We regret that this day's paper is more than usually reen of foreign intelligence. But this, on our part, is solutely unavoidable. Whatever our readers may think, at least, have the consolation of knowing, that had a thing of importance offered since the publication of last number, it should not have been withheld. Our other Editors seem to be as destitute of information as selves. From the Halfax papers nothing of any parar moment, or in the issue of which we are intimately precented, can be gleaned; and in looking over the latter than the second of the day, in the result of which they may feel more less interested. We hope, however, that the extracts on the devoid of interest.

The Season.—A gentleman informs us that a few days we while walking on the opposite shore at Dartmouth, he reveral of the wild strawberries in full bloom. In the aden of Mr. Samuel Story, we are also assured, that a gentleman should be searly potatoes has been raised from seed at out of the first crop. They have reached an ordinary aze, and on cooking are quite dry and mealy. TO CORRESPONDENTS.

The remarks of "An old Correspondent," published of this day's number, we recognize the hand writing of "A Blue Nose," to whose first communication, publicity was viven. In making this assertion, we may be mistaken, ut, be that as it may, his observations, in the present inance, are too correct to be questioned. That the youth this City do not devote a greater portion of their time is the cultivation of "native talent," than they at present, ere inclined to bestow, is much to be regretted;—and we are many whose intellectual powers are sufferent of these who possess them, or neglect in those whose any it is to patronize "Genius in the bud," is a melanchoty truth, and shatever difference may exist as to the march of intellect," between this and our Sister Provertain it is that a very little exertion on their part have the desired effect of redeeming their character the charge of ignorance, and of placing them on a partice Literatio of Nova Scotia, We foodly anticipate TO CORRESPONDENTS.

the charge of ignerance, and of placing them on a par-ticle Literatio f Nova Scotia. We foully anticipate improvement in the "Republic of Letters," during occi months, the realization of which will more than ompensate, us for the attention already bestowed on our art, and which, as conductors of this paper, will be found ter ready at the service of those who are worthy of be-rooticed.

The Poetical effusion sent us by "Perambulator," possess too much of the sublime for insertion in our Paper—scept it be given verbatim.
