Right at Last

for a moment and looking at Joan's beautiful face with shrewd scrutiny.
"Only a week. How quietly you take things ida dear! Now, if I was going to be married, I should be all in a flut-ter. But I suppose ledies aren't like us e a folks; they never get excited, ten over a wedding."
think they do sometimes," said

Joan, absently.

"Hem! Why don't you, then?" retorted Emily, sharply. "You don't seem a bit glad or sorry. It might be my wedding instead of yours."

"I wish it were!" breathed Joan, fer-

Joan's face flushed as she bent over of mine, Emily," she said, with a smile. "You would make such a charming lit-mind you of that compliment when it come to be married. Charming: I shall never be a patch upon Miss. Ida Thevelyan. They always call the bride levely, don't they!

But they'll be within the truth this time. Oh. Mr. Royce is a very lacky man. When I get married I should like to have a really big wedding. Let me see, what could I have? I'd have a carriage with white horses, with postilions in bige

"Lake the Prince of Wales," said Joan, ever so much grander than the Prince's! And I'd have at least a dozen bridesmaids in white face and pearls, and then I'd get Mr. Giffard to lend me ail the banners and emblems out of last year's pantomine and have people in armor to carry them, and the chorus girls, should form a line with baskets of flowers, and Pd have a full string band in the gallery —"

"And a harlequinade after the ser vice," said Joan. "That would be a the atrical marriage with a venegance,"

Emily laughed. "And I wouldn't go into the wilds of the country for a honeymoon! No! catch me boring my husband and myself death in some outlandish spot where always rains. No: I'd take a box at each of the theatres for a fortnight and go to one of 'em every night, and throw a bouquet costing a guinea to my favorite actress!"

"How loyal you are to your profes said Joan, with a little sigh

Loyal? Of course I am. I was brought up behind the scenes, and I've lived in a theatre more than two-thirds of every minute of my life. Loyal! I the world like the theatrical. But as for you, sometimes I think you wouldn't care if you never went on the boards oan looked up thoughtfully. "No. I am afraid I should not. I am unworthy to be an actress, am I not.

dear, said Emily, warmly, "I some-times think, Ida, that you are really a very great personage, only you don't know it."

Joan laughed quietly.

And that I was changed in the cradle ke the young counters in the novel," "You remind me, Emily, of the g utleman who sold that he was really he beir to an earldom -only the right

Emily laughed. There, that's done!" she exclaimed, up a length of white maslin. "Only seven days, heigho! I wonder about I shall do without you?" and the sharp little face grew grave. "It will dreadful when you are gone, and shall count the days till you come

"Only fourteen," said Joan; "they pass, dear."

Nos, for you, with your new husband by your side," said Emily; "but not for Do you know where you are going to live yet, dear?" said Joan, listbasty, "Mr. Royer has not told me yel. He said something about it, but nothing definite. There is neuty of time." He as very strange sometimes." said Emily, pausing in ner work. "Almost mysterious, isn't be, dear? I wonder he naysterious, isn't he, aran, hasn't taken a house——", "There is no hurry," ail Joan, as "There is no hurry," will we come

You don't seem to care much " rebarked Emily, looking at 'ier curionsiy, but water to park and a park and the programment was nearly ready, he practically suppose when one is so much in love one doesn't mind a bit where one lives."

I suppose not "essented Lower quiets of the pricare that was so like Ida Trevalyan, and in which he had found the one doesn't mind a bit where one lives."
"I suppose not," assented Joseph quiet-

"Very," said Joan, with dry lips, "After all, she can't be a bid sort of girl, can she, dear?" went on Emily, "Look how she nursed him through that dong illness. I didn't think it was in her, did you?"

I scarcely saw her more than once.

"I am sorry I was so hard upon her." the great casino.

But even to the green table the sweet said Emily. "I expect I was jealous, You can't understand that, I suppose, dear. You were never ealous of anyone, were you?"

"I -I don't know," faltered Joan, "No.

"I should never be tired of working into the garden. for you, dear," said Emily. "And I'.a.

