONTHS

Ottawa, July 13.—(By Canadian Press).—Such satisfactory progress is being made with the construction of Canada's mercantile marine fleet that it is believed in government circles that the whole fleet of 63 vessels will be in commission by March 31 next, the end of the current fiscal year.

Up to the present time, 32 vessels have been finished, and splendid headway is being made with the other half of the fleet.

MERRITON STEEL BRIDGE IS WRECKED BY A CRANE

St. Catharines, Ont., July 13.—The steel bridge on Main street, Merriton, over the Grand Trunk Railway, was badly wrecked last night, when it was struck by the boom of a combination derrick crane and derrick, which was being hauled beneath the bridge. Arthur Sauve, who was riding on the crane, was injured.

Sir Matthew Nathan Appointed As Governor of Queensland

London, July 13.—Sir Matthew Nathan has been appointed governor of Queensland, in succession to the late Sir Hamilton Goid Adams.

WESTERN MURDERER TO HANG

Prince Albert, Sask., July 13.—John Yusk, the 19-year-old son of Andrew Yusk of Hoodoo, will tomorrow morning die on the scaffold at the provincial jail for the murder of Mrs. Martin Lishinsky of Hoodoo. At the eleventh hour, the provincial police are investigating a statement made recently by Yusk to Sheriff Heath, implicating another man.

JUDITH OF BLUE LAKE RANCH

By JACKSON GREGORY.

PARDNERS.

CHAPTER XII.

From without came the low murmur of men's voices. Judith laid her book aside and drew her rifle across her knees, her eyes bright and eager. At infrequent intervals for perhaps three or four minutes the two voices came indistinctly to those in the club. Then silence for as long a time. And then a voice again, this time quite near the door, calling out clearly:

"Hey, you in there! Pitch the money out the window and we'll let you go."

"There's a voice," said Judith quietly, "to remember: I'll be able to swear to it in court."

Certainly a voice to remember, just as one remembers an unusual face for years, tho it be but chance one seen in a crowd. A voice markedly individual, not merely because it was somewhat high-pitched for a man's, but rather for a quality not easily defined, which gave it a certain vibrant, unpleasant harshness, sounding metallic almost, rasping, as tho with the hiss of steel surfaces rubbing.

It was not possible to describe adequately, yet, as Judith said, not to be forgotten. Judith noticed a puzzled look on Bud's face. He called out: "What did you say about there?"

Word for word came the command again: "Pitch the money out the window and we'll let you go."

Lee turned triumphantly to Judith. "We got his tag!" he whispered to her. "I played poker with that voice one night four months ago in Rocky Bend!"

"Who is he?" Judith whispered back. "With Crowley down, if we know who one of these men is the rest will be easy. Who is he?"

"A bad egg," Lee told her gravely. "He's done time in the state as a convict, less than a year. Gunman, stick-up man, convicted once already for manslaughter."

"Not Chris Quinlan, is it?" she cried excitedly. "Not Chris Quinlan!"

"Sh!" he commanded softly. "There's no use tipping our hand off to him. Yes; it's crooked Chris Quinlan. You don't know him, do you?"

He had never seen her eyes look as they looked now. They were as hard and bright as steel; no true woman's eyes he thought swiftly. Rather the eyes of a man with murder in his heart.

"Then, thank God," whispered Judith, her voice tense. "Can you keep a secret with me, Bud Lee?"

"Not for the man calling to us now. Luke Sanford would be here in our stead. Crooked Chris Quinlan served his time in San Quentin because my father sent him there. And he had not been free six months before he kept his oath and murdered my poor old dad!"

"Well," came the interrupting snarl of Quinlan's voice, like the ominous whine of an enraged animal. "What's the word?"

"Give us five minutes to think it over," returned Lee coolly. And, incredulous eyes on Judith's set face, he said gently: "I was on the ranch when the accident happened. He must have driven that heavy car a little too close to the edge of the grade. The bank just naturally gave way."

Judith, her lips tightly compressed, shook her head.

"You didn't find him under the car, did you? And the blow that killed him might have been dealt with some heavy weapon in the hands of a man standing behind him, mightn't it? I know, Bud Lee, I know!"

"How do you know?" he demanded.

"Give us five minutes to think it over," returned Lee coolly. And, incredulous eyes on Judith's set face, he said gently: "I was on the ranch when the accident happened. He must have driven that heavy car a little too close to the edge of the grade. The bank just naturally gave way."

Judith, her lips tightly compressed, shook her head.

"You didn't find him under the car, did you? And the blow that killed him might have been dealt with some heavy weapon in the hands of a man standing behind him, mightn't it? I know, Bud Lee, I know!"

"How do you know?" he demanded.

"Give us five minutes to think it over," returned Lee coolly. And, incredulous eyes on Judith's set face, he said gently: "I was on the ranch when the accident happened. He must have driven that heavy car a little too close to the edge of the grade. The bank just naturally gave way."

Judith, her lips tightly compressed, shook her head.

"You didn't find him under the car, did you? And the blow that killed him might have been dealt with some heavy weapon in the hands of a man standing behind him, mightn't it? I know, Bud Lee, I know!"

"How do you know?" he demanded.

