Labrador Steamer Ashore and Re-floated

Early Saturday morning last as the S. S. Sagona, Capt. W. Parsons, was steaming out of Hr. Grace with a full freight, passengers and mail, she went ashore near the channel opposite the Point de Beach. She was going at slow speed, and this prevented her from making any serious damage, as the bottom where she struck is rocky. At noon on Sunday the steamers Prospero, Fogota and Ethie pulled her off. She proceeded immediately to St. John's and went in the dry dock for examination. The hull was found to be undamaged save for a few dents in one or two of the plates. She resumed her voyage again Monday morning.

Drowning at Bishop's Falls

A drowning accident happened at Bishop's Falls on Monday last, at noon. Jonathan Reid and John Powell, while crossing the river in a canoe and when 50 ft. from the shore the canoe capsized and Reid was drowned. Powell had a narrow escape. Reid is a young man from New Hr. T. B.

Mr. F. W. Hayward was in town on Sunday last.

An excursion train from Carbonear, to North River passed through here on Sunday last, carrying a large number of friends of the Hr. Grace Catholic Cadet Corps who were camping out at North River. Refreshments were served in the school hall during the afternoon and evening.

QUEEN OF ACTRESSES PRAISES PE-RU-NA

"I am glad to write my endorsement of the great remedy, Peruna. I do so most heartily."—Julia Marlowe. Any remedy that benefits digestion strengthens the nerves. The nerve centers require nutrition. If the digestion is impaired, the nerve centers become anemic, and nervous debility is the result.

Civilized Warfare

We hear a great deal nowadays of civilized warfare and its ways. But when we consider it such to be I think we are lost in uncertainty.

There cannot be a Christian war. Because nothing can lessen the great horror of wounded and sick and dying men. Not even the ministering Christian.

There's no time to succor all the distressed; Hence, wounds may be improperly dressed, And limbs that would be saved at home Are hurriedly amputated from some.

Brave soldiers are left on the field to die When defeated armies are forced to fly.

Men who knew no fear in fight Must lie groaning on the field all night.

Poor horses, too, have worked their best In battle din with little rest; Wounded and weary they are left to die In pain and lingering agony.

Heroes who have fought and bled For Country's sake, and now are dead, Are no doubt resting in sweet peace While comrades long for the armistice.

Does God look on with consenting eye To this gruesome work of humanity? Is there not some other way To settle disputes than the innocent to slay?

May universal peace be ours, And unknown the agonizing hours That many human beings share.

A Narrow Escape

On Sunday night about 10:30 o'clock a motor cyclist very nearly met with a "ducking." He motored out the Cross Roads, and thinking the Government Wharf was a continuation of the road cycled midway out to the head when hearing a shout to stop by some young men who were standing by, he leaped off and saved himself from an immersion and possible drowning.

The Highlanders

About 100 Highlanders went out by Monday morning's train from Hr. Grace, where they had been encamped for several days. Some of those merry fellows were standing on the car platforms singing the following little ditty, which goes to show that they appreciated the kindly treatment received at the second city:

Oh, take me back to Hr. Grace,
To Hr. Grace, that dear old place.
Oh, take me back to Hr. Grace,
Down in Conception Bay.

Strains of music from the bagpipes, accordions, etc., floated on the air from the cars and were enjoyed by those standing near.

Catching Lobsters

Last week we referred to lobsters being hooked or speared in the waters of the harbor here, and stated that it was contrary to law. Owing to lack of space we omitted giving the reasons why, in our opinion, the law is a reasonable and just one. If a lobster is hooked or speared and subsequently lost the chances are that it will perish. If it should happen to be a female lobster carrying spawn, any person can readily understand the reasonableness of the law.

No person is prevented from trapping lobsters, for the reason that if on hauling his trap he finds female lobsters therein, he may throw the crustacean back into the water again and no harm is done. These rules were made to conserve this industry, which, at the prices obtainable for lobsters today, is a very valuable one.

Section 14 of the Rules and Regulations governing the fishery reads: "No person shall kill, catch, take, trap, buy, sell or can or have in his possession any female lobster carrying spawn, or any lobster less than eight inches in length."