"A week to-day," said Emily, resting | not tired a bit. Who's this coming up r a moment and looking at Joan's | the steps." Wh. Ida, it's Lord Bertie Dewsbury. I'll go!" and she jumped

> "No, no, don't go," she said; "there no occasion," and her face flushed. "Oh, how are you, my lord?" exclaim-l Emily. "Here's a chair," and she wept the litter from one. "We're in ed Emily. "Here's a chair swept the litter from one. the midst of dressmaking, you see we're very clever? I suppose you thought we could act and that's all!"

Bertie laughed and nodded to her as Bertie laughed and nodded to her as he held Joan's hand.
"I think you could do anything you chose, Miss Montressor," he said, "I'm afraid I'm intigding and in the way. No. I won't sit down. I—I only came o ask how Miss Trevelyan was and-and to say good-by."

"Good-by." said Jean, quietly.
"Yes." he said with affected heartlness. "I'm off to the continent! Going ness. "I'm off to the continent! Going to take a regular run around for—for the benefit of my health," and he flush-

"Well, you do look rather pale," re marked Emily, in her blunt fashion.
"Yes," and he nodded. "I want change of air."

life, and it hasn't hurt me," retorted Emily, laughing. "But then I'm not a lord, am I, and lords are delicate. Well, I hope you'll enjoy yourself, and so does lda, don't you, dear?" for Joan had stood silent, with downcast eyes.

She knew why Bertie was going away and that was because of the wound she had, 'all inadvertedly, caused him. Her heart ached for him as he stood smiling bravely and looking round at the wed-ding finery with a wistful expression of "Lord Dewsbury knows that," she

"Yes .yes! Thanks, thanks!" he said: then he looked at her. "I've heard-Mordaunt Royce has told me of his approaching happiness. Miss Trevelyan, I —I thought I would come and say that I wish you every happiness."

"Thank you," said Joan, in a low

"I'm sure you'll be happy," he went on, awkwardly. "Royce is an awfully good fellow, and and elever, and all that. I have known him for a long time, and"—he paused and hesitated— "and I am an old friend of his, and hope to be an old friend of yours some day perhaps you will let me give you, perhaps you will accept this amall trifle as a token of my good wishes, Miss Trevelyan."

As he spoke he took a small case from is pocket and held it out to her. Joan took it and opened it.

It was not a costly present. Bertie loved her, and understood her nature too well not to know the simplier the gift the better she would be pleased, and he had searched the jewelers' shop for something that would convey meaning to her.

The case contained a pendant of frosted silver, with the single word, "Friendship" embessed upon it.

Joan's eyes grew moist, and she held out her hand to him with a sudden, impulsive gesture.
"I understand," she muranured, "and thank you."

"Yes, yes!" said Bertie, nervously, "I "Yes, yes! said bettie, heryously, hope you'll let me consider myself your friend. Miss Trexelyan. I wish you every happiness, and—and, if at any wards it, I'll be grateful to you for let-Joan raised her eyes to his, with the Joan raised her eyes to his, with the expression of warm gratitude was one of vague doubt and nerost.

"Thank you. Yes, I know that! I know how good you are. If wishes can I shall be, shall I not?"

"Yes, yes, of course!" he added cheer-"You will be very happy. It-it ily a week now," showing how well is only a week now." he knew and remembered the date of the "f -- I am sorry I shall not be there, but you see," he went on calmly, "I must get away. But," and a smile, that for all his rourage grew sad. !!! up hi face, "I shall think of you. Good-by! Joan gave him her hand. He raised it half way then paused and let it go with a supessed sigh, and without another word left the house.

When he got outside he drew a long breath and widened his chest. The effort to carry himself bravely had cost him more than could be put into words.

But it had been done; he had said good-bye, and now the best thing could do would be to take himself out of the sound of the wedding bells and try to forget ber if he could. He went back to his rooms and * told his valet to pack up, and when the last will, at the top.

There was a pause, then Emily looked | A couple of hours later he was on the a again.

"I wonder when Miss Mazurka is going to be married to Lord Villars?"

