THE ACADIA BULLETIN.

A bright little publication called the Acadia Bulletin has made its appearance, and will be issued monthly, as a welcome visitor to the Acadia community. This first issue stated that while the registration is incomplete and a few more students may be expected, especially in the academy and seminary, there are 230 students in the college, 184 in the academy and 270 in the seminary, or 684 in all. It is noted that the Baptist historical library at Acadia has been augmented by valuable collections. Personal items tell of many graduates of Acadia occupying prominent positions. Branches of the Associated Alumni have been formed in Halifax and New York. Those interested in the Acadia institutions will value this new publication.

Kinney, of 288 Normandy street, Dorchester, by giving her $100 shares of a certain stock which are valued at $18,400.

IMPORTANT INDICATIONS OF CHURCH UNION VOTE

(Montreal Witness)
The quarterly board of St. James' Methodist church supported church union by a vote of 32 to 8 and one to abstain. The congregation were given ballots yesterday, and it is hoped the result of the complete vote will be announced soon. Both services at St. James yesterday were devoted to the question of church union. The Rev. Dr. Sparling said that whereas the Methodist church was noted by autocratic, the aim of the united church was democracy. The spirit of the age was becoming more and more democratic, and unless the church kept abreast of the times it could not expect to be successful. Union, maintained the speaker, was bound to come, whether or not at a later date, but if a large minority opposed the movement now it would be better not to force it.

WAS NO RIOT IN BELFAST

Government Said to Have Issued a Warning to Both Sides

NEWS LETTER FROM DUBLIN

Sir Edward Carson Was Shown That Fatality Would Mean Indictment for Inciting to Murder and Nationalists That Home Rule Would Be Lost

(Times Special Correspondence)
Dublin, Feb. 27.—Only a few people know the real reason why there was no rioting in Belfast on the occasion of Sir Edward Carson's visit. It has never been published. Belfast was not overawed by the 5,000 troops which were brought into the city. Troops are little use for controlling street fighting in a city like Belfast, particularly when they are strangers and the rioters know every stone in the streets. Besides they were concentrated just where they would have been of no use.

One expected that there would be any fighting at Celtic Park, where the meeting was held. Even Belfast rioters have no stomach for going out in an open field to fight where the soldiers can get at them. The real danger points were in the Falls road, and Sandy row districts, the Nationalist and Orange quarters, and the narrow streets on the borderland of the two kingdoms, but there was not a soldier to be seen there and mighty few police. The real reason why no heads were broken in Belfast was that the government took the exceedingly sensible step of warning Lord Londonderry and Sir Edward Carson that if a single life was lost they would be placed on trial for inciting to murder. The warning was given privately, but it was enough in such terms that these redoubtable warriors felt that it was given in earnest and Sir Edward Carson at least, who is a great lawyer, knew that they stood an unreasonably good chance of conviction in the event of such a charge.

At the same time an equally quiet but equally serious warning was given to Joseph Devlin, the Nationalist M. P. for West Belfast, that if he roiled element among his followers, who are known locally as "Joe's lads," got out of hand and started a fight, things might become so serious that the government would have to drop the home rule bill.

Now it is often said that Belfast is the best disciplined town in the world and this occasion has proved it. The Orangemen are controlled by the Orange Lodges and a word from Lord Londonderry and Sir Edward Carson was enough to set the Orangemen of the lodge in motion in aid of peace. A word from the other direction would have meant riot and bloodshed. The Nationalists are controlled through the Ancient Order of Hibernians and they were warned that everything depended on their good behavior.

These two forces accounted for the men, but the problem of the women remained, and it was an uncommonly serious one, for the mill girls of both parties have started a row in days gone by. Neither the Orange Lodges nor the Ancient Order could guarantee that they would not start a fight which would inflame their brothers and sisters. The problem was solved at a private conference with the Lord Mayor of Belfast, Mr. Birrell, the Chief Secretary for Ireland, talking about Belfast intemperance, declared that the Corporation of Belfast employed only one Roman Catholic. The official return, which is just out, shows that Mr. Birrell was mistaken. There are 900 Protestants employed on salaries, which amount to about $75,000 a year, and 100 Roman Catholics at about $20,000 a year, while on weekly wages there are 1,100 Protestants at $1,000,000 a year, and 770 Roman Catholics at $200,000. This proportion is about the same as that of the population of the city, and the lower salaries of the Catholics are explained by the fact that in Belfast they form the poorest and least educated portion of the population.

The fact is that all the talk of religious intolerance either in the North or the South of Ireland is nonsense. There is not any Roman Catholic and Protestant Irishmen live at peace with each other as neighbors for 300 years in the year and only momentary differences in times of great excitement. When the cause for that excitement is removed, they will be friends all the year round.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE

Salomy Jane, a dramatization of Brete Hart's famous poem, will be played by the Mervin-Harder Company at the Opera House tonight, Thursday matinee, and Thursday evening. This play was Eleanor Robertson's starring vehicle, and was presented at the Academy in New York city for an entire season. This is one of the company's finest productions.

Girl Cured of Disfiguring Pimples

By Cuticura Ointment. Broke Out on Face when Twelve or Thirteen. Were Most Embarrassing. Had Tried Everything.

A Nova Scotia girl, Miss Mabel Morash, of Dover West, writes: "When I was about twelve or thirteen years of age, my face broke out with pimples, and I tried everything to get rid of them, but failed. The pimples were the worst on my forehead and nose. They came out in groups and developed into sores. Being on my face they caused great disfigurement, and were most embarrassing."

