

PROMOTIONS IN
BOYS' CENTRALTHE EXAMINATION
RESULTS IN SCHOOLPass Lists and Honor Rolls for Last
Term in the Different Divisions.

The promotion lists of the Boys' Central school are now available. These, together with the honor rolls, are as follows:

PROMOTION LIST.

Division 2.—Senior B Certificates—Edward Adams, Cherrill Betterton, Wallace Courtney, Ian Cameron, Charles Catterall, William Cochrane, William S. Day, James McIntyre, Arnold Vigellus, Malcolm Walker.

Division 3.—Senior B Certificates—D. Brady, W. Gravin, J. Brandon, Robert Ely, Edward Auel, Cuthbert Allen, Errol Newman, David Cochrane, William Cox, Percy Wales, Claude Emery, Robert Spencer, Clifton, J. Dalziel, Fred Locke, John Roberts.

Division 4.—Senior B Certificates—Loo Nai Fat, Vernon Stevens, Hugh Wade, Stephen Johnson, Ivan Stenlund, Gilbert Parfitt, James Goodwin, Stewart Byrrell, Vere Carter, Valentine Crawford, Henry Wootton.

From Division 5 to Divisions 3 and 4—Jim J. Monteith, R. W. Reginald Litchfield, William McKay, Gustav Silvert, Alex. W. Staples, Hugo M. Browne, Darnell Campbell, Clouston Thompson, Robert McKay, Gordon Campbell, Thomas Floyd, Roy Willie, Willie Noble, Albert Gravin, Ernest Huggert, Rainford Sprinkling, Tom M. Jones, Ray McCallum, Ray Edward Andrews, Ernest Wolf, Cyril Harrison, Leslie O'Brien, Howard McNeill, Roy Shields, Marshall Henderson, William Davies, William Malcolm, Henry Brown, James Liddell, William Lang.

Division 6 to Division 5—Herman Sherwood, Archie Macdonald, Kwong Chong, Duca Zarelli, Harry Clark, Ernest Smiles, Willie Cutler, Leslie Dye, Arthur Mason, Robert McBray, Taki Soo, Careton Cleveland, Richard Ely, Harold Lawrence, Charles Hansen, Edward Dalziel, Harold Smith, Edward Nicholas, James Hally, Arthur Aird, Donald McIntyre, Horace Pimley, Stanley House, Arthur Charlton, Robert Lang, Howard Carter, Warren Watson, Adam Knox, Howard Baynton, Charles Dauphin, Ponnall Walls, John Peterew, Frank Punnett, Richard Simmonds.

To Junior Third—Eileen Collinge, Cecil Hand, Charles Milligan, Roy Wolfe, Esmond Yarwood.

To Senior Third—Charles Berryman, Willie Billard, Fred Danglefield, Douglas Drury, Bertram Drysdale, James Eddie, Lysle Gilbert, Roy Hodgson, Edward Hopkins, Clarence Lee, Cecil Milloy, Alan Pyne, Aubrey Redgrave, Roy Harris, Rowbottom, Willie Renfrew, Reginald Rigby, John Ritchie, Gerald Stevens, Harold Sproule, Archie Wood, Samuel Youlden.

From 2nd to 3rd Reader—Edward A. Wootton, W. Spencer R. Dee, Bonnie W. Neal, Lloyd Wheeler, Robert Hamilton, Russell Goodwin, Percy Harris, Ernest Smith, John D. Clemence, Thomas Anderson, William Rendall, Charles B. Mess, Gilzean Patterson, St. Clair Ross, Gustav L. Hamburger, Eric Bray, Frank Ross, Harold Stevens, Uley Terry, Hugh Mowat, Earl Revercomb, Richard Wall, James Bailey, Arthur Miller, Roy McGregor, Gerald Leary, Percy Leary, Clifford Kilpatrick, J. Evelyn Gifford.

From Division 9 to Division 8—Jack Huggert, Paul Clyde, William Rorey, Kenneth John, Robert Chalmers, Christie, Timothy Terry, Harold Carne, Robert Livingstone, Vaughn Ross, Stafford Horne, Joseph Smith, Harold Gray, Richard Jenks, Herbert Edwards, Robert Lemen, John Wenger, Alan Davies, Colin Eddie, Nellie Barton, Ernest Tennant, John Fair, George Beynon, Alex. McDonald, Edna Savannah, Fred O'Neill, Philip Smith, Millie Brady, Clifford McIlwaine, Ewart Lumsden, Evelyn Graham, Myrtle Lumsden, Charles O'Neill, John Ford, Willie McIlwaine, Gordon McEachern, Robert Margrett, George Goodwin.

To Reader 1.—William Baker, Cecil Hay, George Keen, James Eiland, Cecil Nelson, Ernest Nelson, Alfred Jacklin, Francis Billingsley, Ernest Leslie.

To Senior Primer—Dallas McNeill, William McKenzie, Harold Graham, Percy Lipsky, Tommy Lumsden, Robert Hepburn, Henry Wilby, Claude Campbell, Clifford Macklin, Kinsley Baird, Kenneth Skene, Evan Davis, Harold Moore, Douglas Knowles, William Bailey, James McKelvie, Lemuel Smith.