Joan started, and the work fell from her hands. She stooped to nick it up, and turned her faces which had grown to didy pale, from Emily's sharp eyes. "It hasn't been announced in the society papers wet. What a lucky girl, isn't she?"

"Very," said Jean, with dry tips.

"After all, she can't be a had corted."

ad you?"

Figure 1 searcely saw her more than once thing.

They received him at the hotel as They received him at the hotel as or twice," said poor Joan, in a low They received him at the hotel as voice, which she tried to keep firm and they always receive an English noblemen and Bertie, having dined, set out for face of Ida Trevelyan followed him. The half-doubting, half-frightened look which had dwelt in her eyes when I not haunted nim, and area to have the more and sauntered or winning, a little, he neither knew nor cared which, he rose and sauntered she had said, "I shall be happy, shall

It was a lovely night. The wind which, when he had left London was sweening from the east like a deathwhich, which he has a death-sweeping from the east like a death-dealing scythe, was here, in Monaco, murmuring in dulcet whispers through the trees.

He threw himself down upon a bench and thrusting his hands into his pockets, after the fashion of Englishmen when they are miserable and out of sorts, gave himself up to thinking of Ida Trevelyan.

"If L had only had a chance before Mordautt Royca" he thought "would Mordaunt Royce," he thought, "would she have cared for me? I wonder what that look meant when she said 'Shall I be happy?' Is it possible that—that she does not love him? He is a good looking fellow and clever, and yetwish she had not looked so sad when she said that. Ah, my friend Royce, if the smooth gravel path.

It was the figure of a man, tall and once stalwart, but now thin and worn. There was a patrician grace and haughtiness about it that would have attracted the attention of the least observant; but it was not these fea-tures which struck Bertie, but the re-semblance of the figure to that of semblance of the figure to that Stuart Villiars.

He leaned forward on the seat and vatched him. With downcast eyes and listless steps the tall figure grew nearer.

As he approached, the saunterers and idlers made way for him and looked after him. whispering among themselves.

That he was a person of some notoriety was plain, and Bertie got up and inoved into a seat nearer the broad path Presently the figure came in a line with the seat, and as the moon poured full upon his features Bertie saw that

Stuart Villiars. The blood rushed to Bertie's face, This was the man who had, in cold blood, sought the ruin of the girl Bertie loved. It was from this man that he had saved

It was from this man that he had saved Ida Trevelyan.

A passionate indignation and revulsion took possession of him, and set every nerve bibrating.

Almost unconsciously he moved forward, so that he stood almost directly in Street William's way.

in Stuart Villiar's way.
Stuart Villiars, pacing forward with slow steps, moved a little aside, and as he did so raised his head, and the eyes For a mement Stuart Villiars looked at him without a sign of recognition on bis pale, worn face, then he raised his hand to his hat and touched it by way of greeting. Lord Bertie looked him fall in the face, and neither returned the greeting by word or gesture. CHAPTER XXXVII.

Stuart Villiars paus d a moment and ooked at him keenly; then slowly, with istless step, passed by, and Bertie, tremding with tage, sank on to the seat. An awful longing was taking posses sion of him; a longing to seize this man by the throat and demand expiation for erime he had meditated against the girl he. Bertie, loved. He sat brooding until the keepels of the garden requested him to withdraw d the next day the longing haunted him. Hour after nour he brooded over et, recalling the misery which the girl whom he had rescued had endured, reealling every word she had uttered, every expression in her eyes when she learned that she had been deceived by this man, this stuart Villiars, who was here at Monaco within reach of his.

vengeauce.

Half mad with rage and the passionate desire for revenge, he were down to the Casino on the following night and watched and waited.

Towards midnight Stuart Villiars arrived and took his place at the table directly opposite Berrie's.