After trying so many remedies without success, I saw the Cuticura Ointment advertised, and I sent for a box. I then applied it to the pimples, and in a week I saw a great change in my face. I kept using it, and in a few months it was cured. Now you cannot tell I ever had pimples, thanks to the Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Miss Mabel Morash, Mar. 31, 1911.

Baby's Face Like Raw Beef

"My baby boy had a large pimple come on his forehead. It burst and spread all over his face which soon looked like a piece of raw beef. I was quite frightened that he would always be disfigured. Then I got two tins of Cuticura Ointment, together with Cuticura Soap, and in two months had quite cured him. Now of course I use Cuticura Soap for all my children (Signed) Mrs. E. Perry, 90, Waterloo St., Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 21, 1910.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, but to those who have suffered much, hope and are with cuticura in any treatment, a liberal sample of each with a 25c. booklet on skin and scalp will be mailed free, on application. THE STAGE IN ENGLAND

George Edwards Talks of His Latest Project — Gossip Over Censor's Refusal to License "The Secret Woman"

(Times' Special Correspondence)

London, Feb. 17.—Just as we fondly imagined that the torrid which has recently been whirling round the head of the Lord Chamberlain had spent its force, the storm has burst out again. No sooner is he accosted in one place than he is attacked in another.

Eden Phillpotts's play, "The Secret Woman," had been banned by the censor as unfit for public performance. Now Eden Phillpotts, it is almost superfluous to say, occupies a high position in the ranks of English novelists.

Eden Phillpotts is a man of letters, and a man of letters is not to be trifled with. He has a grave risk of discomfiture. We all know that, on Shakespeare's authority, what in the captain is but shrewish word, is in the soldier flat blasphemy.

Eden Phillpotts is a man of letters, and a man of letters is not to be trifled with. He has a grave risk of discomfiture. We all know that, on Shakespeare's authority, what in the captain is but shrewish word, is in the soldier flat blasphemy.

The immediate outcome of the censor's interference in the present instance has been, accordingly, a forcible worded letter published in "The Times" and signed by a number of leading authors like Archibald, Barrie, Hewlett, Conan Doyle, Anthony Hope, Henry James, Pinero, Bernard Shaw, Wells, Zangwill, and so forth, protesting against the indignity to which their fellow writers has been subjected.

I have, of course, read Phillpotts's novel on which the play is based, and am bound to admit it is pretty strong, a little too strong perhaps for the delicate digestions of babes and sucklings. The old wall-worm argument has been advanced that what is permitted in a novel ought to be allowed on the stage. To this contention I have never been able quite to reconcile myself, for at the theatre one is dealing with men and women in the flesh while in turning over the pages of a romance you have always the comfortable feeling that the characters are, after all, only the creation of the author's imagination.

Also in the solitude of your study you are able to accept a good deal that you would not care to listen to in mixed company. An audience, like the bigger world outside, is made up of all sorts and conditions of people, and the fact ought, I consider, to be taken into account even by the dramatist who claims like Archibald for the expression of his ideas.

In spite of the censor's interference, "The Secret Woman" will be performed all the same. Granville Barker has decided that there shall be six matinees of the piece at the Kingsway Theatre which anybody who writes a ticket in advance shall be free to witness. Of this step George Alexander asked me to publish his most emphatic disapproval. Clearly it is calculated to hold the censor up to ridicule; he forbids a representation, and yet, by the adoption of a legal subterfuge, his authority is set at naught.

Alexander has reason on his side. Let that be after that I am going to sweep away if you will, but so long as it exists its edict ought surely to be respected. We must not let the censor be regarded as a law-abiding nation; nevertheless, we take the first opportunity of showing our contempt for about which we get only too rarely in the works of their English rivals. On the other hand the liberties are considerably and as a rule want a deal of bowdlerizing to suit our purpose.

Tonight we have the first performance of Phoebe's new comedy at the Duke of York's. The demand for seats has been quite phenomenal. A friend of mine, who has rather a claim upon the goodwill of the management, told me the other day that four or five weeks ago he sent in his request for five stalls, accompanied by a check, to find to his disgust that two brass chairs were the most that could be allotted to him. A play by Pinero probably commands greater attention and arouses keener curiosity than that of any other living dramatist except, perhaps, J. M. Barrie, who appears for the moment to have rather lost the backstage whether from sheer apathy or lack of inspiration I am unable to say.

WHEN COLDS HANG ON
Your Cough, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, and all the ailments of the throat and lungs, are caused by a germ which enters the system by the nose and stays there until it is driven out by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food
You catch cold easily. One cold is not gone till the next one comes. You are unable to shake yourself free, and as a result your system is gradually becoming weaker and weaker.

This is the way to pneumonia or consumption. Colds only hang on when the system is in a weakened or run-down condition, and the blood lacks the richness which is required to fight off the disease germs.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine will free you of the cold, but you must build up the system by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food or you leave yourself open to renewed attack.

Colds do not bother the person whose blood is pure and rich and whose nervous system is filled with energy and vigor. You can fortify yourself against colds and you can ward off such frightful diseases as pneumonia and consumption by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

By a few weeks' use of this great food cure you can build up a reserve force which will enable you to fight off disease and to better accomplish your work in life. Rich, red blood is the greatest of remedies, and there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to form new blood and restore man, vigor and energy to mind and body.
