Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 11—It is expected that within a few days the Canadian government will offer a second expeditionary contingent for service abroad. While the offer has not formally gone forward, and probably will not until the Valcartier force has been despatched, there have been unofficial intimations to the British government that another contingent might be expected. In fact, so plainly has this been put that the second Canadian expeditionary contingent has been referred to by British ministers in the Wence of Transcript.