As he sat down he glanced access as if prepared to repeat his greeting, but Bertie stared him full in the face and went on playing without a sign of recognition. Not a trace of surprise or chagrin made itself visible on Stuart Valliar. face. He played, and lost a large sum then rose, and, with the same listlesss step, left the table and walked towards Bertie threw his chair back and walkig at a quicker pace, reached the seat had occupied the preceding night. stuart Villiars appeared. He come abreast with the seat, he paused, and Bertie rising, the two men confronted each other. For a moment Stuart Villiars stood Siently regarding him, the moonlight alling upon his hundsome face, worn by these and suffering, yet to some eyes if the more handsome. Then he said: "Lord Dewsbury, I think?"

"I am Lord Dewsbury," said Bertie.

Stuart Villiars inclined his head slight-I flattered myself that I had one pleasure of enjoying Lord Dews-'s acquaintance," he said. "But seehe has declined to acknowledge my Cold and clear the words rang out I e moonlight, and at their sound rtie's blood bounded in his veins. If he could but draw this man on to a quarrel, and, under the pretence of de manding satisfaction, punish him for his to Ida Trevelyan! "You are not mistaken, Lord Villiars," he said, slowly, and with flashing ieve: but you will be the first to ac knowledge my right to choose men of honor for my friends!" Stuart Villiars' face flushed for a me ment, then grew pale again.

"Cartainly!" he said. "But am I to inderstand that Lord Dewsbury declines to return my greeting because I am not a man of honor?" said Bertie, who could not command phrases so easily as could Stuart Villiars.

SHOULD KNOW

Dodd's Kidney Pills the Sure Cure for All Aches and Pains.

Mrs. Vaillancourt Adds Her Experience to the Great Mass of Proof That Dodd's Kidney Pills Are Woman's Best Friend.

Lafond, Alberta, March 6. (Special) Latond, Aberta, March 6. (Special).

—That the women of the West are finding in Dodd's Kidney Pills a sure relief from those aches and pains that only women know is becoming more evidence. As he sat and mused, the people came out of the play rooms.

Some sauntered along talking and laughing, others hurried down the path with quick, uncertain steps, and there were some who staggered as if under the weight of despair.

Bertie watched them listlessly for a time, but suddenly his attention was caught by a figure coming slowly along the smooth gravel path.

the impurities are not strained out of her blood and she cannot be healthy. She feels it in every part of her body and the result is that she is weary and worn and full of aches-and pains. What every woman should know is that there is sure relief and perfect health for her if she uses Dodd's Kidney Pills.

in his breath. "Perhaps you will be good enough to explain! At present I am at a loss to know how I have in-curred the character Lord Dewsbury has assigned to me."

"I will," said Bertie. "I call a man a scoundrel and a villain who deceives n innocent and confiding girl."
Stuart Villiars' lips twitched, but old smile swept over his face, leaving it grave and courteous.

"I endorse that, Lord Dewsbury," he said; "but I do not see how it applies to me."
"Look back." retorted Bertie. "It is not long since you induced a confiding girl to piace her trust in you! Have you forgotten lda Trevelyan, Stuart Villiars?"

Stuart Villiars looked at him coldly, inous.

"I never heard of anybody bearing that name!" he said.

The two men stood and looked at each other, Stuart Villiars with cold each other, Stuart Villars with cold hauteur. Lord Bertie with scorn and passion in his eyes.

"You deny all knowledge of Miss Trevelyan?" said Lord Bertie.

"I believe the lady is an actress of some repute," replied Lord Villars, cold-lar, "I know nothing of he."

ly; "I know nothing of her."
Bertie's face burned.
"Your denial is consistent with the rest of your conduct, Lord Villiars," he said, slowly and scornfully.
Stuart Villiars regarded him under heavy eyebrows.
"Since when has Lord Dewsbury considered it incumbent upon him to cen sure my conduct?" he demanded. "It is the duty of every man to pro tect the honor of an innocent and friendless woman," replied Bertie A faint smile, more sad than scornful, curved Stuart Villiars' lips.