"Give us five minutes to think it over," returned Lee coolly. And, incredulous eyes on Judith's set face, he said gently: "I was on the ranch when the accident happened. He must have driven that heavy car a little too close to the edge of the grade. The bank just naturally gave way."

Judith, her lips tightly compressed, shook her head.

"You didn't find him under the car, did you? And the blow that killed him might have been dealt with some heavy weapon in the hands of a man standing behind him, mightn't it? I know, Bud Lee, I know!"

"How do you know?" he demanded.

"Give us five minutes to think it over," returned Lee coolly. And, incredulous eyes on Judith's set face, he said gently: "I was on the ranch when the accident happened. He must have driven that heavy car a little too close to the edge of the grade. The bank just naturally gave way."

Judith, her lips tightly compressed, shook her head.

"You didn't find him under the car, did you? And the blow that killed him might have been dealt with some heavy weapon in the hands of a man standing behind him, mightn't it? I know, Bud Lee, I know!"

"How do you know?" he demanded.

PARDNERS.

CHAPTER XII.

From without came the low murmur of men's voices. Judith laid her book aside and drew her rifle across her knees, her eyes bright and eager. At infrequent intervals for perhaps three or four minutes the two voices came indistinctly to those in the club. Then silence for as long a time. And then a voice again, this time quite near the door, calling out clearly:

"Hey, you in there! Pitch the money out the window and we'll let you go."

"There's a voice," said Judith quietly, "to remember: I'll be able to swear to it in court."

Certainly a voice to remember, just as one remembers an unusual face for years, tho it be but chance one seen in a crowd. A voice markedly individual, not merely because it was somewhat high-pitched for a man's, but rather for a quality not easily defined, which gave it a certain vibrant, unpleasant harshness, sounding metallic almost, rasping, as tho with the hiss of steel surfaces rubbing.

It was not possible to describe adequately, yet, as Judith said, not to be forgotten. Judith noticed a puzzled look on Bud's face. He called out: "What did you say about there?"

Word for word came the command again: "Pitch the money out the window and we'll let you go."

Lee turned triumphantly to Judith. "We got his tag!" he whispered to her. "I played poker with that voice one night four months ago in Rocky Bend!"

"Who is he?" Judith whispered back. "With Crowley down, if we know who one of these men is the rest will be easy. Who is he?"

"A bad egg," Lee told her gravely. "He's done time in the state as a convict, less than a year. Gunman, stick-up man, convicted once already for manslaughter."

"Not Chris Quinlan, is it?" she cried excitedly. "Not Chris Quinlan!"

"Sh!" he commanded softly. "There's no use tipping our hand off to him. Yes; it's crooked Chris Quinlan. You don't know him, do you?"

He had never seen her eyes look as they looked now. They were as hard and bright as steel; no true woman's eyes he thought swiftly. Rather the eyes of a man with murder in his heart.

"Then, thank God," whispered Judith, her voice tense. "Can you keep a secret with me, Bud Lee?"

"Not for the man calling to us now. Luke Sanford would be here in our stead. Crooked Chris Quinlan served his time in San Quentin because my father sent him there. And he had not been free six months before he kept his oath and murdered my poor old dad!"

"Well," came the interrupting snarl of Quinlan's voice, like the ominous whine of an enraged animal. "What's the word?"

"Give us five minutes to think it over," returned Lee coolly. And, incredulous eyes on Judith's set face, he said gently: "I was on the ranch when the accident happened. He must have driven that heavy car a little too close to the edge of the grade. The bank just naturally gave way."

Judith, her lips tightly compressed, shook her head.

"You didn't find him under the car, did you? And the blow that killed him might have been dealt with some heavy weapon in the hands of a man standing behind him, mightn't it? I know, Bud Lee, I know!"

"How do you know?" he demanded.

"Give us five minutes to think it over," returned Lee coolly. And, incredulous eyes on Judith's set face, he said gently: "I was on the ranch when the accident happened. He must have driven that heavy car a little too close to the edge of the grade. The bank just naturally gave way."

Judith, her lips tightly compressed, shook her head.

"You didn't find him under the car, did you? And the blow that killed him might have been dealt with some heavy weapon in the hands of a man standing behind him, mightn't it? I know, Bud Lee, I know!"

"How do you know?" he demanded.

"Give us five minutes to think it over," returned Lee coolly. And, incredulous eyes on Judith's set face, he said gently: "I was on the ranch when the accident happened. He must have driven that heavy car a little too close to the edge of the grade. The bank just naturally gave way."

Judith, her lips tightly compressed, shook her head.

"You didn't find him under the car, did you? And the blow that killed him might have been dealt with some heavy weapon in the hands of a man standing behind him, mightn't it? I know, Bud Lee, I know!"

"How do you know?" he demanded.

"Give us five minutes to think it over," returned Lee coolly. And, incredulous eyes on Judith's set face, he said gently: "I was on the ranch when the accident happened. He must have driven that heavy car a little too close to the edge of the grade. The bank just naturally gave way."

Judith, her lips tightly compressed, shook her head.

"You didn't find him under the car, did you? And the blow that killed him might have been dealt with some heavy weapon in the hands of a man standing behind him, mightn't it? I know, Bud Lee, I know!"