

MYSTERY SHIP AGAIN APPEARS

British Steamer Meets Vessel
Which Violates Maritime Rules

WITHOUT PROPER LIGHTS
Would Not Answer Signals and Acted in Very Suspicious Way

NEW YORK, July 13.—An unknown ship which was violating international maritime regulations by running without proper lights and which refused to respond to signals asking her identity was sighted last week 750 miles southeasterly from Halifax by the British steamship Croxteth Hall, which arrived here from Hull and Antwerp.

According to a report made by Captain Spence of the Croxteth Hall to Sanderson & Sons, agents, the ship, apparently a small freighter, was showing a stern light. The Croxteth Hall caught up with the vessel, which suddenly swerved in her course and then came right at the British vessel. The stranger passed astern, went around and came up again on the opposite side.

The red and green running lights indicating the port and starboard sides of the ship were not lighted, Captain Spence said, and as soon as the Croxteth Hall came up the single stern light disappeared. Repeated efforts to signal the stranger by flashlight code and by wireless brought no answer. The vessel, after running with the Croxteth Hall a short time, turned away and disappeared.

When the stranger was sighted the weather was rough, but not so thick that the vessel could not be seen clearly by the British captain. His first thought was that it might be one of the ice patrol ships, but failure to answer signals and absence of regulation lights disproved this theory.

Agents of the line, while admitting they were puzzled at the unusual occurrence, said they did not connect it with recent unverified reports that a mystery ship with piratical intent was operating off the Atlantic coast.

RIVER DRIVER DROWNS

Young Fellow Wades Beyond Depth and is Swept Away

Kingston—Arthur Blaney, employed for the past three months as river driver by Ferguson & Findlay, on the Madawaska River, was drowned in Savage Rapids, near Callaghogue, Blaney could not swim, and while wading in the river, lost his footing and was swept by the current into the deep water. His fellow-workmen tried in vain to rescue him. The body was recovered and the remains were shipped to Centre View, Hastings county, where his parents reside. Blaney was twenty years old.

Young Kearns is now in the Hotel Dieu in a precarious condition, the bullet not yet having been taken from his body.

QUEEN'S NEW PROF.

Thomas Secombe Selected As Head of English Department

Kingston—A letter received by a college official in the city from Principal Bruce Taylor, now in England attending the Universities Congress, announces the selection of Thomas Secombe as the new head of the English Department at Queen's University. Since the retirement of Dean Cappon this position has been vacant and before going to England Principal Taylor was empowered to choose a man for the post. Prof. Secombe will sail for Canada on the S.S. Victorian on September 2nd.

USES FOR OLD CORKS.

Bottle corks are always useful as cleaners. For cleaning plate, a cork dipped in a little moistened powder is excellent for rubbing the tarnished parts. Egg stains on spoons disappear when they are treated with salt applied with a cork. Marks on aluminumware can be removed with a cork and a little sand. In most cases stains on polished wood can be rubbed out with a soft, dry cork. Marks on light or brown shoes can be treated successfully with a cork which has first been rubbed over the inside of a banana skin. A dry cork is also good for cleaning spots on paint or wallpaper.

FRESH FIGS COMING EAST

FRESNO, Calif., July 12.—Fresh figs, a fruit practically unknown in eastern cities, yet a highly prized delicacy on the Pacific coast for years, will soon be found on eastern fruit stands. With the demonstration last month by the California peach and fig growers that it is possible to ship this delicate fruit across the continent, arrangements have been completed to ship in large quantities.

In carload lots fresh figs will be supplied by the largest fig gardens in the world, to the key markets of Chicago, Indianapolis, Columbus, Cleveland, Toronto, Boston, New York, Milwaukee, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Pittsburgh. The fruit will be shipped co-operatively.

Two carloads left Fresno July 2 containing 5,000 boxes of Black Ad-son figs, considered by epicures as one of the prize delicacies of California, and will go by express to the various markets. It is estimated that the shipments will reach the various cities before the middle of July.

The shipments mark the launching of a new industry in California, as it has been considered for years that the fresh fig was too delicate a fruit to be sent across the continent. The perfection of a new method of packing and the use of pre-cooling has solved the problem of getting the fruit to distant markets in perfect condition.

The first carload ever shipped from California, consisting of 2,400 boxes, was absorbed in the Chicago and New York markets the last week in June and was instantly taken up by the trade.

SHORT VAMPS LATEST

Long Pointed Toe Gives Way to Broad Kind.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Short vamps will be the style this fall and winter.

This might seem to be unjust discrimination against tall girls, but it doesn't apply to the girls themselves—only their footwear.

