

If You Would Be Well You Must Keep Your Kidneys Well.

Help them to work freely. Help them to flush off all the body's waste and impurities.

Doan's Kidney Pills

Are for this purpose only.

Have you suspected your kidneys as the cause of your trouble? If you have backache, swelling of the feet and ankles, frequent or suppressed urine, painful sensation when urinating, specks floating before the eyes, great thirst, brick-dust deposit in the urine, or anything wrong with the urinary organs, then your kidneys are affected. It is really not difficult to cure kidney trouble in its first stages. All you have to do is to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial. They are the most effective medicine to be had for all kidney and urinary troubles.

Mrs. Mary Galley, Auburn, N.S., was cured by their use. She says: "For over four months I was troubled with a lame back, and was unable to turn in bed without help. I tried plasters and liniments of all kinds, but to no effect. At last I was induced by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills. After I had used two-thirds of a box my back was as strong and as well as ever."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 8 for $1.25. All dealers, or sent direct by mail on receipt of price.

SIR W. C. MACDONALD.

His Fair to Become the Greatest Educational Philanthropy Canada Has Ever Seen—His Gifts.

Sir W. C. Macdonald, of Montreal, bids fair to become the greatest educational philanthropist Canada has ever seen. The millionaire tobacco manufacturer has given liberally of his great wealth in the past for the cause of technical education, as the Macdonald Institutes bear witness, but his recent benefices throw previous gifts into the background and set a new standard for future Canadian benefactors to equal or surpass. Sir William is taking the wisest course in disposing of his fortune while he is alive and able to enjoy the good he is doing, and as to the direction in which his philanthropy turns there can be no two opinions.

Ontario's Big Whistle. Speaking before the Canadian Club in Ottawa the other evening, Prof. Robertson said, in reply to an opinion that Ontario's system was peculiar: "That reminds me of the story of Abraham Lincoln, who had marked on one occasion, 'Why, I know of a steamboat that has a one-horse engine and a fifty-horse whistle.' That steamboat drifted a good deal."

"There have been in our schools many additions and hardly any reforms. The schools reflect the people, and here we may ask: What do we want the schools to produce? We want them to produce the highest type of citizen, with occasionally the highest type of scholar. People send their children to school with the object of making them able to earn a genteel living in the easiest way. That is a deplorable ideal for a great people. But there is so little public enthusiasm for education that the most valuable servants of the community, the teachers, are rated lowest in regard to remuneration, while they are doing the most important work. We are slack and careless in regard to large expenditures for trivial and transient things and utterly negligent in matters that are of the greatest importance."

Gifts for Manual Training. Both additions and reforms were made possible when Sir William Macdonald made his first gifts to manual training. He believed that the system which then reigned absolutely and which still holds dominion in favor of the value of the knowledge of books, of names, dates, rules and forms. He did not question their value, but he held that it was distorted, and that another world of knowledge was permitted to remain ignorant and unknown. The great argument in favor of manual training is that it stimulates constructive ability, and develops the student's mental capacity by giving him a real to him. That it has a tendency to inculcate self-reliance beyond dispute. Against this theory many old-time educationists and trades unionists arrayed themselves, and for a time the dispute raged fiercely, and even yet has not quite died away. But the Macdonald fund won the day.

School Consolidation.

For the consolidation of rural schools the philanthropy of Sir William Macdonald has done much. There are in Canada no fewer than 750,000 children attending school in the rural districts, compared with 450,000 in cities, towns, and incorporated villages, and the general feeling that the rural school children acquire their education under unfavorable circumstances. Specialization is impossible in the matter of instruction. The same teacher, usually a young girl, who teaches the child the alphabet, is expected to teach boys 15 and 18 years old the inner meaning of geometrical problems. The task is too great; only a genius could do it well, and genius is offered less than a day laborer's pay in most cases. Under this old system the results were generally unsatisfactory, and the waste of the children's time has been termed appalling. Under the Macdonald fund consolidation was actively promoted. At Middleton, N.S., seven little schools have been closed, and one large graded school, thoroughly organized and well equipped in every way, has been established to do the work of the seven. Large school vans were used to bring distant pupils to and from school; with hardly any inconvenience the transformation has been wrought, and one of the most important results is reflected in the attendance, which now exceeds by 70 per cent. the combined attendance at the seven little red school-houses. At Guelph, and at Kingston, N. B., a similar successful experiment has been made.

