PARKDALE GAVE

Bond Street School Only Able to Secure One-Goal Margin.

Last night's junior S.P.A. game worked good in two ways. De La Salle, picked by many to win the local junior homors, had to put a decided kick into their playing in the dying minutes of the game to get a 6-to-5 verdict over the green Parkdale outfit. The moraltaught worked both ways. It learned Del that they must get down to brass tacks if they expect to land anywhere and the ways. expect to land anywhere, and the result did Parkdale a heap of good, showing them that nothing is hopeless, and that a steady grind will carry a team a long way.

De La Salle jumped into a four-goal lead in the opening period, and it was a good thing for them that they ran these in early. They went scoreless in the second period, and were outscored four to two in the last tilt. Two of the Del players went around with a "keep-your-hands-off-me" attitude that did not gain them any friends, and with a more experienced team might have led to some trouble. Halloran, late of Parkdale, carried a chip on his shoulder in the (arly stages, but he picked a wildcat in "Hooley" Smith, and got a warmer on the nose, and then ended on the ice. This ended this little buzzing. Bond also invited attention, but got away without damage.

De La Salle have the class, but they must drill in their teamplay, and drill hard. Starting with Eddie Rodden at centre, they are strong all the way down the line, and concerted effort will carry them a long way. The one weak spot is the net. Loftus was willing, but very green. He was down on the ice a dozen times, and finally got a penalty for it. Coach Rodden has half a dozen net candidates, and out of the squad should get one good one. Once this spot is patched up, and if Del have taken last night's lesson to heart, get out the roll and lay the odds.

Eddie Rodden was easily the outstand-De La Salle jumped into a four-goal