The exhibit of the shoe manufacturers' board of trade revealed that the long, pointed toe for woman's shoes had given way almost exclusively to broad toes and short vamps.

French heels, save for formal wear, will be replaced by the so-called Cuban heel and the straight low heel.

Straps will be more popular than ever, but the buckle will practically disappear.

The most popular material will be kid, for street wear, and satin for dress occasions.

While on the subject of styles, here is what women will have on their minds this fall, according to military buyers returning from Paris:

Either small toes or large, flat hats.

Purple, crimson and orchid as the popular shades.

Ribbons, laces and wings for trimming.

What women now wear between head and feet is so comparatively negligible that styles in shoes and hats are about all that count.

KING'S BIG ROLE AS DIPLOMATIST

PART TOWARD IRELAND

Optimism In London For Success of Conference With Irish Factions

The following article is from Chas. H. Erasty, the chief European writer on world affairs for the New York Times:

LONDON, July 13.—Coming over on the train from Paris I met officials from Downing Street who showed real enthusiasm over the new turn affairs have taken in Britain. They expressed confidence in the favorable outcome of the Irish negotiations. In London people who usually reflect political opinion seem similarly affected by the late developments.

With mental reservations against premature optimism, London seems to be enjoying a vision of ultimate world settlement that has appeared in the Western sky.

Conversations between Washington and London are regarded by some as the forerunner of the promised Association of Nations. With a long-time knowledge of ententes and alliances, whatever is lacking in information is easily supplied by imagination. Such fragments as the American Ambassador's remarks on the Fourth of July and the publication in newspapers regarding Washington approach to Britain are pieced together, and a simple and definite scheme is outlined up out of vagueness in which the international relationships have been enveloped.

May Lead to Formal Association

The prospect of peace in Ireland is sufficiently important in itself to cause some degree of buoyancy in a country which for many months has been unable to see a bright horizon in any direction. But the Irish negotiations, if successful, will not only put an end to a dangerous internal situation, but can be considered, speculatively at least, as leading up to a still larger plan to reduce to a state of order the confusion which prevails from London to Tokio and back again. The British stolidity begets to take on a certain cheerfulness.

There has been a steadily growing sentiment in Britain for an enduring solidarity with America. There is not only race and language in its favor, but Britain's experience in European diplomacy has produced a growing conviction that obstacles of temperament and habit which separate all countries are less formidable than between Britain and America.

So long as the Irish conflict continues it has been considered doubtful whether American opinion would authorize any formal association with Britain.

Domination Influence

With such large issues bound up in the Irish question, the negotiations take on a significance beyond the pending struggle between Britain and Ireland. If a settlement can be reached, Britain can press forward to still larger settlements with increased confidence.

The Dominion Premiers now assembled in London have acquired a large influence in shaping the Empire policy. As was so often contended in connection with the question of giving them votes in the League of Nations, their viewpoint is more apt to represent American than British ideas.

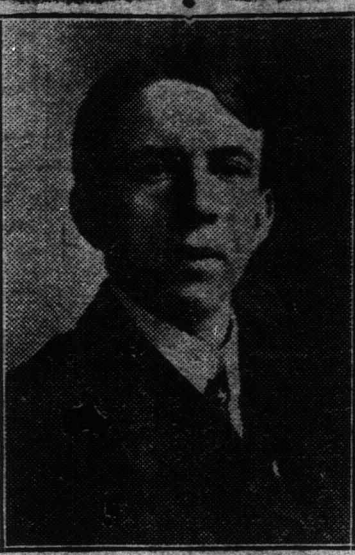

The King's Share in Peace

King George's recent activities have clothed the British Kingship with new powers. Owing to the King's prestige and the general popularity of the Royal family, the British Premier commands what military people call a strategic reserve that can be brought up and thrown into a contest at critical moments.

King George gallantly went to Ireland, in which country, by the way, the King's office commands respect even among those who hate the Cabinet and Parliament. It was a speech, it was probably prepared, and certainly approved by Downing Street authorities. It was a splendid appeal for peace, coming from the King. At about the same moment the Lord Chancellor was delivering in the Lords a speech in precisely the opposite sense, warning Ireland of impending reprisals. The other day somebody "Dorring Street," spilled the beans" in the American negotiations for disarmament, but two days later the tactical King picked them up and dropped them carefully into the American Ambassadorial arse. By this action of the King the situation was restored which now seems to promise fruitful results.

The King's spirit of service is not exceeded in the humblest person in his realm, and his work for his country and the good of the world is something that even non-monarchical democracies can be proud of.

It is generally expected that when peace agreements are exchanged between Britain and Ireland it will be under King George's presidency.