An Agricultural University. The latest phase of the Macdonald educational scheme takes the shape of an institution which is expected to become the headquarters of advanced rural education in Canada. It will be established at St. Anne de Bellevue, twenty miles west of Montreal, and is thus described by Prof. Robertson:

"The general plan provides for a department of research, with special laboratories and equipment for work in bacteriology of soils and products, biology in plants and the animal dealt with in agriculture, physics as applicable to rural life, and agricultural chemistry. The institution will also comprise a department of farms. These will be used for illustrating the most economical and best known profit-making methods of agriculture. There will be at least three special farms, the dairy farm, the meat-producing farm, and the small culture farm. Provision will be made for receiving apprentices on these farms, and within each farm will be a series of small apprentice farms. That is merely an enlargement of the idea of the school garden at the consolidated schools. On these smaller farms, of from one to five acres groups of apprentices will have full charge, and learn by doing and managing for themselves."

"There will also be a department of instruction, and a farm school, and what will practically be a college of agriculture, on lines somewhat similar to those followed at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph."

Girls With Beautiful Faces, or Graceful Figures.

American girls have a world-wide reputation for beauty, but, at the same time, there are girls in our cities who possess neither beauty of face nor form, because in these instances they suffer from nervousness, the result of disorders of the womanly organism. At regular intervals they are so prostrated that their strength leaves them; they are so prostrated that they take days for them to recover their strength.

Of course, such periodic distress has its bad effects on the nervous system. The withered and drawn faces, the dark circles and crows-feet over the eyes, the straight figure without those curves which lend so much to feminine beauty, are the unmistakable signs of womanly disorders.

Mrs. Langtry has well said: "The key-stone to physical beauty is perfect health. A sick woman cannot be a beautiful woman, nor can she be anything but what we English call a poor-spirited woman. To great extent a woman's beauty is measured by her vitality—by her health." A famous specialist in woman's diseases, Dr. R. W. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., has always advocated for young women's happiness absolute freedom from care and anxiety; at least eight hours' sleep out of every twenty-four, in addition to a short nap in the middle of the day, if possible. Simple in-door exercises or brisk walks in the outdoor air. For some this is impossible, and many are confined to a continual in-door life because of disease of the womanly organs. To these is offered free reward if they cannot be cured of Leucorrhoea, Female Weakness, Protrusion of Uterus, Womb, All Dr. Pierce asks is a fair and reasonable trial of his means of cure.

No other medicine for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments is backed by such a remarkable guarantee as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. No other remedy has such a record of a third of a century of cures on which to base such a remarkable offer.

E. F. Clarke—An Incident.

She slipped at the corner of College and Yonge Streets, a little old woman, plainly dressed. Her parcels scattered about on the crossing, but the world hurried on for it was raining. Then a man stepped out from the crowd, and gathered up the bundles, together, hand-gathered them to the unfortunate pedestrian, and, waiting, helped her on the car. Then he turned and disappeared in the vortex of humanity, hurrying along the street.

He did not know the man.

It was E. F. Clarke.

Patriot, citizen, and statesman, he was not too proud to stop in the rain to help this lone old woman, although the world went by unheeding. And it is for numberless acts such as this that he will be missed, and there is a gap in the forest of men, for a giant has fallen.

And to-day they will honor the dead, the cortege, the flags half-masted, the slow steps to the tomb.

And they will return, and the civic wheels that are stopped will start again, leaving the dead with the dead, but his influence will remain with the living.

And so you and I must yield to the inevitable. It may not be to-day, it may not be to-morrow or the next day or the next year, but we move steadily towards the hour when we will take the long journey.

So let us do our best, and let us not be too large for the small deed that needs the doing.

Let us take the moments as they come, and make them count, for they are of the stuff of which the years are made.

Let us think of the one who has gone, who rose from the printer's case to be one of the foremost men of the Dominion.

The hand that picked up those parcels is silent now; the voice that spoke so kindly to that old lady is forever hushed, but no orator can strengthen, no eulogy brighten the true nobility of the man who did the good deed—Charles F. Raymond in Toronto Star.