BOWEL TROUBLE

MAKES SICKLY BABIES Bowel trouble is the cause of most suffer. When baby's bowels are not working regularly illness is sure to appear, but when the bowels are regular the little one is usually bright, active and happy. No other medicine for babies has such good effect on the bowels as has Baby's Own Tablets. They make their action regular, sweeten the stom-ach and promote good health. Concern-ing them, Mrs. Freeman Feener, of Barry's Corners, N.S., writes: "I can heartily recommend Baby's Own Tablets for all the troubles from which little ones suffer. My baby girl was troubled with her bowels and was so small and puny I thought we would lose her. I saw Baby's Own Tablets advertised and began giving them to her and now she is a big, healthy baby. For this I thank the Tablets, and I always keep them in the house." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine

Co., Brockville, Ont. NO COD FAMINE IN SIGHT.

Hundreds of Millions of Pounds of the Fish Are Taken Annually.

The cod is probably the most prolific of all sea fish, though its habitat does not extend over as large an area all other species. It is found only in North ern waters, and will live and thrive only orn waters, and will live and thrive only in certain temperatures.

Some day, owing to the wonderful asset which Newfoundland possesses in her cod fishery, says the Wide World Magazing she is destined to be the Magazine, she is destined to greatest fish depot of the world. It is not alone on the great "banks" many miles off her coast, that cod are found in countless millions, but around the whole island on the "ledges" and "grounds" off the capes and promont-ories that jut into the Atlantic, as well as on the Labrador coast, for a stretch of a thousand miles. In these regions you require no hatch ries to aid the wonderful fecundity of nature: indeed, it is doubtful if you require any laws or regulations to protect these fisheries, unless it be in the require any laws or regulations to protect these fisheries, unless it be in the shoal waters of the bays.

Notwithstanding that for 300 years the fisheries of these waters have been prosecuted by the rival fishermen of two hemispheres the largest catch of ead evertaken on the Newfoundland and Labrador coasts was that secured in 1909, the yield being estimated in weight at 1,800,000 quintels, or 20,000,000 pounds, to which may be added 200,000 quintals—the quantity locally consumed fishing season. The value of the fish alone without any regard to the byproducts—oil, roes, skin, offal etc.—is gas, is escaping:

"You may put is so if you please!"

Shiloh's Cure

as he rolled off the served as a bed."

Shiloh's Cure

Borowell—I'm sto my last dollar. Izzy

"Ah!" said Stuart Villiars, drawing

"Ah!" said Stuart Villiars, drawing

WHAT THEY DID.

Some Unknown Facts About Som Well Known People.

Marie Corelli is a great student of Plato, and a constant reader of the Bible.

Clara Barton, of the Red Cross, laid out the grounds of the National cemetery at Andersonville in 1865.
Chauncey M. Depew was once given the post of Minister to Japan, but, after carrying the commission in his pocket for a month, declined the office James Bryce is a mountain climber, and in 1900 was President of the Alpine Club. He is also a botanist.

Henry Watterson, the Louisville jour-alist, is the author of the phrase "A tariff for revenue only"

Samuel Untermeyer, New York lawyer, is an art expert, and owns one the most valuable collections of paint ings in America.
E. H. Sothern, the actor, is an artist.

and studied painting in Spain for several years.

John W. Gates, the capitalist, made his first fortune manufacturing barbed vire fencing. Oscar Hammerstein, grand opera manoser frammerstein, grand opera manager, has invented and patented numerous labor-saving devices.

Tom Lawson, the frenzied financier, is the author of "A History of the Republications".

lican Party.' Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst is an au thority on Sanskrit, and has translated many Sanskrit documents into English. Thomas Fortune Ryan, the financier, GIDEONS AND THEIR BIBLE.

(New York Tribune.) The Gideons, a band of religiously in clined commercial travelers, who recent ly placed 6,000 Bibles in Chicago hotel rooms, are much pleased with the reception of the innovation. Their secretary, in a statement to the Chicago papers, says: "We have received numerous letters, pathetic and thankful, telling us of the work accomplished by placing the word of God before the transients who occupy rooms in Chicago's hotels. One man wrote that he looked forward to the time when the rooms in every hotel in the world would contain as part of the world would contain as a part of thir furnishings copies of the Bible. The hotel people and those in touch with the men and women who are reached by these Bibles are enthus-instic about the work."