To Senior First Primer—Frederick Townsends, Victor G. Harvey de Cartier, Malcolm MacMillan, Claude Armour, William Huxtable, Frank Le, Arthur Lovatt, Wilbert Dunan, Ernest Hetherington, Louis Black, Augustine Polle, Edward Bray, Andrew Smith, George Tripp, William Reid.

From Chart to First Primer—Walter Clayton, Sanford Freeman, Dick Goodwin, William Gropp, Herbert Leslie, Daryl MacDonald, Jack Matthews, George O'Neill, George Sproule, Vincent Townsend, John Zarelli.

Division 1.—HONOR ROLL—Henry G. Sivertz; punctuality and regularity. Roy S. Clements, Bertram A. Emery, Gilbert E. Milloy, John N. Spencer, Albert Sprinkling.

Division 2.—Department, Arthur Pike; punctuality and regularity. Reginald Adams, William Cochrane; proficiency. William T. Baker.

Division 3.—Proficiency, Frederick Townsend; deportment, Victor Gravin; regularity and punctuality, Gordon Graham.

TOO RICH TO WORK.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Reports from the northern canneries show now that the operations of the salmon men this year will be curtailed by a unique fact—namely, a sudden accession of wealth to the swashes.

It seems that the payment of the money due the Indians of the Metlak-haile tribe for lands sold to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, fell due only a few days ago, and a representative of the railway company visited the north for the purpose of handing over the money.

Many of the Indians had never had such a large sum in their possession before, and they were unable to handle the money, declined to labor in the boats for the prosaic salmon. The canners have been unable to induce them to increase their wealth, so far, by working for the canneries.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

Indians on the Skeena Refuse to Fish, Having Money to Spare.

THE SECOND JURY
FAILED TO AGREETHOMAS COLLINS
WILL BE TRIED AGAINProf. Bell Expects to Make Practical
Demonstration in Aerial
Navigation Shortly

Hope Cape, N. B., July 4.—Thomas Collins, charged with having murdered Mary Ann McCallay, at New Ireland, Albert county, will be tried for the third time in September next. The jury retired at noon yesterday, and at supper time last night no agreement had been reached. On orders from Chief Justice Tuck the jury was locked up for the night. This morning the jurors reported at different times that they were not able to reach an agreement, and Chief Justice Tuck summoned them to the courtroom and discharged them.

Prof. Bell's Experiments.

Halifax, July 4.—Prof. Bell has arrived at his summer residence at Baddeck, N. B., and has resumed his experiments with kites designed to support a man in the air. Prof. Bell says that he expects to be able to make a practical demonstration in aerial navigation by August.

Bathing Fatality.

Edmonton, July 4.—A man named Watties, was drowned while bathing in the Sturgeon river.

Peculiar Accident.

Winnipeg, July 4.—A peculiar accident occurred here yesterday.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

Peculiar Accident.

NUMEROUS AIDS
TO NAVIGATIONMARINE DEPARTMENT
MARKING CHANNELSBritish Columbia Coast Will Be One
of Best Equipped in the World.

As time goes on it is becoming more evident every day that the waterways along the coasts of British Columbia will be among the best provided with aids to navigation in any part of the world. The lighthouse board of Canada is leaving no stone unturned to locate every rock which even in the smallest respect is a menace to navigation. Week by week notice of new aids to navigation are forthcoming and the recent section of sites along the coast for the installation of the wireless system is suggestive that all that human enterprise can do to combat disasters at sea is now being done by the Dominion government on the seaboard. The latest list of aids which have come to hand land in large measure with the waterways which surround Vancouver Island and is as follows:

The light heretofore shown from a 31-day Wigham lamp on Danger reef, Stuart channel, has been replaced by a gas-light shown from a beacon erected on the same site. The wooden tower has been taken down. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 26 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 9 miles from all points of approach. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

NUMEROUS AIDS
TO NAVIGATIONMARINE DEPARTMENT
MARKING CHANNELSBritish Columbia Coast Will Be One
of Best Equipped in the World.

As time goes on it is becoming more evident every day that the waterways along the coasts of British Columbia will be among the best provided with aids to navigation in any part of the world. The lighthouse board of Canada is leaving no stone unturned to locate every rock which even in the smallest respect is a menace to navigation. Week by week notice of new aids to navigation are forthcoming and the recent section of sites along the coast for the installation of the wireless system is suggestive that all that human enterprise can do to combat disasters at sea is now being done by the Dominion government on the seaboard. The latest list of aids which have come to hand land in large measure with the waterways which surround Vancouver Island and is as follows:

The light heretofore shown from a 31-day Wigham lamp on Danger reef, Stuart channel, has been replaced by a gas-light shown from a beacon erected on the same site. The wooden tower has been taken down. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 26 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 9 miles from all points of approach. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.

A gas-lighted beacon has been established on the summit of the southwest of the West rocks, Horswell channel, east coast of Vancouver Island. Latitude north 48 degrees, 52 minutes; longitude west 123 degrees, 49 minutes, 2 seconds. The beacon consists of a steel cylindrical tank standing on a steel framework, and surrounded by a pyramidal steel frame supporting a lantern, the whole painted red. The light is a white light, automatically occulted at short intervals. It is elevated 30 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 10 miles. The illuminant is acetylene, generated automatically. The light is unwatched.