WOMEN'S INSTITUTE MONTHLY LETTER

The first meeting of the New Year of the Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. G. P. Freeman on Tuesday evening, January 29th, with president Freeman in the chair. The business arising from the minutes of the annual meeting was disposed of followed by the reading of the report. Miss Howe's report of the following conveners of the standing committees were re-appointed for the ensuing year: Miss Alda Young "Public Health"; Mrs. O. P. Goucher "Home Economics"; Mrs. F. R. Elliott "Legislation"; Mrs. A. L. Davidson "School etc."; Miss Minnie Wright "Agriculture". The following directors were Mrs. T. R. Gilliam, Mrs. G. H. Vroom, Miss Young, Mrs. E. R. Power.

The Hospital Committee is as follows: Mrs. W. R. Turner (convener), Mrs. D. E. Dodge, Mrs. J. M. Broadfoot, Mrs. Owen Wheelock. Our suggestion that was made, followed by a motion, was that the Institute provide cocoa and sugar for the children at McDonald School, who remain ed during the lunch hour, passed unanimously.

The Health Nursing Committee met during the evening in another room, and organized a class of 14 members. It has since been raised to 21. Mrs. Wheelock, convener of the entertainment committee, then presented her program: piano duet, Jack Spurr and Miss Chamberlain; reading by Mrs. W. G. Parsons; solo, Mrs. R. Beak. It was much appreciated. The program committee who have been making up the "Program Booklets" for the year are ready to supply them to the various members about Feb. 14th. They can be got from Mrs. Cecil Parsons, Main St. and they will contain the date of each meeting the monthly program and names of conveners of various committees.

Another feature of the January meeting was the "15 cent" tea served which was very nice, and added quite a sum to the funds.

The next meeting of the Institute will be held in McDonald School Assembly Hall, Thursday, February 26, at 7.30 p.m., and will be of a St. Valentine character.

GETS TWO PECKS SUGAR FROM A BUSHEL OF CORN
American Chemist Has Found Secret of Changing Starch Into Sugar. Like Your Stomach Does.

A bushel of corn weighs about sixty pounds and about thirty-three of these pounds are accounted for by starch. It is not difficult to extract the starch from corn, and a way to convert this starch into sugar economically has long been sought. Man asked the advice of the stomach first. That organ is an old hand at changing starch into sugar, but man has not until very recently found the secret.

Now comes the announcement that H. C. Gore, of the United States Bureau of Chemistry, a subsidiary of the Department of Agriculture, has found a way to get thirty-three pounds of sugar from each bushel of corn. The bureau of chemistry's fruit and vegetable utilization laboratory.

The common white granulated grocery sugar we nearly all eat is, technically speaking, only one of the sugars. The food chemist calls it sucrose. In addition to sucrose there are the well known forms of sweeteners, glucose and maltose. These are also sugars, but they are not sucrose. Maltose, the product of which is to be made from corn, is somewhat sweeter than glucose but only about three-fifths as sweet as sucrose.

Briefly, the process consists of mixing the cornstarch with warm water and sugar, and then putting it through the same processes which ordinary sugar goes through. The new sugar looks a little like confectioner's sugar and tastes like Christmas candy.

Borrowers Beware

(Contributed)

A man being too economical to take a home paper, sent his little boy to borrow a copy taken by his neighbor. In his haste the little boy ran over a four dollar stand of bees, and in ten minutes looked like a watery summer squash. His cries reached his father who ran to his assistance, and failing to notice a barbed-wire fence, ran into that, breaking it down and cutting a hand full of flesh from his anatomy and ruining a five dollar pair of trousers. The old cow took advantage of the gap in the fence and got into a cornfield and killed herself eating green corn. Hearing the racket the wife ran out, upsetting a four-gallon can of rice cream into a basket of kittens—drowning the whole bunch. In the hurry she dropped a seven dollar stand of false teeth. The baby left alone, crawled through the spilled cream into the parlor—ruining a brand new thirty-dollar carpet. During the excitement the eldest daughter ran away with the hired man, the dog broke up eleven setting hens and the calves got out and chewed the ends of four fine table cloths.

ORIGIN OF THE EDITOR

A little boy was requested to write an essay the other day and—"The Newspaper," was his subject. Here is the result:

"I don't know how newspapers came to be in the world. I don't think God does either. He ain't got nothing to say 'bout them, 'til the editor ain't in the Bible. I think the editor is one of the missing links you hear about, and stay into the brush until after the flood, then step out and wrote it up, and has been here ever since. I don't think I ever died. I never saw a dead one, and never heard of one getting killed. Our paper is a mighty poor 'un. The editor goes without underclothes all winter, don't wear no socks and paw ain't paid his subscription in five years and don't expect to."
