How Some Women Shop.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

When is a woman not a woman? When she goes shopping. Please understand "woman" in the above question meaning what "lady" used to mean. That is, "a woman of refined and gentle manners." As everyone knows, the word "lady" has become so vulgarized that it is no longer in good repute, and unfortunately there does not seem to be any satisfactory substitute for it. Many people use "woman" as I have done, in the old sense of "lady." But as a matter of fact, it means merely "an adult female person." This really leaves us with a gap in the language. I wish it might be filled in.

To return to the original theme. I often ask myself that question when I come back from a shopping tour.

They say many men have two different codes of morals: one for business and one for private life. Similarly many women seem to have two totally different sets of manners for shopping and for social life.

Surely you have noticed what absolutely discourteous things a nice looking woman will do when she is shopping and especially at a bargain sale.

She will persistently interrupt a sales girl when she is waiting on some other women.

She will take up five or ten minutes of a shop girl's time asking about this, that and the other, and then calmly walk away without a suggestion of a thank you.

She will walk three and four abreast through a crowded shop or down a narrow sidewalk, crowding others into the street or flattening them against the counters.

When something in which she is interested catches her eye, she will frequently stop so suddenly in the middle of a crowded aisle or sidewalk that the people behind her have to use the emergency brake to keep from tumbling over her. By the way, why wouldn't it be a good thing for pedestrians as well as automobilists to hold out their hands when they contemplate stopping suddenly?

She will even take hold of some especially coveted article while someone else is examining it.

She will often stoop to lies and trickery when it is a question of returning or exchanging some article, and will deliberately take unfair advantage of an establishment's courtesy and patience when it has a reputation for such qualities.

She will not take the trouble to seek out and buy from a girl who has previously waited on her when she comes back and makes a purchase after looking elsewhere. Indeed I have often noticed that the girls themselves are far more careful not to take a sale which does not belong to them than the customers are not to give it.

Can you think of any good reason why a woman should leave justice, courtesy and honesty at home when she goes shopping?

Myself, I can't.

NATURE'S ESSENCE...Extracted From Forest Plants.

Nature's laws are perfect, but disease follows if these laws are not obeyed. Go straight to nature for the cure, to the forest; there are mysteries here that we call fathom for you. Take the bark of the wild-cherry tree, the root of manradre, stone, Oregon grape root, queen's root, bloodroot and golden seal, make a scientific, non-alcoholic extract of them with just the right proportions and you have a Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It took Dr. Pierce, with the assistance of two learned chemists, eight years of hard work experimenting to make this pure glyceric extract and alternative of the greatest efficiency and without the use of a particle of alcohol.

Just the sort of remedy you need to make rich, red blood, and cure that lassitude and feeling of nerve exhaustion. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery bears the stamp of Public Approval and has sold more largely in the past forty years than any other blood purifier and stomach tonic.

"Some time ago I got out of health—my stomach seemed to be the seat of the trouble," writes Mr. EDNA WILLIAMS, of Belleville, Kans. "I consulted a doctor with all the doctors at home as well as with other specialists on stomach and digestive organs. None seemed to do any good—in fact, most of the medicine they gave me did harm. I wrote to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., who replied, stating that I had liver complaint with indigestion and constipation, and advised Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Pellets." "The Discovery and Pellets," have "put me on my feet again"—"I could not have recovered without them."

Dr. WILLIAMS, Edna.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are for liver ill.

Fashions and Fads.

Plain materials form points on blouses.

The summer's evening gown is colorful.

Very smart are the white gloves stitched with red.

Figured lawns combined with plain blue lawn.

Hat pins with extremely small heads are displayed.

The wired lace ruff suggesting the medic collar is new.

The sleeves of fine, soft material show decided fullness.

Many coat suits are made of chamois colored ratine.

The contrasting skirt and coat continue to hold sway.

On many pretty garden hats appear frills of pleated tulle.

The veils of plain or dotted net have a pleated frill of lace.

Pumps are very high at the back and do not slip at the heel.

The tan calf storm shoe offers style and comfort, being waterproof.

For afternoon wear, white gloves are heavily embroidered with black.

The smart Parisienne has accepted the costumes of silk for street wear.

For dress the suede topped patent leather shoes and white buckskins are shown.

A very smart pump is of gunmetal calf with an oxidized silver buckle.

Any color in linen or pique looks well made up with a colored flowered trimming.

Bretelles of black tulle appear on many evening costumes of lace, net or chiffon.

For outing trips, white buckskin, oxfords and rubber-soled tennis shoes are being worn.

A lovely wrap is made of Mikado blue eponge, the only trimming being covered buttons.

The exquisite designs these days give great decorative power to the home dressmaker.

A charming parasol is covered with five one-inch ruffles of taffeta, with pinked edges.

With a skirt of black and white checked material is worn a coat of emerald-green cloth.

A beautiful yet simple gown is made of pink pongee combined with figured blue foulard.

A sash of figured silk in shades of mauve, tan and black can be made of a remnant successfully.

The square Colonial tongue is used on all pumps above the steel, leather or enamel buckle.

Tussor is much used with crepon to form bolero jackets with long, square-cut tails at the back.

Simple and pretty for little girls are the white straw hats, trimmed with pleated ruffles of lace.

The contrasting top shoe is again exploited in an oxford gray cloth upper on the dull calf vamp.

Some lingerie frocks are of eyelid embroidery over a foundation of colored linen of sheer quality.

The fancy buckle of cut steel is adopted as the favorite trimming on satin or patent leather slippers.

The successful summer wardrobe should contain one of the charming separate wraps of broadened silk.

A tiny alcohol lamp is a great resource to the woman who travels with children, especially if water is an uncertain quantity.

Extracts From E. F. Benson's "Weaker Vessel."

Religion lies at the base of all poetry.

The only good point, apparently, in proverbs is their age.

An essential part of genius is not so much the capacity for taking pains as the capacity for being educated.

Success is sweet to everyone but the cynical, who, owing to Nature's laudable abhorrence of waste, seldom attain it.

When all is said and done in the matter of high ideals, we love people, not because they are angels, but because they are men and women.

It belongs to divine right to the heart of a woman to spread tendrils of close affection round so much of that which forms her environment, whatever that environment may be.

Liking, if it is to be kindled into the steady flame of friendship, demands a certain reasonableness; whereas adoration deals more with the imagination that is willing to swallow unreasonable without murmurs.

A regret that gives birth only to pessimism and feeble despair about oneself is a thing for which there is no use in this world, or, as far as one could tell, in the next. Regret, in order to be fruitful, has to be optimistic in its offspring. It is right and proper for one to label oneself a miserable sinner only if the very act of labeling encouraged one to determine that the label should become a label.

We must be kind to our own failings, just as we must be kind to the failings of other people. It is arrogance to expect too much of ourselves. We make mistakes every day and all day long, and we must not expect anything else.

But there is one thing about which we must make no compromise with regard to ourselves, and that is that our intentions must be right. Don't go on thinking about yesterday. Don't feel regretful or repentant. Forget it altogether, and begin again to-day. We want all the energies we can summon to deal with the present, instead of letting them sit mourning in the dust of the past.