TRY MURINE EYE REMEDW For Red, Weak, Weary, Watery Eye AND GRANULATED LIDS

Murine Doesn't Smart—Soothes Eye Pain Murine Eye Remedy, Liquid, 25c, 50c, $1.00. Murine Eye Salve, in Aseptic Tubes, 25c, $1.00. EYE BOOKS AND ADVICE FREE BY MAIL Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago

ONTARIO MARRIAGE LAW.

(Detroit Journal.) A runaway couple from Sandusky, the boy 13 and the girl 14 years of age, were married by a Windsor clergyman Saturday night. The law of Ontario, it seems, does not prevent school children from getting married if they have the seems, does not prevent school children from getting married if they have the few dollars necessary to pay the marriage license issuer and the clergyman. In this case the minister says he questioned the couple closely, and they gave their ages at 21 and 19. A girl of 14 might dress up to look like 19, although it is doubtful; but to mistake a boy of 13 for a man of 21 seems absurd. That the minister land his serious

That the minister had his serious doubts is evidenced by his own statement that he questioned them closely. As they stuck to their false statements as to their ages his conscience was ab-solved from making a mock of the holy institution of matrimony by pronounc-ing the blessing of his church on the union of two school children who could not possibly understand the nature of the obligation they were taking upon themselves.

There is this to be said for the minister, however, that the children came to him with a license issued by an agent of the Ontario Government, authorizing chitis for a period of one year and four him to perform the ceremony. The permonths, during which time I spent most son who issues the liceuse is supposed guard has never proved to be very effective, for the records of the high court of justice of Ontario show that on one occasion at least a child several years voneger than the Saudusky girl found no difficulty in being married.

The law of Ontario puts a premium on this kind of thing, for it makes it to the interest of the government official to issue as many licenses as he can. The fee is $2, and of this amount he retains $1.40 as his charge for filling the blank and swearing the applicants. He knows that if he is too particular, some other license issuer will be more complaisant, and he thinks that he may as well get the $1.40 as anyhody else. He is appointed by the Government for service party in power at election time, SIMPLE WAY TO REMOVE RUST. and it is up to him to make the most o it. If he issues ten licenses a day, he pockets 884 for his week's work, so why ould be be particular? The Govern ment of the province makes itself a part-ner in business of this kind for the 60 comfort, for they are as a rule very ake comfort, for they are as a rule very poorly paid, their congregations taking it for granted that they will share in the profits of this peculiar industry.

DIDN'T BLAME IT.

(Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.) "Yes," said Tommy Kane, "the worst without the previous dipping 65 minutes hotel on earth, barring none, stood some were required by the acid bath, against were required by the acid bath, against alone without any regard to the byproducts—oil, roes, akin, offal etc.—is gas is escaping!

"Well, can you blame it?" growled be, when the as he rolled off the corn shucks that > Borowell I'm stone broke; down to my last dollar. Izzy Mark-Not to men-

RHEUMATISM CURED TO STAY CURED

Liniments of No Avail--The Trouble Must be Treated Through the Blood.

This article is intended as a talk to This article is intended as a talk to the man or woman with rheumatism who wants to be cured. Not merely re-lieved, not half cured, but actually cured. The most a rheumatic sufferer can hope for in rubbing something on the swollen, aching joints is a little re-lief. And all the while the trouble is becoming more firmly scated. Medical lief. And all the while the trouble is becoming more firmly seated. Medical authorities now know that rheumatism is rooted in the blood, and that while rubbing on liniments or hot fomentations may give temporary relief, they cannot possibly cure—you must go to the root of the trouble in the blood. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure rheumatism. They make new, rich blood, which expels the poisonous acid, cure rneumatism. They make new, rich blood, which expels the poisonous acid, and the rheumatism disappears. There are thousands of former rheumatic sufferers in Canada, now well and strong, who thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that they are now free from the aches and pains and tortures of this dreaded trouble. Mr. Joseph Luddington, New Harble. Mr. Joseph Luddington, New Har-bor, N. S., says: "Some three years ago my wife was stricken with rheumatism, and suffered so much that we despaired of her ever getting well again. At first she was able to go about, but in spite of all we did for her she grew so bad that we had to lift her in and out of bed, and finally the pains grew so ex-erneiating that we could only move her little by little, with the sheet under her. Finally we were induced to get Dr. Wii-Finally we were induced to get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for her. I do not re liams' Pink Pills for her. I do not remember just how many boxes she took, but I do know that they were the first medicine that reached the disease, and that she continued to improve until she was again as well as ever, and could do her household work. To us it is simply marvellous what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for her, and we are glad to give this testimonial in the hope that it will benefit some other poor sufferer."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine

