

ROYAL PROCESSION THROUGH LONDON

HEARTY RECEPTION OF THEIR MAJESTIES

The King's Reply to an Address of Welcome—Fire at the Guildhall.

London, Oct. 25.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra started on their Royal progress toward the city shortly after noon to-day, in somewhat dull weather. The rain, however, kept off and the temperature was sufficiently mild to make the day enjoyable.

The procession formed up outside the gate, and had already moved off when the first carriage containing Royal personages and members of the household emerged therefrom.

There was a somewhat tedious interval before the appearance of their Majesties, who appeared forth the rear chambers of the day as they passed through the rows of bluejackets from the first-class cruiser.

Both the King and Queen looked extremely well, and their bows and acknowledgments of the warm welcome extended to them.

Partly in consequence of the length of the route there was no great crush of people, with the exception of open spaces like Trafalgar square, where the London city council presented the King with an address of welcome, and where the Beer generals, Botha, Delarey and Dewet, were prominent among the spectators.

At the Mansion House most of the procession stopped, their Majesties from there being accompanied only by the foreign escort, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught and other Princes, equerries and aides to the Guildhall, where they arrived without any extraordinary incidents.

Owing to the King's carriage being the last, some confusion occurred at the entrance of the Guildhall in an endeavor to empty the carriages and avoid keeping His Majesty waiting.

When the King arrived he looked tired, and stepped heavily from his carriage. The Queen threw off the wrap which covered her simple straw-colored dress, and accepted a bouquet from the Lady Maxwell, and the King shook hands with her.

When the King arrived he looked tired, and stepped heavily from his carriage. The Queen threw off the wrap which covered her simple straw-colored dress, and accepted a bouquet from the Lady Maxwell, and the King shook hands with her.

The most interesting feature of the Royal progress up to this point was the King's reply to the address of the London county council on Trafalgar square.

The Boer generals occupied prominent seats in the centre of the county council stand immediately facing the King. His Majesty's reply was clearly audible to all in the vicinity. He said:

"It gives much pleasure both to myself and the Queen to receive in person the loyal and dutiful address of the centre of municipal authority on the occasion of our progress through the capital of the Empire, and to receive the greetings of our people on our coronation.

Your confidence that my favor will be extended to every measure calculated to ameliorate the conditions of my subjects is well-founded, and of the numerous important questions which come under your consideration, the most appeal to me strongly to my interest and sympathy, than those directly touching on the welfare of the poorer classes of this and other great cities.

"I thank you for your good wishes for myself and my house. I cordially share your aspiration that it may be granted me by the same divine providence which preserved my life from imminent danger to reign over my firmly established and peaceful Empire, and in the loyal hearts of my contented and prosperous people."

The interior of the great hall of the Guildhall presented a brilliant scene. It was filled with members of the Royal family and diplomats, officers and officials, all in full uniform with their breasts blazing with orders.

CLERGYMAN ARRESTED IN LONDON TO-DAY

He Has Been In Custody Before—Intended to Cause Damage With Explosive.

London, Oct. 25.—The Sun prints an unconfirmed story of the arrest of a foreigner, near a stand erected for the view of the Royal procession, with two pounds of suspicious powdery substance in his possession.

Later Particulars. London, Oct. 25.—The Sun says that Geo. Martin, a clergyman, was remanded at the Southwark police court to-day, charged with having a pound of gunpowder in his possession, with felonious intent.

Rev. Mr. Martin was arrested at the time of the coronation of King Edward for a similar escapade, and he was also arrested at the coronation of King Edward for a similar escapade, and he was also arrested at the coronation of King Edward for a similar escapade.

PROF. KOECH'S THEORY

Read Paper Regarding Non-Transferability of Animal Tuberculosis to Man.

Berlin, Oct. 25.—The sensation of to-day's session of the International Tuberculosis Convention came toward the end of the sitting in the form of a paper by Prof. Koeh, in which he maintained all his former positions regarding the non-transferability of animal tuberculosis to man.

Prof. Koeh began by stating that he spoke at the desire of the central committee. He wished it to be understood, he said, that his statement referred exclusively to the transmission of bovine tuberculosis to the human body, and not to the transmission of the disease in general.

Some authorities claim, said the professor, that intestinal tuberculosis is a disease of the human body, and is not transferred from animals to man. In Great Britain, while other authorities hold contrary views. Cases of the disease are not frequent in Germany.

An inquiry instituted by the government has proved the rarity of such cases. Taking up the alleged proofs that human beings may be infected with bovine tuberculosis through skin troubles, Prof. Koeh admitted that cases of tuberculosis do occur among butchers and other persons who handle animals, but he asserted that the percentage of sufferers from the disease among joiners is equally as high as among handlers of animals and meat.

He could not, he declared, any connection between a skin lesion and tuberculosis, ending in death, like the case alleged of a certain workman who scratched his head and finally died of consumption. The experiments on monkeys which were inoculated with bovine tuberculosis bacilli and died subsequently, are, according to Prof. Koeh, only indirect proof of transferability of animal tuberculosis.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 23.—One of the greatest sensations sprung within the political arena of this city, in which a number of millionaires are at work, is the supremacy of the statement of Charles W. Clark, son of W. A. Clark, millionaire mine owner, which will appear in the morning's newspaper.

Above his own signature, Clark declares he has offered a bribe of two million and a half to assist Heinze in securing control of the legislature, that two more million might be needed to get the Heinze bill through the legislature, and in litigation with the Amalgamated Copper Company, in which Heinze is involved, would be a bribe for Heinze. Furthermore, he could force the Amalgamated to purchase his properties at almost any price.

C. W. Clark was to persuade his father to keep out of the campaign until he had thrown the party, and Heinze had secured control of the judiciary.

Clark's statement has caused the biggest kind of a sensation in political circles.

"If measures are taken to combat animal tuberculosis," went on Prof. Koeh, "they must be on an economic sanitary grounds. In order to combat the disease we must first of all establish and establish better dwellings and workshops, avoid over-crowding, and isolate the enemy. Experience with other infectious proves that tuberculosis can be successfully combated."

Prolonged cheers followed the reading of Prof. Koeh's paper.

M. Nocard, a well known French veterinary authority, spoke in opposition to Prof. Koeh's views. He said the statement made by the professor as to the conclusions, that the transmission of tuberculosis does not occur and that Nearly All Coal and Iron Police Have Been Dismissed—Hitch at Hazelton.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 25.—To-day saw a further increase of coal production in the anthracite regions, the estimated output is 120,000 tons.
