

FROM ALL OVER THE MARITIME PROVINCES

HOPEWELL HILL

Hopewell Hill, May 1.—The Salisbury & Albert track, blocked for two days by two bad runoffs, was cleared today and the train arrived this evening with two days' mail. On the trip up from Albert yesterday morning, the big box car containing sixteen tons of hay left the rails and rolled over. The train became stalled by the mishap and a relief engine was unable to proceed to Salisbury for several hours on account of a working train being off the track and blocking the line further up. The working train was got on last night. The train left Salisbury about 10:30 o'clock. Pretty near all day was spent today getting the line cleared where the regular train runs up. It was found impossible to get the loaded hay car back on the track and it is now in the ditch and will have to be unloaded.

Asbury, 19 years of age, of Riverside, is very low with tuberculosis. Delbert Copp, of Germantown, this week captured a live raccoon and five pups. Mrs. Howard Stevens is confined to her home with a painful, though her friends are glad to learn, not dangerous illness. Dr. Carwith is attending her. J. N. Stevens left this week on a trip to Boston and vicinity, to visit relatives. Hopewell Hill, May 3.—The first of the coal fleet from the mines here has arrived at Grandstone Island to load for W. J. Carwith, of Riverside.

Henry Newcomb, I. C. B. Macdonald's apprentice, Moncton, came to his home here yesterday, being compelled to take a while off from work on account of an injury to one of his eyes, caused by a bolt being thrown from the machine at which he was working.

Sheriff B. T. Carter, of Hopewell Cape, who has been suffering from chronic rheumatism for some time, has been confined to his home for the past week, during which time he has been taking a special treatment. The sheriff's many friends hope to see him around again about the middle of next month.

Miss Clissie Tingler, who has been conducting a music class at Petticoat, has returned to her duties after spending a vacation in Florida. Her home is at Mrs. J. A. Tingler, Hopewell Cape. Percy Nelson, of Lower Cape, is on a business trip to Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Alberta McGormas is confined to her home with an attack of bronchitis. Mrs. J. M. Tingler and her daughter, Mrs. J. A. Stuart, who have been seriously ill, are both recovering satisfactorily. Charlie Hendy, of Hopewell Cape, and Harry Russell, of this place, went to Windsor (N. S.), last week to take possession of the bay steamer Wilfrid C., which was in winter quarters there.

Harry Fowles, merchant and postmaster at the Cape, has bought the residence and lot recently occupied by the late Gen. Fowles, Jr. He also has purchased the building formerly used as a customs house and moved into his newly acquired property, where it will be used as store and post office.

Hopewell Hill, May 5.—Mrs. H. A. Turner, of Riverside, returned home yesterday from Denver, Colo., where she spent some months. Mrs. Turner went to Denver with her cousin, J. A. McClellan and the late Miss Lucy McClellan, the latter going to Denver for her health. When Mrs. Turner left Denver last Tuesday, Miss McClellan was considered improved, but passed away two days later.

Mrs. Adelbert Wilbur, who has been residing in the States, is visiting her former home at the Cape. The red foxes kept at the shiretown has had its stock added to by the addition of twelve new ones. The owners now have fourteen foxes and six raccoons. Oran Archibald had the misfortune to lose four raccoons recently.

THE WOMAN'S CORNER

EFFICIENT HOUSEKEEPING BY HENRIETTA D. GRAVEL (Domestic Science Lecturer) Some Art for the Home

In America the mind and strength of the community have been devoted to the business of establishing community life in building churches, homes, schools and securing food and clothing.

This has left little time to fix national standards of art, yet we have some matchless architecture. Colonial residences in the eastern and southern states are beautiful and are copied in this and other countries.

Thomas Jefferson designed a famous home on a site especially selected for it. The mansion is another example of a home adapted to the style of environment. But it is only permitted to a few of us to select the setting of our homes or even decide upon its architecture.

All we can do is to look for true standards of art and make what we have approach it as nearly as we can.

A woman usually contrasts the home she has with the one she would like for when the subject of household management is discussed. This should not be a family matter but her present abode the things she personally likes instead of those articles most appropriate to practical use, claims a well known authority in an address before the Chicago school board.

The Chinese have a proverb, "If you have two loaves of bread sell one and buy a lily." This spirit explains the beauty of their porcelain, the marvel of their embroidery, and the delicacy of their carvings. But it is the Japanese who excel in intense love of beauty though a family may possess many articles of matchless work they never display them all at once. Often there will be but one ornament in a room, sometimes it will be a vase blossom in a wonderful vase or a fine painting.

Simplicity is the true note of household beauty and in the pictures that festoon our walls will be found that which tells surely whether we possess an awakening desire for beauty or are careless.

A story is told of a great artist who would never permit his work to appear in a gilded frame, but would dabb black-paint over the gold and wipe it almost off, leaving a dull, bare. Here is a hint and a rebuke.

Another place to look for artistic arrangement is in the arrangement of pictures in the mantel shelf. Pictures should not be a family altar to hold the most prized possessions of all the members of the household, but should be decorated with but four ornaments; under no circumstance more than five. "First," says this man, "there must be an article of utility; like a vase, a picture or a bronze of a favorite emblem of a friend or a famous artist, may be the third, but there must be no unframed photographs of friends of the family or daguerotypes of deceased relatives. The fourth article must be something rare or wonderful that of other countries visited or to be visited, like a wonderful carving or a Russian brass." These rules are well worth trying.

Horizontal lines decrease the apparent height of walls; vertical lines give appearance of height. Both these are found in plate and chair rails, in drapery of curtains, hanging of pictures.
