

LIKENESS TO NORWAY

Newfoundland has well been named the "Norway of the New World." In many points it strikingly resembles that country to which tourists now flock from all lands. Its deep fiords which indent the shores everywhere, guarded by lofty cliffs whose forms are reflected in the clear bright waters of the bays, have a remarkable resemblance to those of Norway, and are often not less magnificent in their scenery. Many of these great watery ravines, running inland for eighty or ninety miles, and exhibiting a wonderful variety of scenery along the great arms which they project in all directions, and in the islands which stud their bosoms, are on a much grander scale than the famous Norwegian fiords.

The two great bays of Trinity and Placentia, which almost cut the Island in two, and the beautiful bays of Notre Dame and