ABOUT DOGS.

(Canadian Century.)

A Montreal teacher recently asked her class of little girls to write a composition on the dog. Here are a few of the gems gleaned from among the bundle of stories submitted:

"A dog is a kindly disposed quad-ruped. He is found in Asia, Africa and ruped. He is found in Asia, Africa and all parts of America. He loves mankind and loathes insects."

"A dog swallows his food without chewing, which goes to show that he belongs to a preantideluvian area."

"A dog is a kind creature to children and goes out of his way to harm no one except when she has puppies or is gone and." "Bulldogs are terrible fighters and fight all the time they are not cating or sleeping or otherwise doing no harm. They have big heads and massive jaws. but are in no way related to the whale "A dog is man's most inmost friend."

"A dog eats meat and bread and bones A dog runs sideways when he runs be-cause he does not run straight when he runs. He runs when he is not standing up still, sitting, walking or lying down." Dogs are taught to kill cats. They catch the creatures behind the head and kill them instantly and quickly. "There are many varieties of dogs as well as poodles and other kinds much devoted upon by the ladies.'

ATTACKED BY

BRONCHIAL CATARRH Bound Brooke P. O., Port Antonio, Ja., chitis for a period of one year and four months, during which time I spent most of my earnings in trying various rem edies, but, alas! without any satisfac-tion. I was just about giving up hope of enjoying life for the future when in our Daily Telegraph papers of Jamaica I saw your advertisement for Catarrhozon and tried one bottle. That was suffieient, I now know Catarrhozone best and only medicine for my trouble It has made a thorough cure. (Signed) T. C. White.

Large size, sufficient for two months' 1186, guaranteed, price $1; smaller sizes 25 cents and 50 cents. Beware of imitations and substitutors, and insist on get-ting "Catarrhozone" only. By mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston,

A recent issue of the Brass World contained a simple method for removing rust from surfaces that were afterwards o be electro-plated; but the method night be applied equally well to other which is gets from each marriage.

Windsor ministers cannot be too parbicular if they would live in anything se comfort, for they are as a supplied equally well to other that of the consists in dipping the articles first into a strong, hot potable comfort, for they are as a supplied equally well to other that of the consists in dipping the articles first into a strong, hot potable comfort, for they are as a supplied equally well to other that of the consists in dipping the articles first into a strong, hot potable confort, for they are as a supplied equally well to other that of the consists in dipping the articles first into a strong, hot potable confort, for they are as a supplied equally well to other that of the consists in dipping the articles first into a strong, hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong, hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong, hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong, hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong, hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong, hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot potable consists in the articles first into a strong hot pot then immersing in a cold muriatic acid pickling solution, composed of two parts of water to one of acid. This removed the rust in a few minutes, leaving the metal apaprently attacked but very lit-The previous soaking in the strong hot potash solution is responsible for this rapid pickling, as a test proved, for the potash bath. Apparently a chemical reaction is set up, changing the character of the rust, softening it, and making it of the rust, softening it, and making it readily soluble. The appearance of the rust as it cames from the notach kettle testifies to this, as it is black and soft, and may almost be rubbed off with the hand. The pieces that have been treated in the notash bath have a smooth and glossy finish. Shiloh's Cure

he throat and lunder. VALUE OF A COAT ROOM Coat room privileges of a hotel are often sold, bringing from $5,000 to $10,000 per year.