CHOLERA INFANTUM

Cholera infantum is one of the fatal ailments of childhood. It is a trouble that comes on suddenly, especially during the summer months, and unless prompt action is taken the little one may soon be beyond aid.

Baby's Own Tablets are an ideal medicine in warding off this trouble. They regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus prevent all the dreaded summer complaints. Concerning them Mrs. Fred Rose, of South Bay, Ont., says: "I felt Baby's Own Tablets saved the life of our baby when she had cholera infantum and I would not be without them."

The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FEAR ICE SHORTAGE

Kingston Ice Companies Find it Impossible to supply demand.

Kingston—"Koolables" are in great demand these hot days, and there is actually an ice shortage. The Kingston Artificial Ice Company has been obliged to cut off about one hundred and fifty of its customers owing to the increased demands of its large customers. The St. Lawrence Ice Company is not taking on any more customers. Milk is also in very great demand, the storekeepers not being able to get all that they can sell. Many who have licenses to sell soft drinks and the makers of the two percent. cannot turn out supplies fast enough. Everybody is drinking these days, and especially anything that is kept in cold storage. Ginger ale is consumed by the case in many places, and the supply is inadequate.

Two Members of Rifle Team Within Money at Ranges

BISLEY CAMP, July 12.—Two Canadians, Sergt. G. M. Elmale, of the 48th Highlanders, Toronto, and Major Northover, of Winnipeg, came 31st and 36th respectively in the Queen Mary prize competition, winning one pound each. Sergt. Elmale is shooting for the first time in the Bisley team. The Queen Mary match is a rapid-fire, squadded competition, open only to past and present members of His Majesty's forces. Sergt. Elmale was also first in the 500 yards sweetstake, and Major T. Richardson, of the 14th Canadian Scottish, of Victoria, B.C., was second. Major Richardson is a veteran Bisley man.

MODEL TOWN FOR EX-SERVICE MEN

Government Considers Purchase of Seven Thousand Acres Near Kamloops

VERY DRY CLIMATE

Town Would Include Both Industrial and Agricultural Possibilities

OTTAWA, Ont., July 13.—A model town for tubercular returned soldiers may be established on a 7,000 acre tract of land across the North Thompson River at Kamloops, B.C., as a result of the investigations of the sub-committee of the special Parliamentary committee on soldiers' civil re-establishment. The report of the sub-committee indicates the feasibility of the scheme, and the Department of the Interior and Thomas Adams, town planning advisor, of Ottawa, are collaborating in an endeavor to have plans mapped out for presentation to the main committee on re-establishment at the session of Parliament.

The forecast of the plan indicates that both industrial and agricultural possibilities will be incorporated in the model town. It is planned to build homes for soldiers who require treatment to make their cure permanent. In these homes the men will be able to live with their families.

Provision for Indians

The land across the North Thompson River is now an Indian Reservation, but it is understood that arrangements are under way whereby the Indians will be accommodated elsewhere and on terms satisfactory to them. It is proposed that the Government should retain the ownership of the land after the Indians have been removed.

The Government will, of course, build the model homes and generally supervise and manage the running of the colony. The climate on this tract, says a report on the subject, is exceptionally dry and suitable for those suffering from pulmonary troubles. The dryness of the tract to Kamloops makes it possible for the residents of the colony to take advantage of the existing social facilities, while two railways make transportation and communication assured.

VALUED AT $1,000,000

The site of the proposed colony has already been inspected by Thomas Adams, the town planning advisor.

Mr. Adams suggests that an immediate report should be made as to the water power opportunities on the tract and on the availability of water for irrigation. Mr. Adams, in his report, expresses himself as being convinced of the curative possibilities of the proposed model town.

The reserve comprises 32,751 acres and is valued in the vicinity of $1,000,000.

The plan is being supported by members of Parliament, by the City of Kamloops and by the Great War Veterans' Association and by the hundreds of returned men who are suffering from tuberculosis.

It is expected that the Parliamentary committee on soldiers' civil re-establishment will urge action in its report at the coming session and it is likely that the spring of 1922 will see a start made towards the construction of the town and with all the necessary facilities for treatment and for work.

WAS SEIZED WITH CRAMP AND DROWNED WHILE SWIMMING

Port Hope—Walter Little, Margaret street, was seized with a cramp while bathing in Beamish's pond north of the Nicholson File Works, and was drowned. In company with a number of other young men deceased was enjoying a swim going in from the cedars on the north side. After being in the water only a short time he called to his friends that he had a cramp in his leg and at once sank from view. The alarm was at once given and neighbors were soon on the scene but more than twenty minutes elapsed before the body was recovered. Two
