When Mayor Is Away The 'Coms' Will Play

With Lord of the Treasury
Out of City Commissioners
Talk of Spending Money—
Reasons Given for Delayed
Work.

When the mayor is away the commissioners will play with the idea of spending money. They did this yesterday when Commissioner Jones submitted a programme of work on water and sewer mains, which it was estimated would involve an expenditure of over $200,000. All seemed favorable to the idea of going on with the work as fast as possible, but they dared not take action while the lord of the treasury is away.

The programme calls for the laying of 16 inch water mains on Brussels and King streets, these being said by city engineer Harro to be more or less urgent requirements. The old mains are 12 inch, 81 years old.

Commissioner Thornton — "They must have been doing some work here 81 years ago."

Commissioner Jones — "They were good Scotch pipes."

It was proposed to lay the new main on the north side of King street this year, so as to be ready for paving next summer. Commissioner Jones said a new main there was desirable for fire purposes; they could not put much dependence on a pipe 81 years old.

Another proposal was to lay 1,700 feet of water mains on Douglas avenue. Commissioner Fisher said he would like to do some paving work there next spring.

Commissioner Jones said they had practically no pipe on hand, and he could not say just how much he would be prepared to do this season.

Commissioner Fisher said they had only been able to get four carloads of asphalt this season, and the first was a month behind hand in arriving. This had caused delay.

The acting mayor — "The newspapers should make a note of that. If we are not going ahead with street work as fast as we ought, it is because the commissioner could not get materials."

Commissioner Jones' programme which was laid over for further consideration is as follows:

For paving in 1920 water mains and sewers to be made good with cost.

JUNE SITTING OF THE SUPREME COURT

The June sitting of the Supreme Court opened yesterday morning with His Honor Justice Crockett presiding. There was no grand jury summoned and no criminal cases were taken up. On the application of Daniel Mullin, K. C., who appeared on behalf of Jack Hayes, recently committed for trial on the charge of assaulting Sheriff Wilson, His Honor made an order directing Coroner Kenney to summon a grand jury and an additional petit jury for July 22 when the court will meet again. The order was directed to Coroner Kenney as the sheriff is an interested party, being the complainant, and therefore had not the jurisdiction to summon the jury. Court was adjourned until July 22 at 10 a. m. when the case of the King vs. Hayes will be taken up, and the other civil jury cases entered on the docket.

The following petit jurors were summoned: William H. Sullivan, John Jackson, David M. Lawson, Justus G. Lake, Charles E. Farrand, John H. Vaughan, Robert H. Murray, George W. Maxwell, Walter A. Adams, Edward S. Russell, Lawrence S. Lincoln, Frederick Hazel, D. Arnold Fox, Oliver B. Aker, W. Norman Earle, Edward Walsh, Charles A. Donald, M. W. Galley, Eben S. Fraser, Frederick C. Owens, Frederick Koe.

ORDER FOR GREECE

Atlantic Sugar Refineries Limited, has secured a large order for Greece to which country as well as to France and England, export business is growing rapidly, announced D. Lorne McGibbon, president of the company, at the annual meeting held recently in Montreal.

Discussing dividend prospects Mr. McGibbon thought it likely the quarterly dividend on the preferred would be continued and said the matter of paying off the back dividends would be considered as business warranted.

Praising the work of the directors Mr. N. B. Stark proposed a motion which was carried, increasing the fees of the directors to $500 per annum dating from January 1, 1919. Mr.

Large Audience in Congregational Church Last Evening
Delighted With Programme
Under Direction of the Women's Institute.

Last night in the assembly room of the Congregational church, Union street, a representative audience, not altogether Irish, was delighted for over two hours with a vocal, instrumental and oral rendition of the strongest lights in the life of Thomas Moore, the beloved poet of Ireland.

The reading by Mrs. A. C. D. Wilson covered the life of Moore in three stages: his early life, his social life, and his literary life. In a splendid character study, which would delight the most ardent lover of Moore, she took her audience to the London of the eighteenth century when Moore, whose wonderful personal charm had captivated the city, was on the crest of his popularity; she told of his great friendship with Lord Byron and Edward Fitzgerald, translator of the wonderful Rubaiyat; followed him on his tour of the United States in 1804 and touched sympathetically on his exile in Europe, where he was obliged to stay to avoid arrest in England for the defalcation of a deputy which he had appointed to his position as admiralty registrar at Bermuda, which post he tried in 1803 and started a travelling. Touching reference was made to Moore's last days in 1832, when with mental powers diminished and health gone, he appeared but the shell of the once famous and feted man. Among the well known works which were mentioned, and from which excerpts were recited were his wonderful Lallah Rookh and Irish Melodies, one quotation, that of "The Harp of Old" being particularly well rendered.

Mrs. Louis Lecheur, who was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. R. H. Watts, was never heard to better advantage than in her rendition of Moore's two masterpieces, "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms," and "The Last Rose of Summer," which were vigorously applauded. Her final number, "Kilbarney" was enthusiastically received, the vocal selections adding immeasurably to the pleasure of the evening.

An instrumental duo composed of Misses Lynch and Hogan, furnished much delight in their interpretation of the musical gems of the day. The programme, which was under the direction of the Women's Institute, was particularly well arranged and so satisfactorily conducted that many expressions were heard favoring a repeat performance.

McGibbon, Senator Beaulieu and Mr. Murray McWilliams replied.

The retiring directors were re-elected excepting C. S. Jennison, of New York, whose place is not yet filled. A motion to increase the executive from 3 to 5 was carried.
